Retiring D. C. Police Aide To 'Tell All' At Inquiry

Committee to Hear Stott Disclosures; Truscott Reveals Intrigue, Jealousy

By Robert De Vore.
Post Staff Writer

The spotlight of the House police investigation is scheduled to be thrown on the Metropolitan Police Department's high command today by a top-ranking retiring police official.

On the first day of his release from active duty, Inspector Willian G. Stott is due at 10 a. m. to make before the investigating subcommittee disclosures based on more than 30 years police experience.

Stott, in charge of police equipment and property until yesterday when he left the department to take accumulated leave before his retirement becomes effective August 1, was summoned by Chairman William Schulte, of the subcommittee, to appear today as a "surprise" witness before the investigators hear from Capts. Jeremiah Sullivan and John Fowler of the Second and Thirteenth Precincts.

Reports from the inspector's associates at headquarters last night indicated that he is in a mood to "tell all."

Sensational Disclosures

In a series of sensational disclosures of interdepartmental intrigue, jealousy and large-scale inefficiency, Capt. Floyd Truscott, in charge of the Tenth Precinct, now a uniformed officer, but formerly an ace plainclothes investigator, yesterday identified for the subcommittee the department's "Gestapo" or confidential squad of informers on policemen.

He named the special investigation squad of 20 young plainclothes men headed by Acting Capt. Earl P. Hartman, who entered the department in 1926.

Capt. Truscott charged that the department is suffering from incompetency of personnel and that "the whole crux of this problem rests with the personnel officer."

Selection of personnel, he said, is "technically" the job of Inspector James F. Beckett, acting police superintendent who insisted before the subcommittee earlier in the week that the department is efficient. Actually, however, the selection of new men is made by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent, based on reports of Hartman, Truscott said.

"Would that be the supposed head of the Gestapo?" asked Schulte.

"That is the same man," replied Truscott.

"Demoralizing" Practice

Schulte asked Truscott if he had heard that police detailed to the recent S and W Cafeteria strike were spied on by other policemen.

"That could happen," Truscott answered.

"Who investigates the investigators?" quipped Representative Hebert (Democrat), of Louisiana.

"There are many things going on that I do not approve of," Truscott replied. "Every police officer

Roosevelt Signs District Fund Act

President Roosevelt last night signed the $54,183,100 District appropriation bill at Hyde Park, N. Y., thus releasing funds with which to operate the city government for the fiscal year that began yesterday.

Presidential signature also made law a bill to amend the District Unemployment Compensation Act to regulate the use of administrative expenses of the Unemployment Compensation Board.

1 Dead, 8 Overcome as Mercury Hits 96.7; Relief Forecast Today

A muggy heat wave that sent the mercury to 96.7 degrees yesterday, while the humidity varied from 55 to 84, left Washington limp last night.

Heat exhausted citizens, seeking relief and sleep, took to the open spaces, and Park police reported 14 officers watching over thousands of slumberers stretched out on the grass along the banks of the Potomac and in the other parkways.

But before nightfall and its slowly declining temperatures one person had died from the heat and 10 others had been overcome.

Ten thousand Government workers in non-air-conditioned buildings were dismissed when their offices became too warm for efficient work. The other thousands of workers who stayed on the job forgot formalities, taking what comfort they could in open and tieless collars and rolled up shirt sleeves.

Ballou Believes 1-Cent Milk Will Be Available Next Term

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, expressed the belief yesterday that a 1-cent milk program for needy and underpourished children will be launched when the fall term opens in September.

Simultaneously Representative William T. Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, unleashed another attack upon what he terms the "local milk trust" in a letter to Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard recommending against an increase in milk prices.

The two developments, while independent of each other, are related. A boost in milk prices here might injure the chances of a penny project's being started in the schools. Or, if begun, it might have to be operated on a lower volume basis than would be the case otherwise.

Dr. Ballou informed the Board of Education that the dairy division of the Surplus Marketing Administration, which administers surplus milk programs, "gives assurances that it is their hope and expectation to institute a program here at the beginning of the next school term in September."

Robert L. Haycock, first assistant superintendent of schools and who has represented Dr. Ballou in negotiations for the project, made it clear, however, that the SMA has not definitely promised to introduce it here. The Agriculture Bureau still has the application under advisement.

The penny program would enable the District through a Federal sub-

Rider Bars 18,000 in FSA From Civil Service Benefits

By Jerry Klüttz
Post Federal Diary Editor

The Ramspeck Act, hailed just a few weeks ago as the death blow to the notorious patronage system, is being sabotaged by the Congress that made it the law of the land.

One of those last-minute politically inspired acts that you read about in fiction actually happened Monday night. A rider was nailed to the second deficiency bill that will bar more than 18,000 employes of the Farm Security Administration from being brought under civil service.

In fact, Agriculture officials yesterday were trying to decide whether the rider will compel them to fire each of the thousands of Farm Security employes who already have civil service. Opinion was divided and the Comptroller General will be asked to decide it.

The rider didn't mention Farm Security specifically. It merely said that "no part of the appropriations contained in the Agriculture appropriations act of 1942, under the heading 'loans, grants, and rural rehabilitation,' shall be available to pay the compensation of any person appointed in accordance with the civil service laws."

The rider was put over in the Senate by Senator George Radcliffe, of Maryland, but the man behind it was Eugene Casey, special assistant to the President and who is the

Motor Racers, Fume Belchers Face Arrest, Ickes Decrees

Motorists who make "jackrabbit starts" and whose "oil burner" autos belch offensive fumes will be subject to arrest in District parks, Secretary of the Interior Ickes decreed yesterday in a new attack on gasoline wasters. The arrests, he said, will start Sunday.

Ickes called on motorists in parks to aid the District Petroleum Conservation Committee which yesterday announced that it will meet at 2 p. m. today with representatives of some 25 local organizations to discuss methods of launching a city-wide program for voluntary curtailment of gasoline and motor oil use.

At the same time, Maj. Beverly C. Snow, assistant District engineer commissioner and chairman of the committee, stated that the save-gas campaign would operate on a voluntary basis at first, but if a 20 per cent reduction in estimated District consumption of 15,150,000 gallons a month is not attained, "drastic enforcement action will be necessary."

By "jackrabbit starts" Ickes said he meant racing of motors in order to start rapidly. Smoke-belching of cars he attributed to improper carburetion which "not only wastes large quantities of gas but is offensive to users of the parks."

Riga Taken, Red Line Pierced; Germans Slowed Past Minsk; R. A. F. Lashes Nazi Bases

Huge Attack Over Wide Area Meets With Little Resistance

By the United Press

London (Wednesday), July 2. One of the biggest air armadas of the war carried out a bold "sweep" of German-occupied France last evening, virtually without challenge from the Luftwaffe, after three daylight bombing invasions of Germany and German-held territory by R. A. F. squadrons.

Striking in force by daylight for the third consecutive day, the Royal Air Force smashed at industrial targets around Oldenburg, near the German North Sea Coast, blasted the Nazi seaplane base at Borkum on the Frisian Islands and then at dusk sent a roaring armada over the Channel against northern France.

The air ministry in a communique at midnight said that "many squadrons of R. A. F. fighters took part in the offensive sweep of northern France during the evening" and added that "very few enemy aircraft were encountered."

No Casualties Reported

So weak was the opposition to the evening "sweep," the air ministry said, that neither side suffered casualties despite the enormous size of the fleet.

Climaxing one of the busiest days of the air offensive, fighters and bombers gathered over southeast England early in the evening in such numbers that observers said they "seemed to fill the skies," and headed for France.

"I have not heard such a roar since the Germans used to attack with 400 and 500 planes at once," Harry Hickingbotham, United Press correspondent, who has watched the entire air war from a vantage point on the white cliffs, reported.

Waves Are Heavy

So many waves of planes flew to France that it took them 20 minutes to fly over one town on the southeast coast.

The earth shook violently as the watchers, who gather every evening on the cliffs after dinner to watch the R. A. F. at work, ticked off the bomb explosions and the blasts of the defense guns.

The air ministry confirmed that "a large-scale offensive sweep took place," but said details still were not available.

Earlier in the day fighters several times darted through the channel skies, occasionally penetrating into France.

Reich Losses Heavy, Moscow Says; Admits Lwow Retreat

By the Associated Press

Moscow (Wednesday), July 2. Red army troops supported by a tremendous artillery barrage have checked the German invaders of Russia on the Minsk front with heavy losses, the Soviet information bureau stated today in announcing a series of defense successes against numerically superior foes from Murmansk to southern Poland.

Lwow, Poland, hotly contested almost since the German invasion began June 22, finally was evacuated by Russian forces, the information bureau announced. The city's loss previously had been announced as occurring Monday, due to a Hungarian flanking maneuver, but later this was said to have been premature.

Elsewhere, all up and down the great battle line, the Russians said they were holding firm, although exact locations were not specified.

Large German losses in manpower and equipment were claimed everywhere, particularly around Minsk, capital of White Russia, and Luck, in southern Poland.

(A German military spokesman said Monday that Minsk had been captured, but there were later indications that the racing German panzer units had merely swept around it.)

At one unidentified point on the front, 50 German tanks were destroyed, the Russian communique said.

Nazis Stopped at Dvina

At another point, it was declared that the Red air force spied a German tank force in a forest clearing, dispersed it with bombs, and left "dozens" of tanks disabled in the glade.

This exploit was credited to dive-bombers, a type of plane with which the Germans have scored many successes in previous campaigns, and was said to be all the more notable because the dive-bombers simultaneously had to fight off a squadron of Messerschmitt fighter planes.

In the Dvinsk sector the story was the same: Heavy German losses inflicted by Red Army forces barring the Nazis' path over the Western Dvina River. There the German infantry was in support of the tanks, however.

On the Finnish front, big battles raged in two areas: Kakisalmi on the Karelian Isthmus and Murmansk, the ice-free Russian Arctic port. In both cases the Finnish-German attackers were stopped, the

Gen. Wavell Sent to India In Surprise Military Shakeup

Gen. Auchinleck To Command British Middle East Forces

By Robert P. Post
Copyright by New York Times

London, July 1.—Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, the architect of the British victories over the Italians in Cyrenaica and director of five battles at once, has been replaced by Gen. Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck, it was announced from Downing Street today.

The two men swapped jobs. Sir Archibald becomes commander in chief of the British forces in India; Sir Claude—known in the British army as "the Auk"—becomes the general officer commanding in chief in the Middle East.

This change comes as a severe shock to the British public and a more severe one to the British army. The British do not even attempt to disguise the fact that this change in the high command, like any change, is bound to cause uneasiness at home and give German propaganda a chance to point to British disunity.

36 Picnickers Feared Dead In Boat Blast

10 Bodies Recovered; Outing Becomes Maine's Worst Marine Disaster

By the United Press

Harpswell, Me., July 1.—Fog-shrouded tragedy that apparently ended in death for 36 persons aboard the 44-foot fishing cruiser Don was pieced together tonight after bodies of ten victims were washed ashore.

Burned bodies and bits of charred wreckage told the grim story of what was described as Maine's worst marine disaster.

Authorities were almost certain that an explosion and fire had brought a sudden climax to the gay fishing party of Rumford Bank employes and their friends who left Dyer's Cove here Sunday morning for an outing that included a clambake dinner on rocky Monhegan Island.

Fisherman Finds First Body

Death struck so swiftly that two of the bodies were found by lads trudging along the sandy scene of the departure. Others were sighted by summer residents or nearby Bailey and Orr Islands.

Weeping relatives and friends huddled in a fish-shed ashore waiting further reports while scores of many-sized searching ships piled along rock-lined Casco Bay shores.

First indication of the party's fate came soon after dawn today. Claude Johnson, grizzled, 62-year-old lobster fisherman, almost struck the body of a woman victim as he coursed the murky, rolling waters a mile and a half off Bailey Island.

Cause is Mystery

Almost simultaneously, Mrs. Robert Pletts, Brunswick summer resident, sighted another woman's body in the surf off the same island.

Both of these victims wore wrist watches—one had stopped at 11:42 and the other at 11:45.

On the basis of this evidence, authorities presumed the Don went

Roosevelt Still 'Hopes' U. S. Can Avoid War

Refuses to Comment On Knox Appeal To Fight Nazis Now

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

Hyde Park, N. Y., July 1.—Despite spreading war flames and calls by his Cabinet members for armed action "now," President Roosevelt still clings to his hope that the United States can stay out of war, he said today.

Mr. Roosevelt made plain, however, to a press conference in the study of his family home here, that his hope is only just that—a hope—and is not to be confused with a firm belief that fighting can be avoided.

In fact, discussing a poll of war sentiment, the President said that he is against war just as he is against sin. The answer left the implication that no matter how much one may hate war," there are times when it is just as hard to avoid as sin.

Always Expressed "Hope"

The President's reaffirmation of his hope that this country can avoid involvement in the conflict abroad was in marked contrast to the fighting speech delivered in Boston last night by Navy Secretary Knox, who declared that "the time to use our Navy to clear the Atlantic of the German menace is at hand."

One of the reporters grouped around the Chief Executive in his small book-lined study said:

"Mr. President, when the war first started it was a popular question to ask you if you thought we could keep out of the war. You always then said that we could."

Before the newsmen could follow up with a question, the President quickly interrupted to state that his reply on former occasions had been that he hoped the country could

By the Associated Press

Berlin, July 1.—The Soviet naval base of Riga, capital of old Latvia, was stormed and captured by the German Baltic armies today, while other Nazi forces penetrated deep into the central Red front, the high command announced tonight.

Whether the city of more than 375,000 inhabitants was heavily damaged was not indicated.

It was captured, said the high command's communique, after two days of fighting by forces which had overrun Mitau, 40 miles to the southwest in the process.

Soviets Surrounded

At the Russian center Nazi motorized troops were said to have reached the Berezina River on the way to Moscow, and military spokesmen declared that the Red Armies were rapidly being broken by enormous losses.

The capture of Riga, into whose southwestern suburbs German troops had fought their way as early as June 29, was declared to have established a solid Nazi front southeast to Dvinsk. German troops were said to be in pursuit of the retreating Russians.

Russia resistance about Riga has been stubborn, the German radio declaring that Red troops barricaded in houses and on rooftops forced the Nazis to drive them out in the stiffest sort of street fighting.

Fight to Smash Ring

Ahead of the panzer columns and infantry the Luftwaffe was reported striking devastatingly at Russian communications. D. N. B., the official agency, reported a heavy two-day air assault on Smolensk, railway center 200 miles east of Minsk on the main road to Moscow, while in the south Nazi planes forced interruption of traffic on the railway between Odessa, Black Sea Port, and Tarnopol, in the Ukraine.

Murmansk, the vital Arctic outlet of the Soviet, also was said to have

21-Year-Olds Sign Up for Draft; Men 28 and Over Are Deferred

750,000 in Nation Listed for Lottery On Second R-Day

A total of 5,518 new Washington Selective Service candidates added their names to the roster of Capital men available for Army duty yesterday—the Nation's second peacetime Registration Day.

The new contingent who put their names on the record here for possible military training and service were a part of approximately 750,000 men throughout the country who became draft eligibles yesterday having reached 21 since the original manpower inventory October 16, 1940.

Into 25 registration places here, as at 6,400 throughout the country, the 21-year-olds marched throughout the day. And after the centers had closed last night selection officials declared the draft machinery here had functioned without a hitch, despite early morning and late afternoon "rush periods."

While registration set-ups had been prepared to handle as many as 7,500 registrants here, the 5,518 who signed for service was in excess of National Headquarters and Census estimates of the number of 21-year-olds here. The balance is partially due to the recent influx of

Selective Service Chief Gives Order To All State Heads

National Selective Service headquarters last night ordered the deferment from military service of all men who as of yesterday are 28 years old or older, pending final action on legislation to this end.

Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, acting Selective Service chief, wired all State draft directors that Congressional leaders had informed him passage of the age deferment bill was assured and that it probably would be retroactive to July 1.

In view of the situation and at the request of Congressional leaders, Hershey directed that all Selective Service agencies postpone the induction of all men 28 through 35 scheduled for Army service for a period of 30 days, pending a final vote on the bill.

An estimated 8,000,000 men are in the group deferred by the order. Neither it nor the pending bill, however, would change the status of men over 27 who are already in uniform.

The measure has already passed the Senate and is scheduled for House consideration July 8. As approved by the former body, President Roosevelt would be author-

U. S. Prepares to Act on Soviet Request for War Supplies

Soviet Russia has made its first official appeal for material aid from the United States, it was disclosed yesterday by Sumner Welles, acting Secretary of State, who said the request had been referred to the appropriate Government agencies and indicated it would receive as favorable consideration as possible.

At his press conference Welles said that Constantine A. Oumansky, Russian Ambassador, called on him Monday to discuss the possibility of placing orders here for certain strategic supplies.

Welles said that Ambassador Oumansky did not mention the question of American aid under the Lease-Lend Act. He said it was his understanding that the supplies would be paid for by Russia.

He said the Russians have a considerable amount of ship tonnage available to transport the goods.

Although the State Department would not talk about the items that might go on the aid-to-Russia list, it was considered probable they would include oil, leather, wool, tires, machinery, road building equipment, trucks and automobiles. From $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 of goods originally consigned to Russia are tied up on docks on the East Coast. Now, however, it is probable the goods will be released.

Stolid Muscovites Used to Hardship

(Editor's note: Wade Werner, who pictures here for The Washington Post special news service how Moscow residents might react to Nazi raids, has had unusual opportunity to judge the military and psychological factors on both sides of the Russian-German conflict. He was in Germany when Hitler first began to make headway in his rise to power, later was stationed in Moscow, and was in Finland when Soviet forces invaded that country in 1939.)

By Wade Werner
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, July 1.—Now that Adolf Hitler has launched Germany on the great gamble that wrecked Napoleon—an invasion of Russia—what will happen in Moscow if his troops enter that city which his predecessor also entered only to see it go up in smoke?

Will the Russians again burn Moscow to frustrate a would-be conqueror? Will a conqueror, this time, too, find his victorious armies stranded in the midst of a Russian winter?

When Napoleon crossed the Niemen River in 1812 at the beginning of his gamble it was June 24. Hitler's troops entered Soviet territory June 22.

Napoleon's soldiers entered Moscow September 24. They had to walk, and Hitler's men move on wings and wheels.

Supposing German troops actually arrive at the gates of the Soviet capital about August 1. What will happen then? Will the civilian population already have been evacuated? Will the Russians burn the city to keep it out of Hitler's grasp, or as a taunting reminder of the fate of Napoleon?

It can be assumed that most of Moscow's population will remain on the job as long as possible. Moscow is the capital, and has many important factories.

This, of course, is a far different war from the war of Napoleon's day. It is possible that Moscow might be laid in ruins by Nazi bombing squadrons long before any armored columns could penetrate within 100 miles of the city.

No Strangers to Hardships

Moscow's people, however, are no strangers to hardship and danger. They have seen worse than war: they have seen bloody civil strife and famine and endured the nerve-gnawing of successive political purges.

It would be most astonishing if these stolid inhabitants of a cruelly overcrowded city, with their background of endurance through war, revolution, civil war and famine, suddenly should mill around in panic under the stress of this new war.

If the Soviet government should decide to evacuate Moscow, it is safe to assume they would trudge away in the assigned direction with little more excitement than if they were parading across Red Square on a big day of ceremony.

If, under air bombardment, they do not put up as brave a show, in their own way, as the inhabitants of indomitable London, they will certainly surprise many foreigners. They have a vast basic store of courage, and a sense of humor that functions under practically all conditions.

Win or lose, the common people of Russia are likely to take the hardships and terrors of war with as little panic and tragic complaining as any population in Europe.

If Hitler's armies succeed in crippling the Soviet military machine and Josef Stalin decides to call for a retreat into the deep interior of Russia, those who follow him will have need of their capacity to endure.

Factories Moved East

Many years ago Soviet leaders began preparing for the possibility that their outer defenses might be broken. Many of the new strategic factories designed to keep the armed forces supplied with tanks and planes and ammunition were built 700 miles or more east of Moscow, some of them behind the mountain barrier of the Urals.

Near these mountains, too, Soviet engineers have been developing new oil fields and refineries to insure a fuel supply for the army.

In 1939, the output of these new fields already exceeded 2,000,000 tons, according to Soviet statistics, but the country still depends on Caucasian fields for more than 90 per cent of its oil. Some of the new refineries are not scheduled to go into production until next year.

However, the Ukraine, which Hitler apparently wants as the breadbasket of his new order in Europe, happens to be the chief breadbasket and coal and iron area of Russia.

An attempt to keep going after the loss of the Ukraine and the Caucasian oil fields, at a time when the new industrial and oil producing areas of the interior still are in the early stages of development, therefore would mean heroic efforts and desperately lean years ahead.

Some military experts are of the opinion that Hitler will not bother to take Moscow; that he is interested only in crippling the Soviet war machine.

But Moscow is the capital, the Kremlin is the symbol of power and Lenin's Tomb in Red Square is the Holy Sepulchre of Communism, the most sacred spot in a godless realm.

Hitler, with his passion for Wagnerian climax, is hardly likely to pass up an opportunity to plunge the sword of Siegfried into the heart of the dragon of Bolshevism on the very spot most publicized as the heart of the Red empire.

Red Parachute Attacks Fail, Finland Says

By the Associated Press

Helsinki, July 1.—Finland announced today that Russia had launched parachute troop attacks against her during the past few days, but said the invaders had been "rendered harmless."

Finland for her part, according to information from the battle front, had not yet directed any full-scale offensive against the Soviet frontiers. Artillery fire and patrol thrusts apparently are being used chiefly to test the Russian defenses.

The government announced that the number and severity of Russian air attacks on Finland were decreasing. Seven Soviet planes were shot down Sunday, the announcement said.

The Finnish press praised a speech made in Chicago Sunday by former President Herbert Hoover in which he said "the ideological war to bring freedoms to the world died spiritually" when the United States pledged support to Russia.

The Finnish freighter Pluto was intercepted by British warships while en route from North America to Petsamo with a cargo of grain, and then bombed and sunk, the foreign office announced tonight.

The sinking occurred, the announcement said, while the 3,496-ton ship was being escorted toward Kirkwall by the British.

Gen. Wavell Sent to India

pears that Sir Archibald is being shelved. Whether this be true or not remains to be seen. According to all reports reaching here the Russian campaign is going badly and it is quite possible the Germans may have such successes against Russia that they will bring up against the British in India.

Academic Argument

It is even more possible that the Germans may swing south earlier and take up a campaign against Iran and Iraq, striking this time through Russia, since there is reason to believe that the Syrian gateway to those rich oil fields will be closed most shortly.

It is even possible that the defense of Iran and Iraq will be taken from the Middle East and be assigned to the Indian command. After all, the troops which won the war in Iraq came from India.

Therefore, it might be argued that Sir Archibald is being sent to new fields where his genius can be used. But that is an academic argument. In plain fact, it appears that Sir Archibald is being superseded after his great successes and great reverses. The innate sense of fair play in these islands is going to cause people to ask why.

Prime Minister Churchill, himself, said that it was not fair to praise a man in victory and condemn him in defeat; Churchill himself said the British people would give the same support to Sir Archibald in reverses as they gave him when he was winning. Now Churchill has moved him and has put another man in his place. This stark fact should, perhaps, be softened by circumstances, but people are apt to look at the fact and at both circumstances.

Softening Circumstances

There are many softening circumstances. Sir Archibald has directed five campaigns—Cyrenaica, Abyssinia, Syria, Greece and Iraq. In addition, he has directed one battle—Crete. And, Sir Archibald also has been a sort of victory as well as a general. He has had to consider all political aspects, plan restoration of native rule in Abyssinia, keep the Egyptians happy, deal with the Free French and do many things that should not fall within the province of the commander of military forces on varied fronts.

Sir Claude, apparently, will not have such problems, because it was announced officially today that the special service for which Capt. Oliver Lyttelton has been made minister of state is to deal with these problems on the spot as a representa-tive of the war cabinet. Capt. Syttelton has been made a member of the war cabinet, though he is going to the East.

Thus Sir Claude will be able to concentrate on purely military problems as Sir Archibald could not do.

Sir Archibald undoubtedly deserves a rest after bearing, perhaps, as heavy a burden as was ever borne by any British general. He has done a magnificent job with very little equipment. That is the opinion of most people here, particularly that of the army. Therefore there is bound to be resentment over this shift.

The resentment will be even more since it is reliably reported that Churchill and Sir Archibald have not been getting on very well. There is general belief that Churchill can work better with Sir Claude than he can with Sir Archibald.

EASTERN FRONT—Although a German parachute force dropped near the Russian naval base at Paldiski (1) was reported captured, the Nazis announced several gains in sectors of the eastern front. Riga (2) fell to the Germans and Nazi troops crossed the Dvina River (3) as another column reached the town of Dvinsk, apparently headed toward Leningrad (broken arrow). From Minsk (4) a German drive continued to near Smolensk (5) while another movement to the vicinity of Bobruisk (6) left the Germans a choice of striking southeast into the Ukraine (broken arrow) or pushing toward Moscow. In the south, Nazis said they were pursuing the Russians east of Lwow (7) while Russia said the drive from Luck (8) through Rowne had been checked

British Public, Before New Nazi Invasion, Favored More Friendly Relations With Soviet

By Dr. George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., July 1.—All during the months when Russia was the ally of Germany under the Nazi-Soviet pact, and when British statesmen despaired of ever improving British-Soviet relations, the great majority of British voters apparently never classed Russia as an outright enemy and never gave up hope of establishing more friendly relations with the U. S. S. R.

That fact is revealed in a public opinion survey conducted by the British Institute of Public Opinion, affiliate of the American Institute, as Britain and Russia now find themselves linked together in a common fight against naziism.

That the hatred of the British people toward Hitler and naziism never extended to include Russia in anywhere near the same degree is evidenced by the following survey.

British voters were asked:

"Would you like to see Great Britain and Soviet Russia be more friendly to each other?"

The poll was completed the last week in April—two months before the sudden outbreak of the Nazi-Soviet war—with these results:

April, 1941

|---|---|
| Yes | 70% |
| No | 13 |
| Undecided | 17 |

An earlier survey on the identical question was conducted by the British Institute in March, 1939—seven months before the start of the general war in Europe. At that time more than 80 per cent desired better relations with Russia. While there was thus some decline in pro-Russian sentiment between 1939 and 1941, nevertheless even before the Russians became the enemies of Hitler the overwhelming majority of Britons continued to favor Russo-British friendship.

The 1939 survey results follow:

|---|---|
| Britons desiring more friendly relations with Russia | 84% |
| Opposing more friendly relations | 7 |
| Undecided | 9 |

It is apparent from the above results that Sir Stafford Cripps, the British Ambassador to Moscow, who has long been an outspoken advocate of Russian friendship, had the support of a large segment of British public opinion in his task.

Before the start of the European War 22 months ago, there were reports that many Englishmen greatly preferred naziism to communism, fearing that communism would overrun Europe and eventually destroy the British capitalist system.

This view, however, was apparently not shared by the rank and file of British citizens. A survey in January, 1939, showed that a great majority would have preferred to see Russia win if the U. S. S. R. went to war against Germany.

"If Russia and Germany go to war, which side would you rather see win?"

|---|---|
| Russia | 85% |

U. S. Sentiment More Unfriendly

Sentiment in the United States, judging by a number of opinion surveys over the last few years, was never as friendly toward Russia as it apparently was in Britain. The Russian war against Finland found American voters overwhelmingly on the side of Finland and sympathy for Finland increased general public antagonism toward the U. S. S. R.

The important question now is what effect the sudden war between Russia and Germany will have on American opinion toward Russia, and, more particularly, whether it will make the country more anxious, or less anxious, to send aid to Britain.

The American Institute of Public Opinion is now engaged in a Nation-wide survey to determine the answer to these important questions. The survey was started within a day after the outbreak of the Nazi-Soviet war, and the results will be completed within the next week.

British public opinion is overwhelmingly opposed to a discussion of peace proposals between Britain and Germany at this time, according to the results of a survey by the British Institute of Public Opinion, affiliate of the American Institute, published in the London News Chronicle.

The survey asked British voters:

"Would you approve or disapprove if the British government were to discuss peace proposals with Germany now?"

|---|---|
| Approve | 12% |
| Disapprove | 82 |
| Undecided | 6 |

The vote of disapproval is the the highest ever recorded in a series of surveys on the same queston since the war began.

Greeks Dying Of Famine Beg for Wheat

By C. L. Sulzberger
Copyright by New York Times

Ankara, July 1.—Famine is now settling in all over Greece, according to authentic reports which have reached here and the refugee Greek government is understood to have appealed to Britain to create a loophole in the continental blockade in order to permit limited wheat shipments to its unhappy ally.

During the war, Greece never had more than two weeks' food reserves and subsisted largely on shipments convoyed under British naval protection. Not only has this reserve now disappeared, but the rich Macedonian and Thracian wheat lands have been taken from Greece and given to Bulgaria, ruined communications systems have not been restored, livestock has dwindled, and so many fishing boats were commandeered by the British for their retreat and by the Germans for the attack on Crete, that the supply of fish is unusually low.

Cholera is understood to have broken out in the Pireaus. Numerous cases of children dying of hunger have now been reported. Women, waiting outside the tragically empty stores for their tiny bread rations, are frequently seen to faint from weakness. Underfed horses have from time to time dropped dead before their trucks and dogs and cats lie dead in the streets of Athens.

The lack of bread is the greatest disaster in Greece. Bread is an absolute necessity to the Greek peasant, who has little else but olives, cheese and fish to live on. Today the daily bread ration in Athens, Patras and Salonika is 60 drams—one-tenth the peacetime norm required by the Greek workman.

Nazis Slowed On Minsk Front

Russian announcement said, although they were far superior in numbers to the Russian defenders.

The loss of Lwow was admitted in a single clipped sentnece: "Our troops, retreating according to plan, and in accordance with orders, left Lwow."

Scornful of Rumanians

The Russian communique heaped scorn on the Rumanian forces on the Bessarabian front, saying they had been unable to gain and that Rumanian generals "duped by Hitler were cruelly disillusioned."

The Russians reiterated the charge that the Rumanian allies of Germany had been sent into battle ahead of German units, to face certain death, with German machine-guns trained on their backs to make sure they did not falter.

This southernmost front apparently was the quietest of all. It was stated, however, that Russian planes again bombed Constanta, Rumania's Black Sea port, and there were reports that seven German submarines had been sunk in the Black Sea and the Baltic.

The biggest Nazi thrust continued to be concentrated in the central area.

Poised At Bobruisk

The main German push to the south and east of Minsk, a drive which the Russians emphasized was by "superior enemy forces" reached the vicinity of Bobruisk and was poised there either to wheel northeast with other columns striking at Moscow or south down the Dnepr River basin into the Ukraine to join forces with German troops striking into the rich wheat region from the Luckrowne area.

In that bitter sector the advance of Nazi tanks was stemmed, the Red communique said by heavy Russian counterattacks.

In the Minsk and Bobruisk zone, every weapon of the Red armory—infantry, artillery, tanks and the Red air fleet—was thrown into a mighty struggle to hold the line.

The extent of the German penetration toward Murmansk, the vital port standing at the western end of Russia's northern sea route, was not disclosed, the Soviet command merely observing:

". . . The enemy succeeded in making slight pressure on our troops but his further advance was halted and heavy losses were inflicted on him by the onslaught of our land forces and aviation."

To the south of that bleak area of white nights, the Germans were acknowledged to have brought up fresh troops in the region of Dvinsk for the march against Leningrad, Russia's second city, and Red bombers were in continuous and heavy action in an effort to break up an apparently growing German concentration.

During the day Moscow itself had a 55-minute air raid alarm, but no bombs fell. The warning came at 1:50 a. m. and women of air-raid defense squads stood guard for fires or blackout violations until the all-clear sounded.

Nazis Take Riga, Penetrate Central Red Front

Aside from the advance to the Berezina at the center, these were other successes announced in what was termed an unaltered march to the east:

To the north, on the Baltic front—a crossing of the Dvina was forced on a wide front between Dvinsk and Riga, the Soviet naval base in old Latvia, and bitter Soviet counter-attacks uniformly smashed.

To the south, on the Polish front, Red troops were in flight eastward on both sides of Lwow, base of a drive on the Russian Ukraine, and an unstated number of Soviet divisions were surrounded behind the town itself.

Those in retreat were said to be clogging the highways, two or three columns often trying to use a single road and providing massed targets for devastating attacks by the Nazi air force. D.N.B. said 322 Soviet warplanes were shot down in air battles Tuesday.

Whether the Berezina was actually crossed was not stated, the German command's secrecy being characteristic of operations of armored units sent far ahead of the main forces to sap enemy resistance.

The river, east of Minsk, is a tributary of the Dnepr and a milestone on Napoleon's retreat from Moscow. Napoleon managed to cross it just above Borizov but with enormous losses which marked the dissolution of his army.

(The Russian command acknowledged that the Germans had reached the vicinity of Bobruisk, which is on the Berezina 90 miles southeast of Minsk.)

Miles behind this central sector, two Soviet armies said unofficially to number about 500,000 men still struggled fiercely to smash through the ring which the Germans had forged from Bialystok and Minsk.

This vast ring is now broken down into three smaller ones and German artillery and warplanes are steadily pounding at the entrapped Russians. The Russian defenses, according to information here, are slowly crumbling.

"Attempts of the enemy to break out, which often were made in formations of 8 to 12 ranks deep and supported by the heaviest tanks, collapsed with unusually heavy bloody losses," the high command reported.

The Soviet situation was said to resemble that of the Poles in September, 1939, when more than 100,000 Polish prisoners were taken and the backbone of Polish resistance broken.

The Luftwaffe especially is being used to break Russian resistance, late dispatches reporting the destruction by aerial bombs of five freight trains, a munitions train, eight guns and several hundred trucks.

Dive Bombers Busy

In the Baltic area, too, the German air force was declared destroying communications far to the rear, apparently trying to trap Red forces retreating near Riga. Dive bombers attacked in serried squadrons.

Russian resistance everywhere was described as furious, however, and the authoritative commentary Dienst aus Deutschland attributed this to Russian propaganda suggesting that the Germans would show the Russian soldier no mercy.

The numerically superior Russian forces surrounded between Bialystok and Minsk have the protection of heavy forts, German radio reporters said. As a result the brunt of the fighting is waged by infantry at close quarters supported by light and heavy artillery and howitzers.

In order to win ground and close the jaws of the trap, German infantry stormed the Russians repeatedly but just as often had to fight off counterattacks, the reporters said.

One reporter recorded his observations from a high point, saying he could see a hot and bloody battle below.

"Many hundreds of Russian dead and wounded are lying on the field of battle as thickly as sown seed," he said at one point.

Knox Speech Draws Fire of Senators

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

Secretary Knox's call for swift use of the United States Navy to drive "the German menace" from the Atlantic drew bitter denunciation yesterday from Capitol isolationists.

Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee, saw "shocking implications" in the Cabinet officer's Boston speech Monday night.

If the speech reflects the views of the President, Congress and the country "have been grievously misled," Walsh said. If Knox's "impassioned declarations" did not square with the policies of Mr. Roosevelt, the Senator continued, "then surely he is subject to censure for being so disregardful of the proprieties and the obligations that his office imposes upon him.'

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, said Knox "should resign or be thrown out of office."

Only One Supporter

The Secretary's speech was sharply criticized by Senator Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina, chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, who said the United States would be courting war if it followed the recommendations made by Knox.

With neither the House nor Senate in session, there were no floor speeches for or against the Knox policies, but at least a dozen legislators issued statements on the address.

The lone Senatorial voice raised in support of the address was that of Claude Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, who said the Navy Secretary was wise in urging more active aid to Britain while the "God-given chance" remains for a blow from the West while the Reich is fighting Russia. Pepper said:

"Time and history will prove that Secretary Knox is more than right. If we pass up this opportunity, we will pay for it dearly. The Secretary has stated the blunt truth. It is not pleasing to hear, but neither is it pleasant for a patient to be told that he will have to take drastic treatment."

George Refuses Comment

Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, head of the Foreign Relations Committee, who said on the Senate floor Saturday he "profoundly hopes" the United States will not be involved in the war, declined to comment on the speech.

Walsh said the country is "resentful that for months so many persons in high places in official life of Washington have been inflaming the public mind and striving to find an opportunity or an excuse to get our country into war."

"War ought to be the last resort for our country," he said. The Knox speech, he asserted, "counsels open warfare, either with or without the formalities of a declaration of war."

Wheeler accused Knox of "deception" in his testimony when the Naval Affairs Committee was considering his confirmation as Navy Secretary a year ago.

Cites Knox Testimony

The Montana isolationist cited the following passage from Knox's testimony:

Senator Holt: You would not favor sending any of our boys to Europe under any circumstances in the present crisis?

Knox: That is right.

Holt: Even if the vital interests of the United States can be served by sending our boys over there?

Knox: Let me say this again, so there will be no doubt about it. My position has consistently been from the first that we ought to aid them in a moral and economic way, never in manpower.

Holt: If the moral and economic way would not be sufficient for them to win, would you feel that we should go the rest of the way?

Knox: No.

Wheeler declared that "a man who will deceive the Senate of the United States in order to be confirmed to office is not fit to be Secretary of Navy or to hold any public office."

A Qualified Indorsement

From House members there came one qualified indorsement of the Knox speech. Representative Izac (Democrat), of California, World War naval hero, said:

"Strategically, from a naval and military standpoint, the Secretary is absolutely right in advocating that we should bring to bear on the common enemy everything we can while he is busy elsewhere. But we are in a position now where, for political and economic reasons, it might not be wise to get into the war actively."

Other comments on the Knox speech follow:

Representative Van Zandt (Republican), of Pennsylvania: "If Knox wants to shoot, we ought to give him a gun. A declaration of war would not get 25 votes in the House."

Representative Ludlow (Democrat), of Indiana: "I believe 95 per cent of the people are against the Knox proposal. There is less reason now than ever to get into the war."

Representative Fish (Republican), of New York, ranking minority member of the Foreign Affairs Committee: "If Secretary Knox puts our Navy into a shooting war, without the approval of Congress, he should be impeached immediately."

Peace Group Fails to Act On Knox Talk

Forty members of the Congressional nonintervention group, meeting last night, discussed the issue raised by Navy Secretary Knox in his Monday night speech, but took no definite action on it.

Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, spokesman for the group, said the members had discussed the "possibility" of drafting a resolution condemning the Navy Secretary's proposition that the Navy "strike" to drive the Nazis out of the Atlantic, on the grounds that it proposed "taking this country into war without the approval of Congress."

Two group members reported they had heard a member of the House—not allied with the nonintervention ists—was planning to introduce a resolution in Congress calling for impeachment of Knox.

"These two members thought it unwise to get into personalities and away from the main issue—that of keeping the United States out of war," Taft said. "There was no further discussion of this report.

"There was a good deal of resentment against Knox's speech, and it was the sentiment of the group that under no circumstances should the Administration attempt to take this country into war without first submitting the issue to the Congress."

Taft said, however, because many members of the group will be out of town until next week, no definite action was taken.

How Rome Views Speech

Rome, July 1 (AP).—Virginio Gayda, Fascist editorial spokesman, said today that Secretary Knox's speech advocating immediate use of the United States Navy to clear the Atlantic showed that "the bellicose Washington Government intends to enter, of its own initiative, the conflict against the Axis powers."

"So whatever happens," he wrote in Il Giornale d'Italia, "it will stand again as made definitely clear that entrance into the war of the United States Government belongs exclusively to, and arises from, deliberate initiative, and it cannot be justified by any later excuse of pretended aggression by the Axis powers nor any pretext of this or that incident."

Gayda then repeated the Axis thesis that American help to Britain will be too little and too late and declared that, with the defeat of Russia, both Germany and Japan would be free to tackle America.

Vichy to Permit Volunteers To Fight Soviet

Vichy, July 1 (AP).—The French government said today it would permit Frenchmen to cross into German-occupied France to join a French volunteer corps being recruited to fight with Germans against Russia and declared it had "no objection" against formation of the unit.

Indicating that it washed its hands of the affair, the government said the action in no way affected French unity and that "these projects can be realized only after agreement with occupation authorities."

The government was said to be taking no initiative in the matter aside from allowing Frenchmen to cross the frontier to "fight against communism." Reports from Paris indicated several thousand Frenchmen had volunteered. Twenty of the 250 Russians interned in Vichy yesterday were released today.

All Axis Nations Recognize Nanking, Tokyo Announces

By Otto D. Tolischus
Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo, July 1.—The Japanese government announced today that Germany, Italy, Slovakia, Rumania and Croatia had extended formal recognition to national government of China at Nanking, which is headed by Wang Ching-Wei.

(From their capitals Hungary and Bulgaria also announced recognition.)

The only countries to recognize it before this were Japan and Manchukuo.

Announcement of the long-expected but long-delayed Axis action, issued by the board of information, said:

"The step is the source of profound gratification to Japan. It is a telling blow to those who, having not yet realized the great ideal of the East Asian new order, continue the folly of resistance against Japan," and is "a great step forward in the establishment of the new world order."

The Axis action was made known to Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka by Reich Ambassador Gen. Eugen Ott toward the end of the Japanese government's deliberatonsi on the policy it should adopt toward the Russo-German conflict. This policy is believed to have been finally decided upon at the cabinet meeting today. However, it is, apparently, still subject to review by the privy council, which postponed its plenary session, scheduled for tomorrow, to Thursday.

All this, together with the language of the foregoing announcement and the fact that the press is beginning to talk about "government measures to deal with the new situation," might suggest that important action is at hand in collaboration with the Axs powers.

Despite the blow that has been dealt to the prestige of the Konoye cabinet by Hitler's latest "surprise," Japan cannot be expected to give up either her triple alliance of her "immutable aim" for the construction of a new order in East Asia and the world which has become as much a part of the daily political language of Japan as "democracy" in America.

Chungking, China, July 1 (AP).—China tonight severed relations with Germany and Italy and recalled her diplomatic and consular personnel from those countries.

Young Seeks Board To Fix Fair Price For Dairy Produce

Utica, N. Y., July 1 (AP).—Appeal for creation of a temporary mediation board to determine a fair price for dairy farmers "under existing emergency conditions" came today from Owen D. Young, retired industrialist, in the first day of a three-State milk stoppage designed to increase producers' returns.

While deploring withholding of "goods or services needed for defense," the former board chairman of General Electric Co. asserted in a statement from his nearby Van Hornesville Farm the present Federal-State Milk marketing pact governing the New York City market, "unfortunately does not provide as it should for such emergency action as is now required."

The statement climaxed the opening of a "holiday" which brought dumping of more than 30,000 pounds of milk and claims of the withholding Dairy Farmers Union to curtailment of 15 to 20 per cent of the normal 4,000,000-quart daily milk supply to the New York City market.

Allies Rout Vichy Column In Desert Fight

By the Associated Press

Jerusalem, July 1.—In a desert battle northeast of Palmyra in Syria, British and Free French mechanized cavalry and an Arab legion desert patrol broke up a French mobile column today, capturing 4 officers and 60 men, a British military spokesman stated tonight.

Of 17 French vehicles in the column, including 8 armored cars, less than half escaped, the spokesman said. The British and Free French casualties were put at one killed and one wounded.

In other Syrian sectors only patrol activity was reported.

The Tel Aviv newspaper Omer today reported an attempt on the life of Gen. Henri Dentz commander of the French forces, at Beiruf on June 25.

The newspaper said an unidentified man fired one shot as Gen. Dentz entered his car, the bullet going wide. The assailant escaped.

Envoy Sees Inonu

Copyright by New York Times

Ankara, July 1.—Jacques Benoist-Mechin, Marshal Petain's personal messenger to Ankara, was received for an hour's conference with President Ismet Inonu late this afternoon and will leave for Vichy tomorrow morning.

Benoist-Mechin is understood to have delivered Marshal Petain's written message, the contents of which are unknown. There are some reports that he requested Turkey to permit the passage of war materiels to Vichy troops in Syria. There are other reports suggesting that he is making preliminary arrangements for an eventful evacuation of the army in Syria.

1,453 Planes Downed

Cairo, July 1 (INS).—New gains for British imperial forces in the Damascus and coastal sectors of Syria were reported in Cairo tonight as an official announcement disclosed that 1,453 enemy warplanes had been shot down in the middle east during the past six months.

While British bombers again battered the Italian-African seaport of Tripoli, other units bombed Syrian airdromes.

In East Africa, another announcement said, 2,782 Italian troops surrendered following British occupation of Ghimbi.

Planes Dangerous

Bucharest, July 1.—The inhabitants of Bucharest were warned today by the government not to touch or go near crashed enemy planes because of the danger of explosion of bombs inside.

Congress to Quit Until Monday

Both Houses of Congress were in recess yesterday and leaders promised that no business would be transacted when they reconvene tomorrow. Then Congress will quit until Monday to have a full weekend for the Fourth of July holiday.

Senate leaders were working out a program by which the Senate may meet only twice each week for the next several weeks. The House, however, must give early consideration to the new revenue bill.

L. S. U. Gets New Head

2 Soldiers Die in Crash With Bee-Laden Truck

Salinas, Calif., July 1 (AP).—Two soldiers were killed in a collision with a bee-laden truck today.

Half of the load of 90 hives of bees was knocked from the truck. Angry bees turned the air black, tied up traffic, delayed rescue of the injured, and temporarily halted movement of open Army trucks loaded with soldiers headed for Fort Lewis, Wash. Sergt. Carl D. Sheeon, 23, of the Eighty-fourth Infantry training at Camp Roberts, and Corpl. Lloyd Balcolm were killed.

City Milk Price Hiked

Hagerstown, Md., June 30.—Effective tomorrow, the retail price of milk will be increased 1 cent, dairies serving Hagerstown announced.

Roosevelt Still 'Hopes' That U. S. Will Be Able to Stay Out of War

avoid war, not a flat statement that it could stay out.

The President emphasized that he had been giving that same answer ever since the dramatic press conference of September 1, 1939, the morning that Germany invaded Poland.

"Is that still your answer?" was the next question.

Mr. Roosevelt replied that the same answer still held good.

Knox, whose views on foreign policy have often been more extreme than the President's, had said that "Now is the time to strike."

Asked whether he agreed with this latest statement by his Navy Secretary, the President said after a pause that he did not think there was any comment he could make.

Just as the President's hopes for peace contrasted with Knox's call for immediate action, so was there a contrast between the President's statement this morning and speeches he has made earlier this summer.

Early in May, dedicating the Woodrow Wilson Birthplace in Staunton, Va., Mr. Roosevelt warned that Americans have fought before to defend democracy and would be willing to do so again.

Later, in his fireside chat of May 21, Mr. Roosevelt outspokenly told Germany that the United States would fight to keep Nazlism out of the Atlantic.

Avoids Warlike Talk

Then, in a message to Congress on the sinking of the Robin Moor, the President declared that this country will not yield to Naziism.

His every effort today, however, was apparently to avoid making any comment that could be construed as warlike.

Discussing polls of war sentiment, the President said that there is only one answer to such straw votes.

Of course, we are all against war, he remarked, but added that such questions were like asking a man if he favors sin.

To illustrate his point, the President recounted the oft-told anecdote about the time President Calvin Coolidge was asked by Mrs. Coolidge the topic of a sermon he had just heard. The preacher discussed sin, Coolidge is said to have answered.

"What did he say about sin?" the former President was asked.

"He was against it," was the reply attributed to Coolidge.

Wife Gets a Ballot

The anecdote was part of comments that Mr. Roosevelt made on a postcard poll being conducted in the Twenty-sixth Congressional District, the President's home district, by its Congressman, Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican), often an opponent of the President on foreign policy.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had not received one of the ballots, but his wife had and she was against sin, too.

Fish's ballots, being mailed to voters in Dutchess, Putnam and Orange counties, N. Y., phrase the question this way:

"The United States should:

"Enter the war . . ."

"Stay out of the war . . ."

Only One Answer

Plainly indicating that he would place little reliance on the outcome of such polls, the President said that there is, of course, only one answer to questions of that type, namely that one opposes war.

Early returns from the sample ballot, according to Fish, show a 9-to-1 majority in favor of staying out of war.

The President avoided a direct answer to a request for comment on criticisms of the operation of the defense program that were voiced last week in a report of the House Committee on Military Affairs.

Instead of supplying the comment, Mr. Roosevelt told the questioner to be specific about any charges that were made in the report, and he in turn fired his own questions at the reporter—who, when, what, where.

Told that the report advocated a single responsible head for the arms production program, Mr. Roosevelt's only reply was the question—why?

Dividing his time between swimming, resting and working, the President has extended a long weekend at his estate here into what may well become a ten-day absence from Washington.

Weather Is Too Hot

He said today he did not know whether his scheduled Nation-wide radio address July 4 would be delivered here or in Washington, but disclosed that if it takes place in Hyde Park he will speak from the President's room of the new library he dedicated yesterday.

The Chief Executive declined to say whether the famous Army bombsight, said to be linked to the recent round-up of spies in New York City, was still a secret. The weather was too hot for such questions, he said.

French North Africa to Get U. S. Supplies

Copyright by New York Times

The first shipment of essential supplies to French colonies in North Africa under an agreement reached by the State Department was scheduled to get under way last night with the sailing of the French freighter Ile de Nourmontier from New York for Casablanca. Another will be sent before the end of the week on the French ship Ile D'Ouessant from Baltimore.

Simultaneously the French vessels Ile Dere and Leopold, which carried Red Cross supplies to unoccupied France several months ago are sailing from North Africa with strategic materials for the United States.

The four ships will continue in this service or be replaced by others as long as the agreement stands under a plan for having two sailings each way simultaneously on round trip schedules that will take about a month.

The agreement was made in the course of negotiations with representatives of the French authorities in North Africa and had the approval of the Vichy government. The British participated in the negotiations, so were fully aware of the arrangements.

Welles Reveals Details

Details of the agreement were announced yesterday by Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State. The arrangement reflected an improvement in relations between the Washington and Vichy governments and the announcement was followed by a call of Gaston Henry-Haye, the French Ambassador, on Welles. It was the first time the Ambassador had called at the department since the coolness developed between the two governments consequent upon the announcement of the policy of collaboration between Vichy and Berlin.

The American Red Cross authorized its representative in Cairo yesterday to release from the organization's stock in Egypt to the Red Crescent, the Egyptian Red Cross Society, 30,000 bags of flour, 1,444 cases of milk and large quantities of foodstuffs for the benefit of 250,000 refugees who have fled Alexandria to escape air attacks. Thousands are sleeping along highways in mosques, schools and factories.

Ralph Bain, the Red Cross representative there, estimated from his own observation that there were 150,000 "completely" destitute. At Damanhoor, the largest concentration point, some 80,000 have been crowded into housing centers.

Navicerts From British

The vessels which will carry supplies under the arrangement with the Vichy government have navicerts issued by the British, and Germany has been notified by the Vichy government of the sailings so that there will be no interference from submarines. The ships will go well lighted and marked.

One immediate result of the agreement was the release by the British of the French tanker Scheherazade which was bound from the United States for Casablanca with oil but was seized by the British and taken into Bermuda. The tanker had sailed under the original arrangement which broke down when the collaboration was announced between Vichy and Berlin and the Germans occupied Syrian airdromes. Britain released the navicert and seized the ship.

The tanker will return to this country and take more oil to Casablanca as needed, replacing at such times one of the other vessels.

Welles described the arrangement as a far-sighted useful economic interchange at this time. He emphasized that the aid was being sent under strict guarantees that none of the materials would be used for military purposes. If the guarantees were violated, he said, the arrangement would end automatically.

To Keep Wheels Turning

It is designed to keep the economic wheels turning in North Africa so that there will be less danger of a political breakdown and to obtain materials for the United States.

The first ships from here are taking clothing, including cotton used for burial garments by the Arabs, tea, sugar and similar miscellaneous products. Other shipments will include not only tea and sugar but machinery, occasionally oil, and everyday articles of regular commerce. In return the United States will receive cork, olive oil, red squill (a raticide), essential oils for perfumes, gum arabic, salt, flourine, tartar and sheep casings.

Farley, 'Retired' From Politics, Asks For Texas Returns

Indianapolis, July 1 (AP).—James A. Farley, former Democratic National chairman, stopped in Indianapolis today for a few minutes while en route from Texas to New York and although he's out of politics officially his first question concerned politics.

He asked immediately about the latest returns from the Texas Senatorial election.

Farley stopped off at Uvalde to see John Nance Garner, Vice President during President Roosevelt's first two terms.

"Tell everyone I ain't mad with nobody," Farley quoted Garner as saying.

Marion Talley Gets Divorce, Child; Absolved of Charges

WINS CHILD'S CUSTODY—Marion Talley and daughter, Betty Ruth

By the United Press

Hollywood, July 1.—Marion Talley, the former Metropolitan Opera star, was granted a divorce today from her one-time music instructor Adolph Eckstrom.

The court also awarded her sole custody of their child, 6-year-old Susan April Eckstrom.

Superior Judge Ingall W. Bull granted the divorce after a bitter trial of nearly two months, in which Eckstrom, a New York vocal teacher, also sought Susan's custody.

Miss Talley who did not see her child from the time she was born until she was 5, said she had no immediate plans. She said she definitely would not return to the stage.

"I want to come to know Susan, at last," she said.

Eckstrom, in his counter-suit, had charged Miss Talley with "conduct unbecoming a mother" alleging that she had improper associations with eight men, among them Edgar Bergen, the ventriloquist, and Film Director Aubrey Scotto.

Judge Bull said he found the "charges of immorality and improper and adulterous conduct" charged by Eckstrom to be "false and untrue."

"To make such charges without evidence to substantiate them doesn't meet with the approval of this court," he said.

The judge said he was "not impressed with many of the witnesses of the defense.'

"They were too anxious, in my opinion, to volunteer any suggestion or thought that might tend to injure the plaintiff," he said. "I also observed that certain proffered evidence by the defense which would tend to reflect on the character of the plaintiff was mostly matter through which suspicion might be aroused."

The court said that such charges as made by Eckstrom had been "injurious to this child and the child's future." He said further that Eckstrom's allegations, which he described as false, had "besmirched the reputation" of Miss Talley.

Judge Bull granted Eckstrom only the privilege of "reasonable visitation," conditioned by a warning that should Eckstrom "harass or annoy or try to besmirch" the character of Miss Talley, he would find it his duty to restrain him.

Navy Yards Fire 38 Declared 'Dangerous' in Defense Jobs

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, July 1.—Twenty-eight civilian workers were discharged today from employment in the Mare Island Navy Yard at San Francisco and ten from the New York Navy Yard, Brooklyn, as part of a continuous process of weeding out all who might be potentially dangerous to national defense. No spy activity was uncovered at either Navy yard, it was said.

In the meantime the Government began today the presentation of evidence to the June term of the Federal grand jury, at the Federal Building at Washington and Johnson Streets, Brooklyn, concerning the activities of a Nazi spy ring rounded up by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Seven of the 32 persons arrested have pleaded guilty.

The discharges by the United States Navy followed intensive investigation by naval intelligence officers of the records of all civilian employes of the Navy yards and shipbuilding yards, all of whom submit to fingerprinting in applying for work.

Although it was emphasized that no men had been detected in sabotage or espionage activities, either here or in San Farncisco, the men were dropped "in the interests of national defense" according to officials of the New York Navy Yard, and "because of subversive activities and associations," in the words of Rear Admiral John W. Greenslade, commandant of the Twelfth Naval District, in San Francisco.

Naval spokesmen explained that the 19,500 civilian workers at the Mare Island Yard had been hired under urgency and that it was only natural that a few of them "could not be trusted to work around military secrets."

The Navy did not disclose the names of those discharged, and spokesmen said they would not be blacklisted from private employment. The investigation will continue, they said, and further discharges can be expected.

Drivers Wanted For Entertainers

The District Defense Council last night issued an emergency call for automobiles and volunteer drivers to transport entertainers to nearby military posts.

Troupes of dancers, singers and musicians travel several times a week to Fort Belvoir, Fort Meade and Fort Myer to entertain both selectees and Regular Army men.

A shortage of transportation facilities prompted the call for volunteers. All car owners and drivers were urged to register at the Central Volunteer Bureau, 501 Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest.

750,000 21-Year-Olds Sign for Draft

Heaviest registration here was at downtown Board No. 9, where 378 candidates saw their names inscribed on the new salmon-colored registration cards. The lightest turnout was at suburban Board 22, where only 63 men appeared—a surprisingly small number in proportion to the number registering last October.

With the attention of the Nation focused on the registration of the 21-year-olds, considered prime Army material because of their youth, military, draft, and Congressional leaders including Deputy Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey, Senator Reynolds, chairman of the Military Affairs Committee, and Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, local selection chief, toured the registration precincts in the morning. They were accompanied by District Commissioner C. W. Kutz.

Next step in the "processing" of the new registrants for Army service will be the shuffling of their cards, after which the cardboards will be numbered serially in preparation for a national lottery. The shuffling and numbering will take place within the next ten days.

In the lottery goldfish drawing, expected soon thereafter, order numbers for the 21-year-olds will be determined and these will be integrated with the numbers of men who signed up last October.

Registers on Birthday

Men interviewed as they signed up at registration centers here showed almost universal equanimity over the prospect of Army calls.

Fred A. Martinson, of 1606 Twentieth Street Northwest, who came here eight months ago to take a job as a War Department clerk, disclosed it was his twenty-first birthday as he registered at Adams School, headquarters of Local Board No. 8.

"This is as good a way as any to celebrate the birthday, I guess. I'm not going to claim any 'necessary occupation' deferment, and I'm ready to go whenever the time comes."

At the National Guard Armory, where out-of-town men signed, Mrs. Ruth Berryman, a registrar by virtue of her position as president of George E. Killeen Post of the American Legion, proudly registered her son, Monroe Dixon, also of 7 Beach Avenue, Takoma Park, Md. Standing alongside was the youth's grandmother, Mrs. Evelyn Copeland, also a registrar and president of Treasury Post No. 35 of the Legion.

He Plans to Enlist

Young Dixon, Capital Transit Co. employe and son of a World War aviator said he would not wait for the draft but would enlist.

Among those registering at Woodrow Wilson High School were Philip and Francis Donaldson, the twin sons of William J. Donaldson, superintendent of the House press gallery. Typical of the general sentiment, the twins asserted: "If you're going to go you're going to go . . . it's O. K. with us. After all it's for the country."

One of those to register in the morning at National Guard Armory was Melville N. Collins, of 2714 Thirty-sixth Street Northwest, son of Representative Ross Collins, of Mississippi, chairman of the House Committee on War Department appropriations, and long active in District affairs.

The registration breakdown by local boards follows: No. 1, 169; No. 2, 148; No. 3, 83; No. 4, 161; No. 5, 188; No. 6, 227; No. 7, 267; No. 8, 282; No. 9, 378; No. 10, 212; No. 11, 277; No. 12, 226; No. 13, 246; No. 14, 229; No. 15, 210; No. 16, 89; No. 17, 210; No. 18, 239; No. 19, 182; No. 20, 204; No. 21, 247; No. 22, 63; No. 23, 232; No. 24, 135. No. 25, 304; at the Armory, 322; in hospitals and other institutions, 35. Total, 5,518.

Troops Fight Tennessee 'War' In Tiptop Physical Shape

By the Associated Press

With the Army in Tennessee, July 1.—Army physicians said today that the soldier sick rate and number of deaths was "surprisingly low during the Tennessee war games ended Saturday.

Col. Paul W. Gibson, Second Army medical commander, disclosed that 12 died during the four weeks of maneuvers and, he declared, "this was lower than the number that probably would have died in a civilian population of 77,000."

Eight of the deaths were from accidents, three from illnesses and one a suicide.

Hospital records showed that at no time during June were more than 2 per cent, or 1,540 men, inactive because of sickness.

A total of 43 injuries serious enough to send men to the hospital were listed and 16 of these were in the Second Armored Division which transported armored vehicles to the maneuvers from Fort Benning, Ga.

"The record was remarkable considering the number of vehicles traveling in the area and the conditions, including blackouts, under which the men worked," said Col. Gibson.

Men 28 and Over Are Deferred

ized to defer men 28 or over. The House Military Affairs Committee amended the bill to make such deferment mandatory.

"Congressional leaders have now publicly stated that there is no difference of opinion as to the merits of the age provisions of the bill to defer men who have attained the age of 28 years on or before July 1, 1941," Hershey said in his telegram. "Congressional leaders have requested the deputy director to take immediate action with respect to the deferment of such men.

"As the bill is now written, men who have attained age of 28 on or before July 1 will be subject to discharge if inducted on or after July 1.

"Based upon such requests, and the statements made that the age provisions of the bill will be passed in substantially their present form and the retroactive provisions for discharge, you will inform Selective Service agencies in your State that the induction of such men shall be postponed for a period of 30 days pending final action on the bill.

"In the event the bill is not passed such men will be subject to induction in the normal manner upon the expiration of the period of postponement."

Although the action just about halved the number of men registered last fall, the cut in the potential number of registrants was not proportionately as great. Most of the men inducted so far have been in their early 20s, as large numbers in the older group have been deferred for reasons of dependency, physical disabilities or employment in defense work.

Some officials have estimated that the 750,000 young men registered yesterday would provide about the same number of soldiers as the millions now deferred would have provided.

The deferment, however, is for peacetime only. In time of war they could be called immediately.

In another action affecting Army man-power the War Department yesterday announced that hereafter only privates who have clearly demonstrated ability warranting promotion or whose specialist training is such that their retention is desirable will be accepted for another 3-year enlistment.

Army officials pointed out that with the Selective Service system, the matter of quantities of men is no longer a problem but that the quality of the 3-year "professionals" is highly important.

Roosevelt Signs Bills to Spend Over 3½ Billions

Hyde Park, N. Y., July 1 (AP).—President Roosevelt signed five appropriation bills tonight and thereby added more than $3,500,000,000 to the Nation's most gigantic spending program.

The bills which became law tonight provided $910,000,000 for relief, $1,195,935,780 for the Labor Department and Federal Security Agency, $1,340,000,000 for the Agriculture Department and its program of aid for farmers, $24,567,000 for the expenses of Congress, and $54,795,000 for the District of Columbia.

Also signed by the Chief Executive tonight was legislation to extend the life of the Commodity Credit Corporation's for two years and increase its crop-loan fund to $2,650,000,000.

Plane Crash on Beach Kills First Glamour Girl, Magnate

By International News Service

Matunuck, R. I., July 1.—Eleanor "Cookie" Young, the first of America's swing era glamour girls, and Nicholas F. Embiricos, handsome young millionaire shipping magnate, were killed today when their private plane en route from Newport to New York, crashed during a heavy fog.

Their light cabin plane, with Embiricos at the controls, plunged into the surf off Carpenters Beach while trying to make a forced landing.

Embiricos 32, was killed instantly. Miss Young, still alive, was hauled out of the wreckage by Coast Guardsmen who swam through the raging surf. She died an hour later in a Wakefield hospital without regaining consciousness. Physicians said the 22-year-old girl had suffered a fractured skull, broken jaw and internal injuries.

The pair died on their second attempt to reach New York through the thick fog that had blanketed the Rhode Island coast for about 20 hours. They were turned back late Monday and decided to try again today at noon.

About an hour later, Coast Guardsmen heard a plane circle over Carpenters Beach three times. It emerged from the fog blanket near the water. It crashed when a dipping wing was smashed by a high wave.

Miss Young was the first of a line of glamour girls, setting the fashion for Brenda Frazier who was married Monday to John "Shipwreck" Kelly and is now en route to Honolulu on a honeymoon.

The names of Miss Young and Embiricos frequently had been linked together romantically. Both previously had married, Miss Young having been the wife of Robert "Bunty" Bacon, jr., of Boston and New York. They eloped in 1939 and were divorced last year at Sun Valley, Idaho. Embiricos was separated from his wife.

Miss Young made her debut in 1936 at Newport. The party given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Young, was one of the most sensational ever known.

Shortly after her debut, a kidnap threat was made to her family. William J. Butler, 18, son of a Brooklyn policeman, was arrested and tried for extorting $10,000 from the Youngs. He was sent to Federal prison for two years.

Embiricos operated shipping lines to England and Greece.

National Guard May Be 'Streamlined' In Most Drastic Shakeup of Its History

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

Not long after Congress extends its time in Federal service beyond one year, the National Guard appears due for the most drastic shake-up in its history.

The 18 National Guard square divisions probably will be streamlined into triagular divisions to conform with those of the Regular Army.

Thousands of National Guard officers likely will be returned to civil life or transferred within the Army.

The National Guard, as now known, may disappear forever, absorbed in the Federal forces and shorn of any State control, leaving the States with so-called Home Guards.

Slicing down the guard divisions from square to triangular appears an almost certain result of retaining them indefinitely in Federal service, despite the recognized special mission contemplated for divisions heavy in man power and able to hold long fronts. The War Department is known to be dissatisfied with the results of National Guard training so far and is being heckled from many sides, including Capitol Hill, to trim the Army down, to speed it up and increase its fire power in relation to its size.

Two Methods Considered

Should that be done, two methods of bringing it about seem to be balanced against each other. One, which is known to have been under War Department consideration, would be to take from each division its least promising infantry regiment and send it home to revert to State control, or at least to serve as a home guard in Federal service. In that case, excess artillery, engineer, quartermaster and medical troops would be turned over to the General Headquarters reserve.

Another method which has been studied would be to split each existing square division into two triangular divisions, providing each with an additional infantry regiment and light artillery battalion by recruiting from selectees around cadres from existing regiments.

A thorough reshuffling of National Guard officers, eliminating those regarded as hopelessly inept and transferring others to duties better suited to their abilities, appears certain. Since induction of the guard began last September, less than 1 officer in 1,000 has been separated from the service because of professional incapacity; none, so far as could be learned, has been reclassified.

This is true in spite of the fact that officers in every division now in service have been recommended to the War Department for disposal. These recommendations come to Washington and nothing further is heard of them.

A Care for Consequences

Once it is settled that the guard will not be returned within a few months to civil life, that picture will change. Many guard officers are politicians or otherwise influential men in their States, and the possible consequences of sending them home disgruntled, shortly before thousands of their former comrades also are returned to civilian status are overwhelming.

The eventual fate of the National Guard is a matter which has troubled many of its high-ranking officers since induction into Federal service was first ordered by Congress. This fear was evident at the convention here last October of the National Guard Association.

Creation of the Federally assisted home guard now being organized to fill the place of the National Guard is looked upon by some of these officers as a step toward permanent retention of the National Guard as a Federal force. They are watching this State organization warily.

The Guard's future now seems to hang on the question of whether it is to remain indefinitely in Federal service, a question on which a fight seems to be brewing in Congress.

Fairfax Building For Six Months Totals $4,850,614

A total of $4,850,614 was expended in new construction in Fairfax County during the first six months of this year, according to Commissioner of Revenue James U. Kincheloe. For the corresponding six months of last year the total expenditure was $1,410,012.

During June, 186 permits were issued for new construction costing $644,614. Of this, 163 permits were for new building costing $627,460 and 23 permits for alterations to old homes, costing $17,154.

County Clerk John M. Whalen reports 759 deed records and for the first six-month period a total of 3,484.

Lindbergh Assails Soviet As U. S. Ally

By the Associated Press

San Francisco, July 1.—Charles A. Lindbergh told an antiwar mass meeting tonight "I would a hundred times rather see my country ally herself with England, or even with Germany with all her faults, than with the cruelty, the godlessness, and the barbarism that exist in Soviet Russia."

"An alliance between the United States and Russia should be opposed by every American, by every Christian, and by every humanitarian in this country," Lindbergh said in an address prepared for a civic auditorium meeting sponsored by the America First Committee.

"The America First Committee has never accepted Communists or Fascists in its membership," he said. "We have never changed our policy in this respect. We accept no foreign way of life, and no foreign ideologies. We reject them all.

"But the idealists who have been shouting against the horrors of Nazi Germany are now ready to welcome Soviet Russia as an ally.

"They are ready to join with a nation whose record of cruelty, bloodshed, and barbarism is without parallel in modern history."

Issues Confused

Lindbergh's talk was broadcast over the National and Mutual networks.

"The longer this war in Europe continues, the more confused its issues become," he said. "When it started, Germany and Russia were lined up against England and France. Now, less than two years later, we find Russia and England fighting France and Germany.

"Winter before last, when Russia was fighting Finland, the interventionists demanded that we send all possible aid to Finland. Now, when Russia is fighting Finland again, they demand that we send all possible aid to Russia.

"The murderers and plunderers of yesterday are accepted as the valiant defenders of civilization today; and the valiant defenders of yesterday have become the wicked aggressors of today. Finland and France are now our enemies; Russia our friend. We have been asked to defend the English way of life, and the Chinese way of life.

Asked to Defend Russian Way

"We are now asked to defend the Russian way of life. I ask you, is the Russian way of life our way of life? Are we now to be responsible for the policies of Stalin as well as for those of Churchill and Chiang Kai-shek?

"Two weeks ago, the Interventionists were accusing the America First Committee of associating with the subversive influence of communism. Now, I suppose it is our turn to ask whose meetings the Communists attend.

"Judging from Europe's record, if we enter this war, we can't be sure whether we will have Russia or Germany for a partner by the time we finish it. We don't even know whether we will end up with France or England on our side. It is quite possible that we would find ourselves alone fighting the entire world before it was over.

"The only sensible thing for us to do is to build an impregnable defense for America, and keep this hemisphere at peace."

Henderson Expects Rise in Living Cost

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

Federal Price Administrator Leon Henderson yesterday issued an unqualified forecast of a rising cost of living and announced the beginning of a broad program of allocating civilian supplies which is expected profoundly to affect the purchases of every American consumer.

At a special press conference in which Henderson measured and emphasized the words, he declared that he was "very seriously concerned with the strong trend in the price level."

"I am not saying we are faced with inflation," he declared. "I am saying that there will be a continuing increase in the wholesale price level. The cost of living is bound to increase."

Although he declared that the question of legislation was "up to the President," he discoursed at length on the desirability of having price fixing laws with sanctions "directly applicable to individual violators." He also admitted that he could foresee a situation in which "a semivoluntary" system to force citizens to divert some of their income to savings "might be in order."

Supplies Allocated

First steps in the program to allocate scarce supplies among competing civilian uses were announced during the day by the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply. They were:

1. An order granting of priority status for repair and maintenance materials and equipment needed for continuous operations to 26 industries and public services. These included railroad, street railway, commercial airline, motor bus, marine shipping, pipeline, communication, radio broadcasting, electric generating, gas production, water and sewer service, oil refining, food processing, mining, chemical and other similar industries, as well as police and fire protection, research, and hospital classifications.

These categories will be granted preferential status in obtaining materials and equipment for maintenance and repair, the OPACS order provided.

2. An emergency allocation of material and equipment for construction and repair of machinery needed by the canning industry to handle this year's crop of perishable fruits and vegetables.

3. The initiation of conferences with experts of the Iron and Steel Institute and major civilian steel consumers. Henderson said the conferences, which will begin next week, are to work out allocation methods among leading producers of durable consumer goods who are "now faced in many cases were severe curtailment of essential raw materials."

Conferences Planned

Conferences will be held with makers of refrigerators, autos, washing machines, oil burners, steel furniture and other large users of scarce industrial raw materials, mostly metals, Henderson said.

Painting a generally gloomy picture of the future of living costs, Henderson implied that from now on, increases of production available for civilian consumption would not keep pace with increases of civilian purchasing power resulting from expanded defense activity.

The result, he explained, would be intensified "pressure" on prices, despite efforts to absorb the increased purchasing power through taxes and savings, the latter in the form of investment in Government bonds.

Imposition of ceiling prices, he said, was the major method of preventing this situation from developing into inflation.

There was little comfort, however, in Henderson's forecast.

Having first announced an inevitable rise in the cost of living, Henderson also declared that future wage demands could no longer be absorbed in most defense industries, as in the past, out of savings resulting from full use of capacity and hence lower unit costs.

Start of Inflation Seen

Such future wage increases, he implied, would thus have to be reflected in higher costs, since it was OPACS' policy not to force industries to operate in the red or without a reasonable profit.

But, he admitted, the situation of rising wages, leading to rising costs, and these, in turn, leading to further wage demands based on higher living expenses, was the beginning "ratchet" to the inflationary spiral.

Henderson declined to comment on a question whether he desired wage-fixing legislation.

He denied, however, that rising wages constituted "the biggest hole in the price ceiling."

Instead, he said, "the strongest factor influencing price rises is the feeling each person has that although he is absolutely opposed to inflation, he sees no relation of a leetle bitsy price rise in his own industry to inflation."

That, however, he concluded, is the only way inflation comes about—when an individual raises his own prices. Prices do not rise by themselves, he insisted.

GUN CREW of Battery G, 176th Field Artillery, commanded by Sergt Joseph Lees, man one of the 75-millimeter antitank guns to be transferred to a provisional antitank battalion under control of the Twenty-ninth Division

By a Staff Correspondent

Fort George G. Meade, Md., July 1.—All anti-tank batteries in the three field artillery regiments of the Twenty-ninth Division will be organized shortly into a provisional antitank battalion under division control.

When this is done, division headquarters will have at hand to meet tank attacks a total of 52 guns, now under control of the artillery regiments. These guns, under present plans, will be organized into three batteries of twelve 37-millimeter guns each and two batteries of 75-millimeter guns each. The light guns will be drawn from the two 75 millimeter gun regiments and the big guns from the 155-millimeter howitzer regiment.

Organization of the new provisional battalion, whose commander has not yet been selected, is in line with policy recently instituted throughout the Army. It is believed the threat of tanks can be more effectively met by a large force under central control than by several small units under direction of three regimental commanders.

36 Picnickers Die In Boat Crash

down shortly after the party started its cruise to the fishing grounds and Monhegan Island, 25 miles off shore.

As word of the grim discovery reached shore, bells were tolled and fire whistles sounded to summon virtually the entire population of Harpswell to the streets.

By late afternoon 10 bodies had been reported recovered from the bay's treacherous reaches which prompted John Greenleaf Whittier to write the poem—"The Dead Ship of Harpswell."

Though scant hope was held that any of the 16 women and 20 men and boys were able to swim ashore, Sheriff Henry Burnell of Cumberland County summoned 14 deputies to scour the hundred-harbored shore and tiny islands that fringe the bay.

Cause of the disaster remained a mystery as Owner Pilot Paul Johnson, 40, of Harpswell, was considered an excellent seaman, and the Don recently had been overhauled.

For several hours the fog-muted motors of the searching lobster boats were heard offshore. Then weather-worn fishermen returned to the rickety wharves with a cargo that included some women's scarfs, tattered bits of clothing, a life preserver, a gaff and deck boards from the trim green and white cruiser.

Lieut. Thomas Sampson, of the Portland Coast Guard, directed Federal, State and volunteer searchers and indicated despite the slowly receding fog, search would continue throughout the night.

Roosevelt Acts To Aid Chinese Via Burma Road

By a Staff Correspondent

Hyde Park, N. Y., July 1.—In a further gesture of aid for embattled China, President Roosevelt tonight cleared the way for shipment of supplies there over the Burma Road, free from discriminatory duties levied by the Burmese government.

He issued a proclamation lifting discriminatory levies on Burmese ships and goods arriving in the United States. The action was taken, the proclamation said, after receipt of assurances that the government of Burma, which is under British influence, would do the same.

When Burma reciprocates, shipments of American arms for China will be able to move through and across Burma and over the Burma Road at lower cost.

THE MOST EXPENSIVE BANQUET IN AMERICA

CAN'T SERVE BETTER BEER THAN A FAMILY PICNIC

ANOTHER example of the American way . . . another reason to be thankful for America . . . now the poor man can get as good a glass of beer as the rich man!

For when a brewer makes enough beer—all of ONE quality—and sells most all of that beer close to the brewery—he can make real savings.

Then he can use those savings to continually improve his beer by not only buying the finest grain, the highest-priced malt, the costliest hops—but also by installing the finest modern, scientific equipment—and still sell his beer for a DIME!

That's exactly what Gunther's have done!

TODAY NO BREWER IN THE U. S. A. IS USING COSTLIER MALT OR HIGHER PRICED HOPS THAN GUNTHER'S. AND THAT GOES FOR BEERS SELLING HERE FOR 15¢—OR 20¢—OR ANY PRICE!

All the malt and hops used by Gunther's comes from the top 10% produced! So 9 out of 10 brewers today must definitely use less costly ingredients.

What's more—a world-famous brewmaster using scientific controls and brewing equipment not possessed by any other brewer in this part of the country, takes these extra-fine ingredients and makes Gunther's a smoother, drier, beer-i-er beer.

But don't take our word for it. Try Gunther's today. See for yourself what a difference the finest ingredients—the finest equipment make.

Once you've tried it you'll want that Gunther flavor ever after . . . it's smoother going down!

Capt. Callahan Risks Promotion to Testify

Capt. Harvey C. Callahan risked a $609 promotion to inspectorship by telling the House Police Investigation Committee what's wrong with the Police Department.

But there was nothing else he could do—he's that type of man. He never backs down and always has the courage of his convictions. He has disclosed these virtues and proved his ability in 21 years on the force.

Capt. Floyd A. Truscott, with five years' less service than Callahan, followed suit in blasting the Police Department yesterday. When he informed Representative Schulte that he is "not afraid of reprisals" because of his statements, he exposed his personality—independence and fearlessness.

While a detective, Truscott distinguished himself in several gangster probes. He sent the notorious Tri-state gunmen—Mais and Legenza—to the electric chair, and he solved the slaying of Allen B. Wilson, who was mistaken by imported henchmen for a local racketeer.

"He's A Terror"

He weighs only about 140 pounds but, his men say "he's a terror."

Both Truscott and Callahan with their testimony tossed barbs at a third police captain—Acting Capt. Earl P. Hartman, whom both accused of heading a morale-breaking inter-department spy system.

Hartman, who has been called by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, chief of police, "the most outstanding man I've ever had," has been a policeman 13 years.

He started as a private in May, 1928, at the age of 33. Less than four years later he was promoted to detective sergeant without ever having served as a precinct detective.

In 1934 he was placed on a special squad to investigate the Wilson murder with Capts. John H. Fowler and Truscott. From this position, he moved to the District Attorney's office as an investigator.

Maj. Brown appointed him acting lieutenant in 1938 and placed him in charge of a reorganized vice squad. From that time he took on the alcohol beverage control work, subversive activity investigations and became liaison officer between the Police Department and the Civil Service Commission.

He was given the rank of lieutenant in July, 1940, and was immediately designated an acting captain by Brown. This latter rank was never approved by the Commissioners.

Hartman is 46, married and lives with his parents in Falls Church, Va.

Callahan Appointed in 1920

Capt. Callahan, a World War veteran, was appointed a policeman in 1920. He was promoted to a sergeant in 1928 and was placed in charge of the police school as instructor at that time. He served in this capacity, being made a lieutenant in 1931, until he was promoted to captain in 1935.

Between August, 1939, and July, 1940, he was chief clerk and property clerk of the department and he has attended the FBI school. He took a two-year course in evidence and criminal law at Columbus University and attended the Maryland University traffic school.

He is commander of the First Precinct, is married and has three daughters. He is also 46 and lives at 4018 Twentieth Street Northwest.

Truscott is the "baby" of the three. He is 41 and was appointed to the force in 1925. He was made a precinct detective in 1930, before attaining the rank of first class private which takes six years, and was made a detective sergeant six months later.

Truscott was promoted to lieutenant in July, 1935, and captain January 16, 1939. He is married and has no children. He lives at 1011 Girard Street Northeast.

District Fourth In USO Drive With $176,744

Washington stands fourth among 25 of the largest cities in the country in collections for the United Service Organizations campaign with $176,744 collected to date, it was said yesterday in the third USO report luncheon at the Mayflower.

Principal speaker at the luncheon was Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, deputy director of Selective Service. "If we are to trust the safety of this nation to the boys in our armed services," said Gen. Hershey, "we must let them know that we are solidly behind them. We want to make our front line of defense invincible, and morale makes for invincibility."

Largest contributions to the local campaign goal of $250,000 were by the Government unit. Col. Thomas M. Spaulding, executive officer of this unit, reported total receipts to date of $114,784.

Sidney F. Taliaferro, chairman of the general campaign committee, who presided at the luncheon yesterday, said that another report luncheon will be held next Thursday at 12:30 p. m. in the Mayflower when it is hoped the remaining $73,225 needed to put Washington over the top will be reported.

Uruguayans Loot Axis Stores After Shooting

Trinidad, Uruguay, July 1 (AP).—Authorities called for the Army to maintain order today after a mob looted German and Italian stores and burned their merchandise in the streets.

They acted in retaliation for the shooting of antitotalitarian students at an Italian Red Cross benefit in Durazno Sunday when a bystander was killed.

Police were unable to check the furious crowd they estimated at 1,500 persons and one merchant complained of $12,000 in losses. Two regiments of soldiers were already guarding Durazno and guards were stationed at the offices of the Montevideo pro-Nazi newspaper Libertad.

55 'Overtime' Park Sleepers Rounded up by D. C. Police

Another nocturnal blitzkreig on the "floaters, transients and just bums" inhabiting Franklin and Mount Vernon Parks was staged by Park Policeman Bernard J. Beckmann yesterday, much to the chagrin of 55 men.

Using a new technique—that of chalking the sleepers and then timing their stay—Beckmann and Policeman James Lyons started at 7 p. m. Monday on the third of Beckmann's one-man park cleanup forays.

All Face Charges

The last man was not arrested until 4:30 a. m., after two patrol wagons and a scout car had been used to transport the prisoners to the First, Second and Third Precinct stations.

The chalking of "overtime sleepers" was used on four men who were sleeping on the grass. They were charged under a park regulation adopted during the Bonus March of 1933, which makes it unlawful for an individual to sleep on the grass more than four hours. Beckmann said he chalked the prone figures in a prominent place and when he returned four hours later arrested those who had not moved away.

Of the 55 seized, 20 were charged with being drunk, four were charged under the "Bonus regulation," and the remainder were accused of sleeping on park benches.

Twenty-six of the squatters were seized in Franklin Park and 29 were apprehended around the Public Library, at Ninth Street and New York Avenue Northwest.

Twice as Many More Flee

More than twice as many men, awakened by the racket of the raiders, fled before they were caught, the policemen declared.

All of the men were fingerprinted and photographed and their records checked with the FBI. They were placed in a lineup at Police Headquarters last night and if they are not wanted on more serious charges in other jurisdictions, will be sent to Police Court this morning.

Beckmann's first park cleanup was staged about a year ago, when he rounded up the vagrants in an attempt to stop a wave of petty thefts and robberies in park territory. He has continued the drive every three or four months since then, each time netting at least ten fugitives from other cities.

Capt. Truscott Identifies Local 'Gestapo'

DISCLOSES POLICE INTRIGUE—Capt. Floyd Truscott, former ace plain-clothes man, now in charge of the Tenth Precinct, is shown with Commissioner Young as he testified yesterday before the House Police Investigating Subcommittee. Capt. Truscott charged that the Washington police department is suffering from incompetency of personnel and identified for the subcommittee members of the police department's "Gestapo," or squad of informers

"The Whole Crux of This Problem Rests with the Personnel Officer."

"There Are Many Things Going On That I Do Not Approve Of"

". . . It Is Necessary to Have A Speaking Acquaintance With Certain Members of the Underworld."

should be able to handle men of inferior rank without being watched."

Truscott called the practice of "police watching police" not only "demoralizing" to the men but a practice that, of itself, restricts police efficiency. He called the subcommittee's attention to the fact that "in the solution of crime it is necessary to have a speaking acquaintance with certain members of the underworld." Then he said, because of the system of informing, members of the department are afraid to be seen with their "contacts" because their action might be construed as evidence of nonprofessional association with criminal elements.

Hesitates to See "Old Contacts"

"I would hesitate myself to go to see some of my old contacts as I have in the past,' Truscott declared.

The subcommittee asked him about the breaking of the notorious gang of "tri-State" bank robbers and thugs a few years ago, a crime solution largely attributed to the former detective. He said the case was broken chiefly through information furnished him by "contacts" and he doubted if he would be able to duplicate the performance now.

Truscott told the subcommittee the special investigating squad, with him in command, was organized in 1937 to aid the Federal Government in its investigation of a racing news and betting syndicate here. Hartman, he said, took over his job, "but his duties have spread out since and now have many ramifications."

As was Capt. Harvey G. Callahan, whose testimony startled the subcommittee Monday, Capt. Truscott was asked if he feared reprisals for his revelations. He replied:

"If reprisals come they will come in a form that would be hard to trace back, but I won't worry about that."

Truscott backed Callahan's estimate that only 75 per cent of the department is efficient. He recalled that when Callahan was asked Monday about the percentage of efficiency in the department: "I had arrived at the same estimate before he answered and I think it is a very fair estimate."

"The police department is a house built upon the sand and seems to be collapsing," observed Representative Hebert as Truscott charged that of the three divisions of the department, the detective division most needs reorganization.

"Are not the best men in the detective division?" asked Hebert.

"Not all of the best men," was the reply. "Some of the best men have left the division because under present conditions it was not desirable to stay."

Two Kinds of Fear

He cited Lieut. Robert Barrett who broke the "sniper" case, and who, Truscott said, "was glad to leave in order to get promotion outside the division."

"Every time he (Barrett) made a case he would be shifted to other work," Truscott declared.

Declaring smooth-working, two-man "detective" teams essential to efficient crime detection, Truscott charged that some teams in the department "don't speak to each other" while other detectives are afraid to go into "tough places" with their partners for fear they will "run out" or "are afraid their partners will carry tales to the inspector."

Town 'Discovers' $22,426,438 Doris Didn't Know About

Somerville, N. J., July 1 (INS).—Hillborough Township served legal notice today that it would seek to obtain $13,834,924.44 additional taxes from Doris Duke Cromwell on the basis of alleged evidence that the tobacco heiress is really $22,426,438 richer than she was thought to be.

Mrs. Cromwell, or her lawyers, were requested to appear in court here July 14 to answer the claim.

Armed Bandit Robs Cleaning Store of $5.88

An armed colored man, believed to be the same who attempted two holdups Saturday, robbed the manager of a cleaning establishment at 1902 First Street Northwest, yesterday and escaped with $5.88.

Miss Helen Zucknick, 28, of 813 E Street Southeast, was alone in the Century Cleaning Co. when the man entered carrying a gray suit. He asked if the firm did tailoring and when he learned it did not he left.

He returned a few minutes later, the manager said, and with a gun hidden under the coat demanded money.

"If you scream I'll kill you," she quoted the man, who reached into a cash register and extracted the money. He ran west on Thomas Street, she said.

The bandit's actions and description were identical with those of a man who attempted to rob a plumber's office at 311 H Street Northwest, and a laundry branch at 1901 Ninth Street Northwest Saturday.

Mrs. Helen Green, attendant at a High's ice cream shop at 1924 Fourteenth Street Northwest, told police that a gunman attempted to hold up her store early yesterday afternoon.

Broadcast Paid For by Listeners Will Get Trial

An experiment to determine whether the public would pay for radio programs without advertising received the sanction yesterday of the Federal Communications Commission.

It issued a construction permit to the Muzak Corporation, New York City, for an experimental "subscriber broadcast service."

The company said the experiment would be conducted by offering a service to the general public willing to pay for it.

In order to restrict reception of its nonadvertising programs to subscribers, the company proposed to send out an accompanying "pig squeal" which can be eliminated only by special receivers leased from it.

The Muzak transmitter will be located at 11 West Forty-second Street. It will use power of 1,000 watts and operate on the frequency 117,650.

Powder Firm Called Inexcusably Defiant

Confronted by what they consider "inexcusable" company defiance of both the National Labor Relations Board and the National Defense Mediation Board, defense officials yesterday intimated that the Government would take over the Western Cartridge Co., Alton, Ill., to prevent a strike called for next Sunday and affecting $100,000,000 of defense orders.

Commenting on the company's failure to give an answer to Mediation Board recommendations that it bargain with a duly certified local of the A. F. of L. Chemical Workers Union, an informed defense source declared that the Government could not allow the board to be "flouted" and that "necessary steps" would be taken.

Board Chairman William H. Davis said that the board today would set a deadline for the company to make a definite reply.

Shipyard Tie-up Averted

Other major labor developments yesterday:

1. A strike of 16,000 C. I. O. shipbuilding workers, scheduled for tonight, appeared to have been averted when the Federal Shipbuilding Corporation, Kearny, N. J., agreed to a union request that any final settlement of a labor dispute to be reached at future Mediation Board hearings would be retroactive to June 24, the expiration date of a previous agreement.

2. The long-standing dispute between the North American Aviation Co. and the C. I. O. United Auto Workers, which led to a bitter strike last month and the subsequent Army occupation of the company's Inglewood, Calif., plant, was settled by company's reluctant acceptance of a maintenance-of-union-membership agreement.

3. The A. F. L. building trades council last night called a strike of some 1,500 men on the $4,000,000 Jefferson barracks expansion program at St. Louis in what a union official termed a test case over the use of WPA labor.

The union instructed its members not to report today in protest against the employment of 75 WPA painters at wages below the union scale. A WPA spokesman said the War Department had certified the project as necessary and "our men will remain on the job."

Sole issue of the Western Cartridge Co. dispute is recognition of the A. F. of L. union to bargain for 550 employes in the company's smokeless powder division. The union was certified as appropriate bargaining agent after a Labor Board election and after an independent union, which represents other members of the company's total 6,500 working force, indicated it did not object to the A. F. of L. unit and waived bargaining rights in the smokeless powder division.

The company, however, holding the Labor Board determination invalid in fact and in law, declined to bargain. When the case was certified, the Mediation Board took only a few hours of hearings before it issued public recommendations that the company bargain with the A. F. of L. unit. Although the recommendation was issued on Saturday, the company so far has declined to make an answer. As a result the union set its strike call Monday night.

Defense and labor officials said that the case was the most clear-cut instance of company defiance to have come before the board and that "every effort" would be made to keep the workers from striking.

This statement, coupled with the declaration that the Government would assume its responsibilities to the workers if they refrained from walking out, was seen as indicating a determination to take over the factory unless the company reaches agreement before Sunday.

In the Federal Shipbuilding Co. dispute, where it recently appeared that almost $500,000,000 of Navy shipbuilding would be paralyzed by a stoppage, a vice president of the C. I. O. Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers declared yesterday that a strike was not contemplated. Hearings on the dispute involving union demands for wage increases, vacations with pay, closed shop and union recognition of supervisory personnel, are scheduled before the Mediation Board on Saturday.

Settlement Forecast

The ultimate settlement of the North American Aviation Co. dispute, the subject of Mediation Board hearings over several weeks, was indicated in a company statement declaring that it "has submitted" to the Mediation Board proposal calling for the inclusion of the maintenance of union membership clause in its agreement with the union. Monetary issues in dispute had been settled previously by direct negotiation.

Progress in obtaining employment of Negro workers in defense plants was noted yesterday by Dr. Robert C. Weaver, head of the OPM's Negro employment and training branch. He reported that the Sun Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co., Chester, Pa., had declared it would double its present 750 Negro employes; that Negro trainees had been admitted to metal working courses at the Cramp Shipbuilding Yards in Philadelphia and that Pacific Coast unions and shipbuilders had agreed to transfer workers to the yards for immediate employment.

At the same time, Weaver strongly urged all Negroes to take advantage of defense training classes to equip them for skilled and semi-skilled jobs now being opened to them.

Detroit Plant Closed

Outside of Washington, the Associated Press reported that the Briggs Manufacturing Co. said its Meldrum Avenue plant, Detroit, was closed by a walkout of 1,900 C. I. O.-U. A. W. workers "in an unauthorized wildcat strike."

At Port Huron, Mich., A. F. of L.-U. A. W. pickets encircled the closed Electric Auto-Lite Corporation wire plant following the failure of a settlement conference on Monday. The union is demanding wage increases of 10 cents an hour. The company makes magnetic wiring for the Navy and also produces airplane wire.

treatment by Emregency Hospital physicians, who failed to get her address; Mrs. Dorothy Mousouris, 30, 1325 Tenth Street Northwest who was picked up on the street and treated at Emergency Hospital; Mrs. Gladys Smith, 30, colored, 300 F Street Northwest, who was overcome in a laundry at 735 Lamont Street Northwest, and treated at Freedman's Hospital; Julius E. Wilson, 65, colored, 925 Westminster Street Northwest, treated at Georgtown Hospital.

Collapses On Street

William Freedman, 63, of 804 Van Buren Street Northwest, was treated at Emergency Hospital for heat exhaustion after collapsing at Fourteenth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest. He was taken to the hospital in an Army ambulance.

Emmett H. Hidey, 53, of 503 University Drive in University Park, Md., appeared at No. 6 Precinct Station complaining he felt ill. Then he collapsed. Police took him to Walter Reed Hospital, where he was treated for heat exhaustion.

Carlo Lombardi, 65, of 1239 Thirty-first Street Northwest, was treated for effects of the heat at Georgetown Hospital.

Three others were overcome in a laundry at Fort Belvoir, Va., and treated at Providence Hospital. They are: Evelyn Lovett, 23, and Helen Wright, 30, both of Alexandria, Va.; Grace Fairfax, 21, of Lorton, Va. William Hawkins, 37, 425 Q Street Northwest, collapsed on the street and was treated at Casualty Hospital.

Relief Promised

After cooling to about 73 during the night, the temperature is expected to climb to 93 today. But the Weather Bureau sees relief in sight today. Local thundershowers are due this afternoon, while tonight will be fair and cooler, the forecast says. Tomorrow moderate winds will attend more fair weather.

'Save Power For Defense,' South Is Urged

In a dramatic appeal "to the people of the South," defense chiefs William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman yesterday called for voluntary curtailment of everyday uses of electric power through "self-denila and sacrifices by millions" of citizens below the Mason-Dixon line.

The OPM chieftains' call, designed to save every possible kilowatt for the production of aluminum, was issued at the same time as an order of the Federal Power Commission to link up 17 States in an enormous grid expected to make available an additional capacity of 200,000 kilowatts.

The interconnection of private, public and municipal power plants ordered by the F. P. C. will supply defense industries—mainly aluminum plants—with additional capacity greater than that of the TVA's huge Wilson Dam, it was estimated.

Knudsen and Hillman's appeal was accompanied by a letter from OPM Deputy Production Director William L. Batt, sent to 14 major public and private power systems in the South, requesting them to "release as much energy as possible," for defense industries.

Time Declared Vital

Asking for cooperation in rearranging system loads and curtailing non-essential uses, Batt declared, "Time is vital to the defense effort. Therefore we trust that your organization, working in cooperation with your customers and with neighboring power systems, will undertake immediately such steps as may be feasible to make available to defense industry the maximum production of existing facilities."

The message of the OPM directors general read in part:

"Citizens of every section are being called on to carry their share of effort and sacrifice. But for the citizens of the Southeastern States, there is a special job—THAT JOB IS THE PRODUCTION OF ALUMINUM.

"The OPM is joining with the F. P. C. in calling equally on public and private power systems and their customers to rearrange their normal, peacetime use of electricity in order to keep the aluminum plants working full blast—and also meet the urgent needs of Southern steel plants, shipyards, munitions factories, air fields, cantonments and many other undertakings which are essential to public welfare and national defense.

Ten Kilowatts, One Pound

"If individual savings seem insignificant, remember this: Every ten kilowatt hours you save makes possible the production of one more pound of aluminum. Multiply that saving by the number of electric users and you will have millions of pounds of new aluminum available for defense. In every home, store, office and factory, your contribution to the defense program can be a vital one.

Yesterday's heat induced several freak mishaps in the District. At the Mayfair Liquor Store, 7329 Georgia Avenue Northwest, the sun beating on whisky bottles in a front window display resulted in a $1,000-fire.

Joseph Weiner, store owner, said the sun heating the liquor caused a bottle to explode. A fragment of glass short-circuited the neon lighting system in the window. Sparks flew, setting the show window afire. Three fire companies sent equipment in response to a 5:45 p. m. alarm. Fighting the blaze they encountered liquor from scores of broken bottles flooding the floor.

Manhole Covers Blow Off

Two manhole covers blew off on Washington streets. Gases produced by the unusual heat were blamed. When the cover at Eighteenth Street and Massachusetts Avenue Northwest blew off during the afternoon rush hour, traffic was snarled. Police were detailed to direct the streams of cars. Another cover went off near the Navy Yard.

A spitz dog bit William J. Raymond, 59, of 229 E Street Northwest. Passing in front of 519 Third Street Northwest, Raymond was bitten in the calf of his right leg. A private physician treated him. Police said the dog is owned by Mrs. Emily Thornburg, who lives at the Third Street address.

Pets Lodged at League

Many dogs and cats were lodged in the Animal Rescue League, 70 O Street Northwest, by owners who feared effects of the heat on the animals. But the keeper last night added that most of his charges were there because of the police drive on unlicensed dogs.

While the official high temperature for the day was 96.7, practically tying the year's high of 97 recorded here last May 27, reports of higher temperatures in sections of Washington and vicinity poured into The Post.

One woman said she saw a thermometer on F Street that read 101 degrees, and a McLean (Va.) citizen called to say it was 115 degrees at his place.

At least five Federal departments and agencies gave employes in non-air conditioned agencies permission to quit their posts in line with a policy of dismissing workers when effective temperature combination of heat and humidity in buildings reaches 84 degrees.

With the humidity hovering around 85 per cent and the mercury in the 90s, personnel offices commenced issuing dismissal orders around noon.

Between 7,000 and 8,000 Agriculture Department workers in North and South Buildings went home at 1:45 p. m. Works Projects Administration employes numbering approximately 1,300 left their offices in the Walker-Johnson and Lemon Buildings around 3 p. m.

At least 250 Labor Department workers in the Albee, Telephone, Summer School buildings and the 1022 Fifteenth Street branch were permitted to go home before the usual closing hour as were some employes of the Federal Security Agency and 60 members of the Office of Emergency Menagement branch in the old wartime temporary building at Twentieth Street and New York Avenue Northwest. Also dismissed were several hundred General Accounting Office employes.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

"COLOROLOGY" is the new science due to edge into the domain of palmistry, crystal gazing, graphology, card and psychic readings. So says Louise La Tour the Pall Mall Room's accomplished gazer-into-the-future. The idea is that the patron will select his or her favorites from an array of bright primary colors and subtler tints. These will indicate temperament as well as tastes, show whether you are an aggressive go-getter or a dweller in an ivory tower, if you are a stodgy conservative or a flashy modernist. To Miss La Tour's accomplished eye they should also reveal the terrain of your future . . . But don't rush into the Pall Mall Room asking for a colorology seance just yet. La Louise is working out its finer angles, doesn't plan to present it in earnest for a month or two.

Don McMullen, saxist of the Shoreham's Barnee-Lowe Orchestra, was given a big farewell party on Saturday evening by Max Lowe, Barnee, his fellow-bandsmen and the Shoreham technicians. He's off to Baltimore today to join the Army, is the first Shoreham musician to be tapped on the shoulder by Uncle Sam.

QUAINT RHYTHM BOYS. Bob Seidel, of Paul Kain's Glen Echo Band, has a huge collection of Jimmy Lunceford and Count Basie records. But, all the same, he's often traveled hundreds of miles to hear these swingsters in person . . . Not made for a moustache is the face of Jimmy Summerville, of the Hi Hat. His Gay 90's moustachios fell off four times lately while he was singing-saxing "Strawberry Blonde." . . . Accordionist Eddie Whitesel, of the Robin Hood, is around 6 foot tall but he folds himself up just like his "squeeze box" to get into his midget car. . . Pianist Eddie Chase of Burt's Trans-Lux has an odd form of New England nostalgia. He's always yearning for those fried clams you buy in paper bags up around Cape Cod.

CONGRESSIONAL LIBRARY EFFICIENCY. Whenever Trucking Magnate Tracy Baker enters the Rainbow Room he always wants his pet tune, "Birth of the Blues." Recently he got to wondering about the birth of "B. O. T. B." and not even Rainbow's maestro, Milton Davis, could enlighten him. So he called the Congressional Library and was informed in five minutes that it was first sung in Chicago in 1919 by Dimpled Lillian Walker, then a top movie queen.

FOR GOURMETS IN JULY. Those mysterious stuffed olives served in the Mayflower Lounge. We can't imagine what they're filled with, but it tastes swelegant . . . The stuffed cabbage at Restaurant "833." Season to a nicety and full of those vitamins you need to attain pep on a sweltering day . . . Harrington Tavern. Those chubby combination sandwiches packed full of varied good things. If you have one you'll never miss your dinner . . . Olmsted's Grill. Even if you think you're not hungry, you'll develop the appetite of a stevedore over one of these lustrous broiled Maine lobsters with crisp Julienne potatoes and green things on the side.

Most romantic looking bandstand in town is that of the Starlight Roof. (And we're not talking about Dick Wilson's bandsmen, exactly.) It's all done in rose pink and white including the Venetian blind canopy. And the piano is studded with big blue stars.

RHYTHMS EXOTIC. King Cole Room. The original Spanish versions of "Amapola" and "Maria Elena" as sung by Vicente de la Garza who makes them sound like spang new carols . . . Anchor Room. "Blue Echoes" as now being done by Matt Windsor and Eileen Georgs, partly in Spanish and partly in English, and with harmonizing that will give you that "faraway feeling" . . . Plymouth. NEW BLOOD AT RIVER BEND. Jess Daw, crack trumpeter and vibraphone player, and Saxophonist Joe Moser have joined George Stein's River Bend orchestra. They're among the smartest exponents of dizzy rhythm in these parts, are pleasing both Maestro George and the River Bend crowds a-plenty.

'GALES A-BLOWING. The Nightingale is at the top of its summer pace with Rodd Raffell's band smacking out rhythm hot and fast for capacity crowds of swing connoisseurs. The new "chamber jazz sextet" supplies a rare touch of novelty in jive that's subdued in volume, but rabid in rhythm . . . Glen Hanson, clarinetist-saxist, and pianist Bert Glick have joined the Gus band to fill vacancies caused by the draft.

Ballou Optimistic About 1-Cent Milk

sidy, to buy milk for underfed children at a cent per half pint. It now pays more than 2 cents a bottle. Thus, more than twice as many needy boys and girls could be accommodated.

With organized dairy farmers in this milkshed asking a cent-a-quart increase in the price of surplus milk, as well as other Class 1 fluid milk, the SMA is withholding a decision on the penny project pending a verdict by Secretary Wickard on the proposed price boost.

In his letter to Wickard yesterday, Schulte struck out vigorously against the "perfectly oiled monopoly" here.

"It appears the monopoly has been able to utilize the strong arm of the Government to force its program," he wrote.

Schulte threatened another House milk investigation if local conditions which he said are unfair to the consumer and dairy farmers alike are not connected by the department.

"Unless this condition is corrected, it is my purpose to take this matter to the floor of the House and demand a complete investigation as to reasons for milk in the Washington area being priced at almost twice the price of milk coming from my home State of Indiana, and going into the Chicago market for fluid consumption," Schulte declared.

"Maybe this situation can be justified. However, I must insist that if it isn't then it must be corrected."

Schulte called the present method of computation of Class III price "a definite scheme to close out all independent dairies in the market who do not deal with the monopoly, or else force all surplus operations in the hands of the monopoly's favorite 'trust' diary."

Asserting that the present individual handler pool for payment of producers, as distinguished from the market wide pool, is wholly unjustified, the ranking majority member of the House District Committee declared:

"I don't see, for the life of me, how these poor, unfortunate dairy farmers can maintain their loyalty to their Government in the face of this cheap, underhand trickery."

Schulte was a leading House figure in the Capitol Hill milk investigation of two years ago. Recently he wrote Leon Henderson, Federal price administrator, strongly protesting granting of the cent-a-quart increase asked by the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association.

If Secretary Wickard decides to grant proposed amendments to the Washington milk marketing order, after studying the record of the hearings held last week, his recommendations must be upheld by a two-thirds vote of the producers in order to become effective.

The proposed amendments include the price increase.

Coast Defense Plan Revealed To Governors

By the Associated Press

Boston, July 1.—Tentative, but far-flung plans for the protection of coastal cities from gas and incendiary bomb attack, and for guarding vital communication lines and power and water systems from sabotage were disclosed today by Mayor LaGuardia of New York, national director of civilian defense.

At the same time, he told the Thirty-third Annual Conference of Governors of the United States that cooperation from the States in preparing for home protection "has been magnificent, and I believe within a very short time that the army of civilian defense will be taking shape and will soon be able to snap into action."

LaGuardia contended a Congressional appropriation of between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 would be necessary to provide auxiliary fire-fighting equipment in the cities on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and on the gulf, but added it would take a year to secure delivery even if the orders were placed now.

50,000,000 Gas Masks

He expressed belief, too, that if gas masks became necessary, they should be "provided," rather than "leave it to the individual citizen to purchase his own," and said the War Department already had made estimates showing that there were 50,000,000 persons living in zones requiring the issuance of masks.

The civilian defense head reported also that consideration was underway of a plan "to provide United States Guard Battalions to be assigned to the various Army Corps Area and from there assigned to guard duty," in the event of war—"the Federal Government to recruit the men and provide their pay and maintenance."

Similar action, LaGuardia said, was taken in the World War to guard water supply systems, dams, bridges, power houses, communication systems, public buildings, railroads and factories.

"Now," he said, "if the States feel that by using their State guard they can provide the necessary number of men—and you must bear in mind that this is a 24-hour duty each day—perhaps it will not be necessary to ask the Federal Government to provide the money to obtain the men and their maintenance for this very important work."

Uniform Guard Urged

He emphasized, however, that the War Department was anxious that the guard "be uniform throughout the country and under proper discipline and control."

LaGuardia spoke at Henry Ford's Wayside Inn in Sudbury, where the Governors were the guests of the automobile magnate. Ford, however, was not present. Later the chief executives motored through historic Concord and Lexington, and then to Gloucester and Swampscott for a clam bake.

Rev. A. E. Gingrich Leaves to Head Morgan Circuit

The Rev. Albert E. Gingrich, pastor of Potomac Heights Community Church, 5200 Cathedral Avenue Northwest, left yesterday with his family for Berkeley Springs, W. Va., to assume charge of the Morgan circuit of five Methodist churches.

He was recently appointed to that position by Dr. Harry Evaul, superintendent of the Hagerstown District of the Methodist Church. The Morgan circuit is in the Baltimore Conference.

Mr. Gingrich came to Potomac Heights in October, 1939, from Witherspoon College at Buckhorn, Ky., where he was assistant minister and an instructor. A pastoral committee, headed by Samuel Hatchett, is now considering a successor to Mr. Gingrich.

Watercolors Shown In Post Window

A still life featuring tropical fruits and white chrysanthemums, a painting of boats at a sleepy dock, and a Mexican church on a hillside are the three watercolors on exhibit this week in The Post's art window.

The first is "Fruits and Flowers," by Frode N. Dann, of Los Angeles; the second is "Village Docks," by Morris Blackburn, of Philadelphia, and the third is "Taxco, Mexico," by Ida Leibovitz, also of Philadelphia.

O'Daniel Takes Lead of 1,095 In Texas Vote

By the Associated Press

Dallas, July 1.—Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel, flour salesman turned politician, knocked at the portals of the United States Senate tonight as the counting of votes in Texas's closest election neared its end with O'Daniel holding a lead of 1,095 votes.

O'Daniel forged dramatically into the lead today after two days and nights of trailing Lyndon Johnson, youthful Congressman who claimed White House benediction. The handful of ballots remaining uncounted were insufficient to change the result as tabulated unofficially by the Texas election bureau. The official result will be announced by the State election board after a canvass July 14.

Representative Martin Dies, chairman of a committee investigating un-American activities, ran fourth to O'Daniel, Johnson and Attorney General Gerald Mann.

The election bureau in a tabulation it said would be its last, barring corrections, gave O'Daniel, 175,368; Johnson, 174,273; Mann, 140,853; Dies, 80,601. The report was complete for the State's 254 counties. It included mail returns from 177 counties.

Twenty-four men opposed O'Daniel in the race for the Senate. The big four—O'Daniel, Johnson, Mann and Dies—indorsed national defense measures and the need for adequate old-age pensions.

Johnson and Dies will continue to hold their seats in Congress and Lieut. Gov. Coke Stevenson will become governor if the Governor actually has been elected to the Senate.

Two Historic Churches Here To Be Razed to Widen Street

By Robert Tate Allen

Post Church Editor

Two of Washington's most historic churches will be leveled by the proposed further widening of Independence Avenue, The Post learned yesterday.

They will be Marvin Methodist Church, Tenth Street and Independence Avenue, and St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Eighth Street and Independence Avenue, both organized more than 50 years ago.

Officials of the Public Buildings Administration explained yesterday that the proposed project is still in its early stages and will broaden Independence Avenue a half city block on the south side from Seventh to Twelfth Street.

In September, 1938, the National Capital Park and Planning Commission recommended the establishment of a 190-foot width between building lines for Independence Avenue from Fourteenth Street Southwest to the Capitol.

Little Comment

The Commission then also indorsed similar future treatment for the entire length of East Capitol Street. Independence Avenue from Twelfth to Fourteenth Street already has been widened.

Pastors of the two congregations yesterday had little comment to make regarding the widening project, which will mean demolition of their edifices and necessitate finding other worship quarters.

The Rev. J. Luther Frantz, who is serving his second pastorate at St. Mark's since 1902, said he had received no official word from the Government about its plans for the project, but "understood" that the church property was now being appraised.

St. Mark's originally stood at Twelfth and C Streets Southwest, being destroyed by fire in 1904. One of the first Luther Leagues in America was organized there 45 years ago.

Dr. Chesteen Smith, recently appointed supply pastor at Marvin Church, had no comment to make on the project other than to state that he, too, had heard nothing official as yet.

Unaffected by the widening will be Kendall Baptist Church at 202 Ninth Street Southwest, within a block of Independence Avenue.

Encroachment of Federal buildings resulted in the demolition of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church at 320 Fourth Street Southwest, two years ago. The Social Security and Railroad Retirement Board Buildings now occupy part of that site.

Republican Buys First Roosevelt Library Ticket

Hyde Park, N. Y., July 1.—A lifelong Republican today paid the first 25-cent admission fee to the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library, which the President dedicated yesterday.

"I'm a Republican, but I think it is a very interesting collection," commented the visitor, Floyd B. Avery, of White Plains, N. Y., after viewing the exhibits of the President's papers, books and mementoes.

On its first business day the library, now Government property, took in 161 admission fees, a cash total of $40.25. The visiting hours were from 9:30 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Soaring Record Set, But It's Unofficial

Elmira, N. Y., July 1 (AP).—Lyle Maxey, 22, Detroit, flew to an unofficial American altitude record of 18,300 feet today in the twelfth National soaring contest.

Because his barograph needle ran off the recording drum at 18,000 feet, Maxey will not be credited with beating the present 17,284-foot mark set up in 1939 by Robert M. Stanley, Buffalo. Maxey's altimeter registered 18,300 feet.

House Group Votes for Tax On Cosmetics

The House Ways and Means Committee late yesterday approved new or increased taxes on soft drinks, furs, cosmetics, typewriters and a dozen other articles, expected to increase excise revenues by $124,000,000.

Rates tentatively adopted yesterday leave the committee only $60,000,000 short of its goal—a tax bill to yield $3,500,000,000 more than existing schedules.

During yesterday's six-hour session the committee voted down proposals for taxes on metal furniture, oil burners, radio broadcasting, parimutuel betting, paints and varnishes, light bulbs and soda fountain equipment.

Ten Per Cent Tax on Furs

The revenue group approved a 10 per cent tax on the retail sales price of furs, estimated to yield $20,700,000. It also voted for a manufacturers' tax of 1-6 of 1 cent a bottle on soft drinks, with an equivalent rate for beverages dispensed from fountains. The new levy would produce $32,000,000.

A 10 per cent tax on office machinery, including typewriters and adding machines, was written into the bill. It is expected to bring in $18,500,000.

Revising the base for computing manufacturers' taxes on cosmetics, the committee approved but did not announce the details of rates which are estimated to yield $13,100,000 in additional revenue.

Levy on Electric Fans

Other manufacturers' taxes tentatively adopted yesterday would affect:

Electrical appliances, including fans and kitchen equipment, 10 per cent, estimated to yield $18,000,000.

Rubber products, excluding footwear, tires and tubes and surgical equipment, 10 per cent, $25,900,000.

Electrical and metal signs, 10 per cent, $3,600,000.

Coin-operated devices that pay cash or tokens redeemable in cash or merchandise, $25 annual license; coin-operated vending machines, $5 annual license, yield not yet estimated.

Optical instruments, other than eyeglasses, 10 per cent, $1,400,000.

Washing machines for commercial laundries, 10 per cent, $1,00,000.

The committee meets again at 10 a. m. today, but members declined to predict whether they would be able to finish the bill in one more session.

San Francisco (U.P.).—One of the pioneer, millionaire residences of San Francisco is being demolished under terms of the will of the late Mrs. Charles A. Rossier. # Lieut. Grove Retires at 71 After 44 Years a Policeman

FAREWELL GESTURE—Police at No. 10 Precinct yesterday paid tribute to Lieut. McGill, 71, on his retirement. A watch chain, two pipes, tobacco and a necktie were among the gifts he received. Left to right—Lieut. Grove, Lieut. A. B. Clark and L. B. Peters, desk clerk

Forty-four years as a policeman ended for Lieut. McGill Grove, 71, yesterday on his birthday.

With tears in his eyes the veteran stood before nearly 60 men—the personnel of the Eighth Precinct—and accepted from them a gold watch and chain, a set of 3 matched pipes, a pound of tobacco and a box of cigars.

Lieut. Grove's farewell party was arranged by Capt. Clement P. Cox and the station force at No. 8 and took place at 4 p. m. yesterday, just as the shifts were changing.

Oldest man in point of service in the police department, Lieut. Grove was appointed a policeman July 1, 1897. He was 27 years old at that time.

His first duty was as a bicycle patrolman and he later was mounted. He became a sergeant in 1919 and was promoted to lieutenant a year later. His record disclosed 13 commendations.

He lives at 1425 Thirty-third Street Northwest.

Capitalites Urged To Buy Coal Now

Washington consumers yesterday were urged by the Department of Weights, Measures and Markets to order their winter supply of coal now and avoid a general advance in prices after July 15.

Pointing out that transportation facilities during coming months will be taxed by hauling defense supplies, the department's statement warned that coal transportation "in all probability will be far short of meeting normal needs during the fall and winter."

"All reports coming to this department," the statement added, "indicate that consumers can save money and avoid much inconvenience and possibl ysuffering by buying and storing their coal ahead of time."

FBI Roundup

There is an obvious moral for Nazis here and abroad in the FBI roundup of some 32 spy suspects, but it will be ignored. The moral is that this country is hardly "wide open," as German officials have boasted, to Nazi penetration. And the reason it will be ignored is that Germany, committed to sabotaging our aid to Britain in our factories as well as in transit, must in her own interest continue to seek information which comes under the heading of espionage. The greater our defense effort, and the more help we send Britain, the more urgent becomes Germany's need for effective counterattack. There is no mystery about the counterattack. It will take the form of more of the espionage which Mr. Hoover has laid by the heels. For instance, the charges against those now under arrest include the transmission to a "foreign government" of information about cargo-ship movements to Britain and about American aircraft developments. Samples of the latest American armaments have even been sent abroad by couriers, according to the FBI. Such undercover activities by a ring which J. Edgar Hoover has characterized as "one of the most active, extensive and vicious groups we have ever had to deal with" are typical of what we must expect. For we possess the power to swing the war against the Nazis, and the Nazis know it.

The answer to the counterattack is not easy. Industrial plants, particularly aircraft factories, have long since initiated their own system of surveillance and have cautioned employes to be circumspect. From now on there will undoubtedly be greater spy consciousness, though in this respect a word of warning must be offered. There is danger of a spy scare. Certainly we want no amateur sleuths spying wholesale on their fellows, as has been the case in other countries, for instance, Sweden. But neither do we want loopholes through which information valuable to the Nazis may escape. Several such loopholes have already been plugged. German consulates and propaganda agencies have been closed, their representatives ordered out of the country, and immigrant visas will henceforth be subjected to much closer scrutiny. As for tracking down further Fifth Column activities, the FBI is clearly the agency best suited. Its "bag" last weekend was the result of superior methods of detection and extraordinary patience which permitted the capture, it is believed, of the spy ring's higher ups. Upon the FBI, then, should continue the main responsibility for convincing the Nazis that, so far as they are concerned, this country is not "wide open" but "tight shut."

Puppet Diplomacy

A skilled puppet master can make his puppets walk, talk, sing and act in a manner resembling human speech and action. But while the audience accepts the intended illusion for the amusing possibilities it contains, nobody is fooled by it. By the same token, it is most unlikely that any Japanese, not even the precariously perched Yosuke Matsuoka for whose particular benefit the gesture was made, will be deceived by the action of the Axis and its satellites in recognizing the Japanese-sponsored regime of Wang Ching-wei of Nanking.

It will be difficult for most readers to recall this man Wang. It is Chiang Kai-shek who is synonymous with China, but the Japanese set up Wang Ching-wei in Nanking as the man whom the Japanese decreed should succeed Chiang. But, whereas Chiang still retains the following of the Chinese people, Wang is immured in Nanking, and dare not leave its walls lest he be assassinated. The Axis recognition of this creature is, therefore, meaningless in the Chinese picture, except for the possible breaking off of relations between Berlin and Chungking. And as for the Japanese, it should persuade them how incapable is the Axis of helping Japan at this time, and also how eager Germany and Italy are at the moment to keep the island empire tied to the Axis.

Just as Wang Ching-wei is Japan's puppet, so Mussolini, Pavelich, Antonescu and Niso are Hitler's puppets. The recognition of the Wang regime, therefore, is for the most part the recognition of an Asiatic puppet by four European ones and one European puppet master. It has not and cannot have the slightest bearing on the present situation in the Far East. It will do nothing to resolve the serious dilemma created for Japan by the German assault on Russia. Therefore, statement by the cabinet information board that the action is really a "telling blow to those who, having not yet realized the great ideal of the establishment of the East Asia new order, continue the policy of 'resistance against Japan'" is eyewash pure and simple.

God-Given Chance

Secretary Knox spoke so bluntly to the Conference of Governors at Boston Monday that his talk may be the harbinger of action. The time is at hand, he said, to use our Navy to clear the Atlantic of the Nazi menace. The time is, indeed, at hand, and for two reasons. First, our Navy is ready; otherwise the Secretary of the Navy would not have made such a bold statement. More importantly, Hitler in his campaign against Russia has presented this Nation with what the Secretary rightly called a "God-given chance."

The need to act and to act quickly is premised on the kind of world situation which the United States will face on the collapse of Russia. Hitler's swastika will be flying from the North Cape all the way to the Mediterranean and beyond. In Africa he will find the Vichy French doing his bidding down to Dakar. Moscow will be in Nazi hands, and his push into the Near East will be encircled by the arrival of Nazi legions on the nofthwest frontier of India. Thus we shall see Europe and Asia and Africa resounding to the armored might of this modern Attila.

That there is any end short of world domination to the spread of this juggernaut may be the complacent opinion of Mr. Hoover and Mr. Lindbergh. But the facts certainly don't bear them out. We doubt, for instance, whether Mr. Lindbergh will again have the face to call this conflict just another "intra-European war." Now we see the conflict in terms of a hurricane sweeping over entire continents with a force which gathers more momentum from its sizzling conquests. There was a time (and our isolationists spent it in opposing defense appropriations) when the hurricane was alibi'd as lebensraum. As such it was excused even by the ordinarily perspicacious when it absorbed a thin slice of land in the tiny country of Czecho-Slovakia. But the world no longer heard anything about lebensraum when the whole of Czecho-Slovakia was swallowed, and a dozen other countries. The Nazis now lump their conquests into a new justification called Eurafasia.

Long before Hitler got into this situation Thomas Jefferson would have called for a marriage with the British fleet against him. He was our first isolationist, yet he made the facts the servant of his policies. The facts today would have spelled to our first Secretary of State a threat to the integrity of this continent beside which Napoleon's was a false alarm. For this continent is right in the path of the Hitler hurricane. Our continent will start to break up, indeed, as soon as the danger signals are flown over such approaches to our hemisphere as Dakar, the Azores, and Verde. This is putting the menace in terms only of continental security. But our own independence as a nation, as Jefferson foresaw when he said our American interest would be endangered by the rise of a single monarchy in Europe, would be assailed merely by the juxtaposition of such a mighty empire. Instead of a voice in the world, we should be lucky to retain a whisper.

But Hitler has not yet carved out his imperial domain. So that the chance is still open to our Nation to foil this colossal attempt to make an empire and then to terrorize the rest of the world with it. Let us seize it. Let us first nail our policy on high so that it is as clear before our eyes as it is clear in our hearts and—mark well—Hitler's calculations. A Western breeze has just expressed it in the simple commonsense words of Gov. Griswold of Nebraska: "The only possible policy we can follow is to make sure Hitler does not win." How? First, as Secretary Knox says, by sweeping the Atlantic clear of the marauders who sent the Robin Moor and are sending our aid to Britain to the bottom. The Navy, of course, could not do it alone, but Col. Knox, undoubtedly, meant that the Navy should be supplemented by the air force. If we should shoulder this responsibility, then our front-line friends in Britain could rearrange their own naval and air dispositions for an offensive against Nazi Germany. They could send more of their ships into the Mediterranean. They could send more planes into the attack on Germany's industrial rear.

The Nation must see the facts too clearly to imagine with Mr. Hoover and other friends of a "stalemate" (or a negotiated peace) that this hurricane can be stopped with rosewater. It can be stopped only by our shouldering some of the responsibility with the British in naval and air cooperation in the Atlantic. Col. Knox believes with Nelson that the boldest measures are the safest. With Eurafasia looming at the end of the Russian campaign, they are, indeed, the sanest. The desperate gamble which Hitler is making in Russia calls imperatively for Britain and ourselves together to strike a telling blow which should deliver both countries from its present harness to Mars and enable both countries to settle down again to the art and business of living together in peace.

Big Spending

A great foundation which set out to spend its capital as well as the interest upon its capital is now within sighting distance of the end of its resources. This is the General Education Board. The board was founded in 1902 by the late John D. Rockefeller, and has spent $271,000,000 on its educational program. There remains only a relatively small sum of less than $14,000,000 to be allocated within the next year or so.

Some people may ask why, in view of the valuable and far-reaching activities of the foundation, it should have decreed its own end by using up capital as well as income. The question is one that arises in connection with all sorts of philanthropic undertakings. Policy in this respect depends chiefly upon what the donor or donors wish to accomplish. In the present case the immense funds at the disposal of the General Education Board would have enabled the foundation to continue indefinitely to carry on broad-scale activities without touching capital. But the benefits would have been considerably less. The outstanding accomplishments of the foundation since the beginning of the century were made possible only by using everything that it had, and that is what Mr. Rockefeller had in mind.

There are other reasons in favor of this type of terminable project. One is the unpredictability of human events. Already much of the work done by foundations that have been active in far quarters of the globe has been largely undone, and it has had to be written off as a loss. New times, too, bring new types of needs, not foreseen when agencies were set up to perform certain services. Then there is the problem of investments to consider, and this uncertainty of income on capital hampers and restricts activities, if capital holdings have to be conserved. Finally, the terminable project precludes the building up of the type of bureaucracy which is more anxious to maintain jobs than to further philanthropic work in the manner or spirit intended by the benefactor.

For such eminently practical reasons rich men have increasingly seen to it that their princely gifts are gradually disbursed in toto. Now the time for such gifts seems to be coming to an end. Taxes and political catastrophes are making increasing inroads upon wealth. And the chances that the great donations of a few decades ago will be followed by others of equal magnitude are slim, indeed. We shall have to depend increasingly, accordingly, upon the cooperation of men of lesser means to finance activities that serve the public without being of a character to warrant Government financing.

The Great DiMagg'

When Mr. Joe DiMaggio banged that single into left field at Griffith Stadium last Sunday to beat the record of the great George Sisler for base hits in consecutive games, the crowd felt that thrill which comes from watching events of known historical magnitude. Mr. DiMaggio's feat was solemnly entered in the chronicles, and will be cited for the edification of future generations. Of course, it was one of those events, like the scaling of the Matterhorn or the successful passage of Niagara Falls in a barrel, which stand, so to speak, in vacuo. That will be true even if he goes on to surpass the record established in 1895 by the late and illustrious Willie Keeler of hitting safely in 44 consecutive games. That is to say, Mr. DiMaggio's exploit, wonderful as it is, will cause no maps to be changed, no dynasties to totter, no cultures to perish, no widows to mourn. That, as you can see, puts Mr. DiMaggio in a different category from such record busters as Alexander, Tamberlane, Napoleon and Hitler. But unless we are grievously mistaken, Mr. DiMaggio prefers his own category.

Even before this exploit there was no question of DiMaggio's ultimate place up there with Sisler, Keeler, Cobb, Ruth, Speaker and the rest of the Olympians. All had their own style. As for DiMaggio's, there is something about it, at bat and in the field, that suggests some of the great sculptures of the Italian Renaissance: Donatello's, for example. But he is merely the most illustrious among the steadily increasing group that is finding in baseball a new form of expression for the serene and heroic Latin genius. Besides himself and his brothers, one must mention such individuals as Messrs. Camilli and Lavagetto of the Dodgers, Mr. Lombardi of the Reds, Mr. Mancuso of the Cards, Mr. Berardino of the Browns, Mr. Cavaretta of the Cubs. Sometimes it seems a great pity that Benito (Lippy) Mussolini never went in for baseball. Of course, it is not likely that, even had there been a sandlot next to his father's smithy, he could ever have become a great fielder, and even less likely that he would have been a great slugger. But, bless our souls, what a beautiful umpire baiter he would have made!

"Black Current"

Allow me to present a few considerations on your editorial "Black Current" in The Post of June 28.

We Catholics appreciate the courteous tone in which you always treat the actions and words of the Holy Father. We regret that we can not always follow the inferences you make from them, nor accept the advice you sometimes give.

In your last paragraph you raise the fear that Hitler propaganda about the Russian war "may find some sympathetic response among American Catholics." May I assure you that there is no danger of this? We Catholics are more immune than most to propaganda; we have had so much to suffer from it. Besides, our minds were made up on the Russian question long before The Post's linotypes ever spelled the name of Hitler. We had a point of view about Russia when she was in Spain and when American "liberals" were very insensitive to her doings there. We had the same view in 1939 when these American "liberals" had to change theirs very quickly. We have the same view in 1941 when American "liberals" are very much in danger of losing their precarious two years' balance. From 1913 through 1941 we have seen in the Kremlin the geographical center to which all international evil, including Hitler, has reference. Hitler's turning against Stalin will not change that.

Your cartoonist on the same page depicts Stalin as the figure skater followed by the terrified fellow-traveler. We American Catholics hope for the destruction of all tyrannies, Hitler's, Stalin's, or any other. If the Russian skater is first to go through the thin ice, may the German tyrant soon follow in that ruin. If we do not wish the same to the fellow travelers, it is partly from Christian charity, partly from natural pity. Once the proletarian Czar has followed the Romanoff, these will be swift to seek the protection of some other short-lived loyalty.

REV. JOHN K. CARTWRIGHT.
Washington, June 28.

Three In One

The fact that Stalin is fighting Hitler doesn't lessen the danger to us of our own special brand of Commies right here getting in their most dangerous work. Personally, I think the greatest blessing that could happen to humanity would be for Mussolini to get killed while flying back from the funerals of Hitler and Stalin.

A New Axis

The denunciation of the Nazi policies by your great President, Franklin D. Roosevelt, has been amply justified by the latest act of aggression by the Nazis on their friends of yesterday—Russia. It proves that once again Hitler has lied.

Roosevelt, together with Churchill and other leaders of democracy, has foreseen and foretold many of the crimes that the Germans have perpetrated and he has warned America, all the Americas, in no uncertain terms what the intentions of the Nazis are, namely world conquest. There should now be no shadow of doubt in the minds of the American public as to the truth of this.

And what of the menace in the Far East? Japan stands as a rock in the path of peace. She, too, has been the aggressor of peace-loving nations, and has been allowed to entrench herself in the strong position of offense that she now occupies, a bar to the peace and security of the Pacific, waiting to aid Hitler.

The stand of the United States has been very clearly defined, to help to the uttermost Britain, China, and the allied nations by munitions, ships and other aid. Japan should realize that no further encroachments will be tolerated by America.

We see that Hitler now has conquered most of Europe and is now at the throat of his latest victim, Russia. If he should win there and then beat Britain, what then? If Britain goes, then will the turn of the Americas come, as the day follows night. Boundaries and distances mean nothing. Oceans can be spanned in hours, continents bridged as soon. Is America too legarthic to act?

The burden, the blame and the shame of conquest by invasion will not rest upon the shoulders of Roosevelt, who has warned time and time again, but upon those American isolationists who are deliberately blinding themselves to the true facts for base reasons. Wake up, America, unify and act! Act, before it is too late.

An axis of America, Britain, China and Russia would be speedily joined by the majority of the defeated nations of Europe. And the basis of a true and lasting peace will rest upon who? Who would be the chosen leader? The American people would undoubtedly decide, on the basis of their place in the proposed Axis.

Letter From England

This is a letter which I have recently received from England. I felt it might interest your readers:

You probably heard on the wireless of the loss of the ——, and I am really just writing to tell you that my beloved son lost his life when she was torpedoed. In spite of knowing at the back of one's mind that this might occur at any moment, it was the most appalling shock to me, not made easier by the fact that I was asked to say nothing to anyone till it was officially announced ten days later. So I went off to my work as usual and no one knew, but kept asking me how he was and I just had to pretend I hadn't heard lately.

I am still getting his letters and I have just had an air mail one from his father who had been seeing a good deal of him. He says "If there was one man in the world who knew how to face death cheerfully and fearlessly it was he. On several occasions he came straight to see me after staring death straight in the face—I can give you no particulars at present, but I can say he was a most glorious example of what English youth should be, and we can hold up our heads in pride." Well, I would have known that, but it is good to hear it nevertheless. I am terribly proud. He was the light of my life, and the thought of the emptiness ahead is almost unbearable, but I will not let myself be unhappy—he was such a happy boy. I am just so thankful for every memory of him, for he was a most wonderful son to me.

His younger brother's reaction was immediate. He would wait no longer, and went to see his godfather and the latter advised him to go into the marines. It all happened quickly. I dashed up to town and helped him to pack and after a hectic rush of getting uniforms he joined the marines last Sunday as a Temp. Second Lieut. L. C.

Public Enemy No. 1

I recall that in August, 1939, the hand then guiding your editorials wrote approximately: We told you so; Nazi and Soviet aims are the same, and bound to join; they are like peas in the pod.

At that time you printed letters from me expressing a dissident view, although I did not quote Hitler's contemporary proclamation, "You know that Germany and Russia are ruled by two different doctrines." Hitler should usually be read in reverse and thus would seem to support your view.

You are consistent today, also right, in holding that only the purblind will be fooled by Ribbentrop's declaration that "in deadly enmity, national socialism and bolshevism stand opposite each other." While it would be purblind to believe that the Reich is now inspired to a holy crusade against communism, it is astigmatic to see the two systems, national socialism and the socialist Soviets, as identical. The German "system" is "Deutschland Uber Alles."

I have maintained that Stalin understood the Nazi movement and hoped to divert the lightning from the Soviet Union when he made his treaty with Hitler. You express this very thought today and add: "He sought to give his country time to build up her defenses against the ultimate day of reckoning with the Reich."

The present clash is hardly something other than "deadly enmity"—not a crusade—a swastikade!

Let's stop ideologizing and get our No. 1 enemy, Hitler, nee Schicklgruber.

Government Worker Replies To C.I.O.

I read with interest Mr. Jerry Kluttz's Federal Diary in The Post of June 16 in which he spoke of alleged Communist activities in a Federal agency and referred to a letter signed by "A Working Gal," who was apparently in sympathy with this agitation. I should like to give the other side of a dark picture.

On the morning of June 11 as I stepped from a bus in front of the War Department, I was handed a circular issued by the C. I. O. on the five extra work-hours a week. This morning as I entered the building I was handed another circular. During the two years I was an employe of the Social Security Board, I became so used to finding such things put on my desk, I didn't have to look around for scratch pads. To date none have dared to come into the Munitions Building, but if they are allowed the freedom they seem to be enjoying today, it won't be long before they will be placing them on our desks here.

Can't anything be done to rid the United States of these foreigners or "turncoat," disloyal Americans? There are many thousand Federal employes who would join me in doing our share in that direction.

I wrote the following answer to the C. I. O. Union immediately after I received their circular:

From: A Patriotic American Employe Of The War Department.
Subject: Longer Hours Without Extra Compensation.

1. I resent your insolence in standing before the department building in which I work to hand out your insidious literature. As a loyal American anything you have to say or print is obnoxious to me.

2. I have friends who are working for $21 a month to serve the country they love and why should I, when my love of country is equally as strong, fall when I am most needed. Five hours or forever, so long as I breathe the freedom of America, I shall give my all to my country.

3. Facing the fact of Washington's high cost of living—there is an authority, far greater than any your union has to offer, who will protect the Government employes, in every way, from increased living expenses.

4. "One hour a day—without extra pay"

Is that your theme? Then here's my scheme—

"We'll gladly give five hours per week, and by so doing we won't lose sleep—

"And what we save in dollars and cents

"Will be our share for national defense . . ."

I hope that this will serve as an adequate answer to the letter you spoke of signed "A Working Gal."

On String Quartets

The string quartet has often been called "the purest and highest form of absolute music," whatever that may mean. To my ear and mind, all music is absolute, in the sense that it is music and nothing more nor less, and to argue whether a string quartet, a symphony, or a piccolo concerto is the purest and highest form of music seems to me a waste of time. At any rate, the string quartet is one of the most completely satisfying forms of music.

The range of effects, of course, is somewhat limited as compared with the orchestra, but within that range there are infinite variations. The combination of two violins, a viola, and a cello offers the whole gamut of the orchestra, from the low C of the cello to the highest notes of the violin. By using the natural scale, purer and more liquid harmonies are obtained. The combination of these four instruments produces the most exquisite sounds the human ear can perceive.

The string quartet is peculiarly adapted to the contrapuntal style. The four voices, blending, weaving in and out, supporting each other, each distinct and yet all sounding in one perfect whole, are an ideal medium for the statement and development of themes. It is also a merciless form. If a composer has nothing to say, he cannot choose a poorer way of saying it than in a string quartet, for it is composed simply of four melodic lines and nothing more. Defects and deficiencies cannot be covered up, but stand bare and naked, trembling at themselves.

It was natural that in the development of chamber music some one should hit upon the combination which is now known as the string quartet and that the unique qualities of that combination should be at once apparent. Wasieliewski mentions manuscript copies, in the private music collection of the former kings of Saxony, of two string quartets in the narrowest form of the Corelli sonata, by Alessandro Scarlatti. If this be so, Scarlatti is to be considered the father of the string quartet.

At any rate, the string quartet as we know it began with Boccherini, Dittersdorf and Haydn. Boccherini wrote a great number of quartets, but none of them is played today, for they are too simple and shallow in structure to be satisfying. Joseph Haydn realized the tremendous possibilities of the string quartet and brought it to its present form. To be sure, his first ones were rather elementary in structure, with short, undeveloped movements in the same key and with little modulation. Haydn, a pupil of Porpora, had a particular affection for the violin and gave undue prominence to the first violin in his earlier quartets.

Haydn wrote some 77 quartets in all, and it did not take him long to grow out of his early immaturities. His later quartets are fully balanced structures with rather elaborate thematic developments and are especially notworthy for the skillful use of the cello. Perhaps his best-known work is the "Emperor" Quartet in C Major (Op. 76, No. 3), in which the Austrian Festival Hymn furnishes the material for an enchanting theme and variations.

Mozart began writing string quartets rather late in life; his first one was written when he was 17. The early Mozart quartets differ little from those of Haydn and follow his model, with the first and last movements allegro and the second and third a minuet and an adagio. The full flowering of Mozart's genius is to be seen in the six quartets dedicated to Haydn and written when he was 26. The second of these, in D Minor, was composed in his wife's room during her illness. The third, in B Flat Major, is the so-called "Hunting" Quartet, from the opening theme of the first movement, which uses the "horn fifths."

The string quartet reached its supreme development in the hands of Beethoven, who gave it an orchestral fullness and a richness and complexity of thematic development which made it the most perfect expression of his genius. It is interesting to note that only 45 years elapsed between the publication of Haydn's first quartet, a rather thin and empty little thing, and the appearance, in 1800, of Beethoven's Quartet No. 1, in F Major, in which his consummate artistry is clearly perceived. The first movement of this quartet, incidentally, is interesting as containing 102 repetitions of a single motive in 313 bars.

Beethoven's first six quartets, Opus 18, were dedicated to his benefactor, Prince Lebkowitz. The next three, Opus 59, were inscribed to Prince Rasoumovski, the Russian Ambassador at the Austrian court. Perhaps in his honor, the third movement of the first of these quartets contains a "Theme Russe" for the violin.

The last quartets, Opera 130, 131, 132, and 135, written when the composer was completely deaf, are, in my opinion, the greatest music ever written. They are hard to grasp, both in structure and in content, and have to be heard repeatedly before one can even begin to appreciate their grandeur. Not only does Beethoven explore to the full the utmost resources of the four instruments, singly and in combination; he also uses silence as an integral part of the structure. The thematic development of these last quartets is one of the most astonishing products of the human mind.

To enumerate the remaining composers of string quartets would be almost equivalent to naming every composer since Beethoven's time. Brahms wrote three quartets which are remarkable for their purity of style and exquisite technical skill. He made especially effective use of the viola.

Schubert composed some 16 quartets, of which the most noteworthy is No. 14, in D Minor. He used the "Death and the Maiden" theme for the second movement, giving it to the cello, viola and second violin, with the first violin making exquisite embroideries about it.

Especially interesting to Americans is Dvorak's Quartet No. 6, in F Major, Opus 96. This was written in illustration of Dvorak's idea of an American School of National Music which should be based on Negro songs and dances. The "American" or "Negro" quartet was composed during his stay in New York from 1892 to 1895, as Director of the National Conservatory of Music and emulates Negro themes entirely. JOHN T. ASPLEY.

Far Eastern Policy

By Ernest K. Lindley

A Grave Concern For America

AMERICAN POLICY in regard to the Russian Far East is being carefully surveyed by officials of the State, War and Navy Departments. Too many "ifs" are involved to permit any policy to be settled upon now. "Ifs" of the same kinds and multitude explain in large part why the Administration had not charted such a policy before the German invasion of Russia was announced.

LINDLEY

But if the Russian armies in the west are overwhelmed, as most military experts expect them to be, within three weeks to three months, what happens to eastern Siberia will become important to the security of the United States. At one point Russian territory is only about 20 miles from American soil in Alaska. The Commander Islands, lying off Kamchatka, can be used as submarine bases to cut off the Bering Sea from the Pacific Ocean. The Russians have a chain of air bases along northern as well as southern Siberia and have been developing them very close to Alaska.

While northeastern Siberia is mostly an uninhabited, scrub-timber wilderness that is a barrier to large-scale military operations, its control by an ambitious and actively hostile power with a large air force would be worrisome.

THE ONE DEFINITE point in our policy in this area is to rush to completion the new naval and air bases in Alaska. These bases were begun with one eye on Japan and the other on Russia. Although Russia as an independent nation, with vast undeveloped territory of its own, had not caused us military anxiety, the Russo-German pact of 1939 was thought to hold the possibility of Russia's becoming an active partner or satellite of the Nazis.

If the Russian armies in the west are defeated, the control of eastern Siberia might go in any one of at least five directions:

1. Direct control by Germany. Military men regard control of the Trans-Siberian Railroad and its offshoots and of the air fields as sufficient for domination of the whole vast area.

2. Indirect control through a puppet government in Moscow or elsewhere in Russia.

3. Conquest by Japan, the solution which Japanese imperialists have long looked forward to.

4. Control by the present Communist regime, through the removal of its capital east of the Urals.

5. Control by an independent Siberian or eastern Siberian government of some sort.

CONTROL of eastern Siberia by either Germany or Japan, directly or indirectly, would be a source of anxiety. Control by Germany would not only bring the Nazis close to American soil but might enable them to convert Japan into another Vichy government, if not another Italy. German planes based on Vladivostok, within easy range of Japanese cities, could apply the severest sort of blackmail.

Domination by Japan might be less immediately menacing to us. But it is worth recalling that 23 years ago American troops were sent to Vladivostok without declaration of war against Russia. One reason, probably the main reason, was to prevent Japan from getting a free hand in the maritime provinces of Russia.

An early attack by Japan on the maritime provinces seems out of the question. The Japanese are understood to have only 11 divisions in Manchukuo, as against 53 Russian divisions east of Lake Baikal. In 1938, moreover, the Japanese found out that the Russians could fight. In a sampling engagement on the border, begun by the Japanese, they were thoroughly licked.

AT LAST REPORT the Russians had in Siberia about 725,000 troops, composed of 34 infantry divisions, 11 tank brigades, 10 cavalry divisions and 10 air divisions.

Recent travelers tell of a westward movement of Russian troops on the Trans-Siberian Railroad, but it is thought doubtful that more than a small percentage of the Russian Far Eastern army and air force has been moved to the main battle front in Europe. The Far Eastern army is set up on a semi-independent basis, with its own munitions plants east of the Urals. And only a few Russian air squadrons at Vladivostok are enough to be a deadly menace to highly inflammable Japanese cities, not to mention what the considerable Russian submarine force in the Pacific might achieve.

In time the Japanese could get turned around and perhaps put into Manchukuo enough troops to take on the Russians. But meanwhile what will have happened to the Stalin government? If Russia and the Stalin government fall in the west, can the Far Eastern provinces of Russia be induced to carry on the fight? If so, can we help supply them through Vladivostok without running afoul the Japanese navy? Will the Germans elect to stop at the Urals, anyway? Would Japan give up all of China south of the Yellow River in order to get and hold the Russian maritime provinces? What materials will we be able to spare from British or our own use two or three months hence? Will the ships be available to transport them to Vladivostok?

THESE and a hundred other questions beset anyone, no matter how well informed, who tries to plot our policy with regard to Russia, especially Far Eastern Russia. Perhaps the most encouraging report on our official-dom is that it does not attempt to make easy answers.

Sketches Give Background Of Cities in Russo-Nazi War

Russian and German war communiques have been filled with mention of little known towns and cities from Finland to Rumania, which have been centers of land or air battles. Here are thumbnail sketches, prepared by the National Geographic Society, of some of these key points:

LUCK, scene of a major tank engagement. This old town in southeast Poland was the center of a Russian offensive in the summer and fall of 1916. At that time the Austro-German front south of the Pripet marshes was broken. Russia recaptured much territory and took 350,000 prisoners. There were nearly a million Russian casualties. Four centuries ago it was an important city, but its 40,000 residents were wiped out in the Russo-Polish wars of that period.

CONSTANTA, reported bombed by Soviet fliers: Here is Rumania's principal Black Sea port, because, unlike towns at the mouth of the Danube River, Constanta's harbor is never icebound. The national naval school and naval headquarters were established there. Oil from the Rumanian fields is brought to Constanta by pipe lines and railroad tank cars and normally is shipped through the Bosporus and the Dardanelles to Mediterranean points. Population has exceeded 60,000.

FLORSTI, also a target of Russian bombers: Situated at the southern entrance of a valley among the Transylvanian foothills, this Rumanian city of some 77,000 is the center of the nation's oil industry. It is an important railroad junction about 150 miles northwest of Constanta.

LIBAU, reported captured by the Germans: This Latvian port on the Baltic ranks next to Riga, the country's capital, both in shipping and population (about 87,000). It is open virtually the year round. Libau became available to the Russians for a naval base by the treaty of October 5, 1940, it was incorporated in the U. S. S. R. with the rest of Latvia. An important coaling and grain port, with metal, linoleum, and vegetable oil works, it was besieged in the World War by the Germans and held by them until 1919.

VIIPURI, where the Russians say they seized German troops attempting to land: This former Finnish seaport is only 75 miles northwest of Leningrad. Before it passed to Russia with the Karelian Isthmus area early in 1940, it was the leading industrial and commercial center of eastern Finland. Served by a network of roads and railroads, and by the Saima Canal, Viipuri was Finland's busiest timber export center; it had important machine shops, sawmills, and iron foundries. It is largely a modern-built city of over 80,000.

Case Of Harry Jones

THIS PERSISTENT, factual presentation of proof that the American Federation of Labor is positively crawling with criminals of the lowest type may become monotonous to some. However, I just figure that we are at a very fateful point in the social and political career of this country, and that if the unions are to have a powerful voice in the Government, the vermin must be cleaned out. Otherwise the whole American people will find themselves under the rule of dive-keepers, degenerates, dynamiters, stickup men and extortioners. That will mean nothing short of civil war, for the people certainly will fight in the streets rather than submit.

With this word of explanation I proceed today with some unfinished business in the case of a vicious criminal named Harry D. Jones, who has been convicted in Akron, Ohio, of hiring two men to dynamite three buildings.

CONSIDER first the official power which was given this criminal before we proceed to consideration of his background. He is a vice president of the Ohio State Federation of Labor, business agent of the Akron local of the Operating Engineers, a vice president of the Summit County (or Akron) Trades and Labor Assembly and treasurer of the Tri-County Building Trades Council, which dominates the Akron Municipal Building Department. The council has a practice of selling work permits at $1 a day to American citizens while rejecting applications for full union membership.

Last November Jones hired two stupid brothers, members of his Operating Engineers' Union—which is one of the worst in the country—to blow up three building jobs that were being executed by C. I. O. labor. The motive is obvious. His Building Trades Council naturally wanted those jobs and wanted also the dues and the $1 a day to be derived from work permits. It also had an interest in wholly excluding the C. I. O. from the local construction field.

One of the bombs was mistimed, one of the brothers being killed. The other was caught and confessed, implicating Jones. And the Summit County (or Akron) Trades and Labor Assembly, of which Jones is vice president, promptly called a special meeting which adopted a resolution protesting against a "smear" and promising "to work with all interested parties toward a solution" of the crime. But neither this assembly nor any other A. F. of L. agency ever did anything to help the prosecutor, Alva J. Russell. Mr. Russell and his staff had to make their own case, and they never could show who, if anyone, in the building trades branch of union activity in Akron shared with him the initiative in the conspiracy.

MEANWHILE in Dayton, a union publication, called the Labor Union, denounced as a lie an assertion in these dispatches that there had been bombings in Dayton. Of a truth there had been none, but the error was geographical. However, the Labor Union is the political organ of John E. Briedenbach, of Dayton, president of the Dayton Central Labor Union and, like the criminal Jones, a vice president of the Ohio Federation of Labor.

Breidenbach's paper represents itself to be the "State" labor publication of Ohio, a claim which has been repudiated by other publications and by certain Ohio unions. And his editor has admitted in writing that the Labor Union "generally" suppresses the "harmful things," which, of course, might include the intimate official relationship of Breidenbach and Jones as co-vice presidents of the Ohio Federation of Labor. The paper has not emphasized that since Jones was convicted his past record was unearthed by Mr. Russell.

And what does this record show? What achievements qualified Brother Jones for four official positions in the house of labor?

WELL, first, back in 1904 he did 30 days in jail for larceny, but he was only 18 at the time, so why bring that up? The reason for bringing that up is that in the same year he committed another crime which showed that he never could be anything but a criminal of the most loathsome sort. On August 27 of that year he assaulted a boy and for that served 2 years, 3 months and 14 days in the Mansfield, Ohio, reformatory.

In 1909, under the name of Hiram W. Sylvester, he got two years in the Missouri State prison for stealing a horse and carriage, and served 1 year 5 months and 18 days. Being no boy but a man of 38 years in Cleveland, he was caught with a 12-year-old girl in his automobile after a night out together, and got six months on a charge of attempting to rape the child.

That is why Jones did not take the stand in his trial on the dynamiting charges, for which he was sentenced to serve from 3 to 21 years, and that is the character of the colleague of John Breidenbach, the Dayton union journalist, union politician and co-vice president of the American Federation of Labor for the State of Ohio.

Prospects Of War

By Mark Sullivan

Imminence Of Our Participation

IF YOU SEEK factual information in Washington, about the likelihood of the United States being in the war, the answer is strongly yes, and at an early date. Technically, the answer depends on Germany. There is no present prospect of our declaring war. But there is more than prospect, there is likelihood, of our taking new and further steps in protection of what we regard as our rights and interests. Such steps Germany could regard as cause for war or not, as would suit her interest.

SULLIVAN

If you ask the probable path by which we shall move further, the answer is to be found in the latest speech of Secretary of the Navy Knox. His urgent specific recommendation is that we "use our Navy to clear the Atlantic of the German menace."

This is different from, and broader than, the "convoying" of British merchant ships, about which there has been much and useless talk. The war has passed into a stage in which mere convoying of British ships is not enough; and the attitude of the American Government has passed into a stage in which something more far-reaching than convoying British ships is likely.

SECRETARY KNOX, so far as he dealt with facts, dwelt upon the sinkings of British cargo ships. The total sinkings for the first five months this year were 2,198,000 gross tons. This is more than 12 per cent of the total tonnage the British have available. Mr. Knox estimated the sinkings for the whole present year as likely to be at an annual rate of more than five million tons, about one-fourth of all that Britain has available. "There is only one end to this rate of sinking—victory for Hitler."

Secretary Knox then showed the effect of these sinkings on the shipment of supplies which we are formally committed to giving Britain under the lease-lend bill. He went on the assumption not only that we are obligated to make these goods for Britain, but that it is our interest and obligation to see that the goods reach Britain safely.

FOR OUR NAVY to protect British cargo vessels would mean that a vessel of our Navy, protecting a cargo ship of a belligerent, would shoot at a submarine or raider or plane of the other belligerent. That would be, or would clearly and quickly lead to what Germany would be justified in regarding as an act of war.

There is another course in which we would be justified, wholly on our own account. Germany has sunk an American cargo ship, the Robin Moor, under circumstances which were a violation of international law and of a specific pact to which we and Germany subscribed ten years ago. This act by a German submarine can be taken, if we choose, as justification for our use of our Navy to guarantee the safety of American cargo vessels. Sure guaranty of safety for our cargo vessels would mean searching for German submarines and raiders, wherever they are; calling on them to surrender; bringing them to an American port and interning them if they surrender; attacking and sinking them if they do not surrender.

A GERMAN submarine or raider or plane, removed as a menace to American shipping, would be equally removed as a menace to Britain. Our Navy, acting solely in protection of our own merchant shipping, would be as effective as our Navy uniting with the British navy in a joint search for German attackers. But the difference would be that action by us restricted to the purpose of protecting our own shipping would be less a justification for Germany to declare war on us.

Secretary Knox did not mention this alternative course, nor allude to the Robin Moor or American shipping at all. In spirit, his speech was an all-out call for all-out war against Hitler. He based his justification not at all on German attack upon American shipping, nor wholly on German menace to shipment of our goods to Britain. His call was to war against Hitler as a pagan force, a conqueror intent upon domination of the world.

TO TAKE A COURSE defined as protection for our own shipping, rather than to merge ourselves into the general fight against Hitler, might have some future safeguards. General partnership in the fight against Hitler might bring us unforeseen associations and embarrassments. In this war the unforeseen can be very unforeseen indeed. Who thought three weeks ago that Russia would be at war with Germany; or a year ago that a French army would be fighting a British army in Syria; or two years ago that Finland, by becoming an ally of Germany, would be on the opposite side from Britain.

The judgment that we are likely to enter the war has broader grounds than Secretary Knox's speech. Mr. Knox is more fervent and forthright than some others. But no one can be familiar with the atmosphere of Washington without recognizing the amount of sentiment which either hopes for our entry in the war, or expects that our entry will become inevitable.

USHA Suspends Bernard Ades; Record As Communist Probed

By the Associated Press

Bernard Ades, Communist Party candidate for Governor of Maryland in 1934, has been suspended from employment in the United States Housing Authority by Administrator Nathan Straus.

Ades' dismissal was demanded by Representative D'Alesandro (Democrat), of Maryland, on the ground he was a Communist leader.

Straus informed D'Alesandro that he had appointed a special committee of three United States Housing Authority officials, headed by Leon Keyserling, the deputy administrator, to study Ades' record. The findings of this committee, he said, "justified some immediate action."

Final action will not be taken, Straus said, until a report is received from the Federal Bureau of Investigation on a separate study of Ades' activities. Meanwhile, Ades will receive no pay.

The administrator told D'Alesandro that when Ades asked for a job as auditor in 1939 at $2,000 annually there was nothing in his file "to indicate facts in his former record which have so recently been revealed to me." Ades, former Baltimore attorney, resides in Arlington, Va.

Ades figured prominently in the news in 1933 and 1934 in the famed case of Euel Lee, colored Eastern Shore resident accused of murdering a Maryland family. Ades represented Lee in a bitterly fought court case lasting many months, and it was announced at that time that Ades was attorney for the International Labor Defense League. Lee was convicted and executed at the Maryland penitentiary. Then Ades engaged in a legal fight with Maryland officials over custody of Lee's body, saying he wanted to take it to New York for a big public funeral and demonstration. Judge Eugene O'Dunne, of the Baltimore Circuit Court, ruled against Ades, however, and issued "shoot to kill" orders to State police if any resistance to the State-conducted funeral were encountered. Lee's grave was closely guarded for some time following the burial.

Thoughts For July 4

Bunker Hill: What a memory! The boys bled and died there without first hearing from a Gallup poll!

Concord Bridge: A spot where Americans fought for their country away back before they even dreamed of getting any relief checks, pension payments, jobs, bungalows or happiness programs from the Government.

Lexington: Another place, the mention of which stirs the blood as it brings to mind a period when we would fight without even considering the vitamin or balanced ration aspect.

Paul Revere: There was an American patriot! He rode to spread the alarm without first arranging for news photographers to be at the starting point or having everything fixed for the newsreel cameras to snap him at the finish.

John Hancock: Consider him this Glorious Fourth, mister. Signing your name to the Declaration of Independence was signing your own death warrant if things went wrong, but John wrote his so it could be seen clear across a dimly lighted room . . . and without first demanding that some trial balloons be sent up to get the public sentiment.

Thomas Jefferson (and all the other signers, too): They knew that "sticking their necks out" meant an invitation to the firing squad, not merely an editorial denunciation or a rebuke from a radio commentator but they just said, "Pass the ink. Let's get this over." And they signed when it was midsummer weather just like this and there were so many more pleasant things to do.

Ethan Allen: Ethan and his Green Mountain boys never heard of an 8-hour day, a 5-day week, or more abundant life, or any Federal certificates entitling the holder to an extra cut of strawberry shortcake, but they thought the country worth fighting for at the drop of a hat.

Israel Putnam: What a man Old Put was! He quit his plow at the first news of battle at a time when a farmer couldn't depend on anybody else to make the farm pay and without first making sure that he got prominent mention in the Life or Time magazines of the era.

George Washington: An American who could take it; a patriot first, last, and all the time, even if it greatly interfered with his personal comforts.

The Minute Men: They weren't called this because if they didn't get results in 60 seconds they quit and phoned for help.

Valley Forge: Well, too many modern Americans would think they were wintering there if they had to skimp on gasoline, walk to work, get to the office before 10 a. m., spend Sundays at home and go without a second helping of turkey.

Middlesex: They got up at the first alarm and reached for a gun instead of the appeasement literature.

The Liberty Bell: Thank God they didn't have sirens, mikes or sound trucks to cheapen the event!

Independence: You had to buy it in those days with your blood and not with ten coupons, the right political tie-up, a personal appearance on a forum of the air or an ever-ready soapbox.

Declaration: When the boys of 1776 made one it could never be confused with anything on a true or false program, a Mickey Mouse film, a mass meeting of appeasers or a violent case of hiccoughs.

1776: There's a date for you! It sounds more like a football signal and less like a limousine registration tag than 1947, doesn't it?

At a recent meeting of stylists in New York an air-raid shelter for men and women was introduced. It is made of an extra warm material and has pockets for flashlights, thermos bottles, magazines, etc. Quite nifty. But we expect a terrible scene in the shelter when Mrs. Smith shows up in her $6.89 shelter costume and finds that Mrs. Brown is wearing the very same thing.

Our Future Is At Stake, Too

ONE OF THE MOST dangerous of all illusions harbored by our isolationists is that even if Germany won the war we should have little to fear from her since she would be too exhausted to attack us.

NOVER

The absurdity of this particular species of wishful thinking is being demonstrated in eastern Europe today.

At the time Hitler gave orders to attack Soviet Russia, the Third Reich had been at war for almost 22 months. During that period the German army and air force had been engaged in campaigns of greater or lesser magnitude in Poland, Norway, the Low Countries, France, Yugoslavia, Greece, and North Africa, not to mention the aerial struggle over Great Britain that began last summer and has continued to this day.

During these 22 months German cities have been bombed, some of them heavily and repeatedly, German communications interrupted, German reserves of certain essential raw materials eaten into. Nonetheless, the wear and tear of close to two years of war proved insufficient to deter Hitler from launching a campaign against a nation of 180,000,000 possessing an army which, whatever its capacity, was at least numerically equal to his own.

SOON AFTER the German-Russian war began some said that this time, at last, Hitler had made a mistake. As to that, time alone can tell. But it is apparent from the very considerable progress made by the German armies in forging ahead into Russia that Hitler's move was a calculated one. He ordered the attack on Russia because he saw advantages to be derived from the conquest of Russia. And it is fair to assume that when he gave the order he was sanguine of the prospect of achieving his objective.

In other words, we must assume that Hitler believes Germany to be not weaker but stronger than she was in September, 1939. Then Russia was deemed enough of a threat to the Reich as to compel Hitler to buy off the Red dictator with a pledge of nonaggression and permission to share in Germany's territorial spoils. Twenty-two months later Hitler not only found it unnecessary to remain on friendly terms with Russia but did not even bother to send an ultimatum to the Soviet government before launching his attack.

In one sense, certainly, Germany is very much stronger than she was in 1939. Then she was surrounded by a host of actual and potential enemies and could claim only one nation—Italy—as her ally, and an uncertain ally at that. Now every possible center of resistance in Western and Southern and Northern Europe has been destroyed. Great Britain alone remains. And Russia.

WHERE THE DEFENSE of a nation is concerned ideologies count for little or nothing. It would be criminal stupidity on Britain's part, for instance, to scorn the benefits she may derive from Russian resistance because the Russian political and economic system happen to be hated by the overwhelming majority of the people of Britain. It would be equally ruinous if we allowed ideological differences to restrain us from taking every advantage of the German-Russian struggle to add to our security. To regard the German attack on the Soviet Union purely as a windfall, a breathing spell, an occasion to rest on our oars and allow the two dictators to cut each other's throats is to misread the meaning and significance of what is going on in Eastern Europe today.

IN HIS RADIO address of Sunday night Herbert Hoover made the comforting assertion that "Hitler's real weakness would be in peace."

That is, the statement would be comforting if it had any relation to reality. Unfortunately, it ignores the fundamental fact that the Nazi system is a war system that lives on war and thrives on war and is perpetuated by war. That has been true from the moment Hitler came into power in Germany. It would remain true even if all of Europe were conquered by the Reich. And it is precisely because it is true that it would be suicidal on our part to view the Russo-German struggle as merely a pleasant interlude in an otherwise tragic dream.

For if Russia is conquered, and that is a possibility which becomes more real with each mile that the panzer divisions penetrate the Soviet Union, Germany would be strengthened rather than weakened by the campaign she has made, just as she was strengthened rather than weakened by her earlier victories. She would be in a position to rob Russia of her resources. She would acquire vast stores of supplies, military and otherwise. And, above all, the isolation of Great Britain and the United States would be very considerably intensified.

WITH RUSSIA conquered, Germany would be able to hurl her full force against Great Britain. It might then be too late for us to make good the difference between Britain's war power and the Reich's. We would then find ourselves alone, with no possible allies left except the nations of this hemisphere. Few of them are in a position to help us to any great extent. Some of them might be too impressed by German might to want to do so.

The time to act is now. We must not allow ourselves to fall into the trap that every other one of Hitler's victims, including Russia, fell into. Hitler's victories have primarily been achieved in the diplomatic sphere, by isolating his opponents before hurling his legions against them. He has not changed his tactics. The ideological crusade against communism which he is now preaching had as much meaning as would a crusade by Al Capone against racketeering. It is a war of nerves designed to weaken Great Britain and the United States in the hope that in so doing Germany will be able ultimately to destroy them, one by one, as he has done all of her other victims. Not to take advantage of the opportunity which he has created for us and Great Britain by his attack on Russia, an opportunity which may prove of very short duration, would be monstrous.

School Days Again For 4,250 Students

WOE IS ME, SCHOOL AGAIN—Tony Glezos, of 766 Quebec Street Northwest, appears to be day dreaming

With less than two weeks vacation from winter classrooms behind them, about 4,250 Washington youngsters yesterday morning reopened their text books and settled down for summer school sessions in 15 local schools.

They went to work on fundamental "bread and butter" subjects—English, history and mathematics for the junior and senior high school students and the three R's for elementary pupils.

Summer school scholars have but 30 working days to cover the equivalent of one semester in winter school.

Edward J. Lockwood, who has been director of District summer schools for the past 10 years said that summer school enrollment is composed of approximately 50 per cent students who passed a subject "by the skin of their teeth" and who want to go back over the ground. Twenty per cent are students who failed subjects and are repeating them, and 20 per cent are doing advance work so they may skip a grade, Lockwood said.

This year 117 teachers are at work in Central High School, Macfarland Junior High School, 12 elementary schools and one Americanization school.

Family Affair

MRS. RUTH BERRYMAN, president of the auxiliary of Killeen Post, American Legion, and registrar at the National Guard Armory, signed up her son for Selective Service. He is Monroe Dixon. Also on hand was Dixon's grandmother, Mrs. Evelyn Copeland. She, too, is a registrar and is president of the auxiliary of the Treasury Post, American Legion. Registration cards of the men who signed up yesterday will be shuffled and numbered within the next few days by local draft boards in preparation for a second national lottery

It's Her Headache—Frances Hobbs, 1640 Twenty-first Street, a clerk at Board 13, has to assort, file and keep tab on some 2,000 registrations

Their Names On the Line

At the registration center in the Thomson School, John J. Long, commander of the Internal Revenue Post of the American Legion, yesterday registered District 21-year-olds for Selective Service. Here, Long signs up Oakley Powers. John J. Malone (left), superintendent of Draft Area 13, and Cyril Foster and Leonard Reynolds watch the procedure. Beginning shortly before 7 a. m., the 25 District registration areas enrolled a steady flow of prospective selectees in the 21-year age group. For many of those registered the War Department promised an early call to service

Panzers Go to 'War' Like Sunday Drivers

By Bill Cunningham

Hey! Mr. Toastmaster, ladies and gentlemen. As a charter member of this organization—yeah, one of my great grand-pappies fought and was wounded almost unto death in the Army of Gen. George Washington—and one whose dues are fully paid up to the moment, I rise to a point of order to protest the dogging of some of the most important of those monster military maneuvers now being prosecuted in the sovereign State of Tennessee.

I am prepared to accept a certain amount of make-believe. As an artilleryman in the World War, I spent three months running around saw horses at Camp Devens because they didn't have any actual cannon to train us with. And after that, for something like two years in France climbing the caliber ladder from trench mortars to the railway artillery, I never fired nor even saw an American-made piece, and neither did any other American, for the Germans called it off before any of our domestic stock ever got there.

Production has started from taw and everybody knows you can put a suit on a civilian and call him a soldier a lot faster than you can turnout a workmanlike contraption for him to shoot or to fly. Under such circumstances, simulation, as silly as it looks and feels, is better than just standing around.

But what I don't pass without protest is kindergarten faking with the genuine article. I didn't hear about—I saw—on a visit to Georgia's Fort Benning, what the authorities called our answer to Her Schickelgruber's kind of war, the mighty motorized units of our Second Armored Division, the first panzer arm in the history of the United States Army.

I didn't hear about—I heard and saw, as a working newspaperman — the start of those great Army maneuvers in Tennessee. All the way from the top desks in Washington to the pup tents of the dust-stained juniors actually in the field, I was told, "This is IT." Here, I was told over and over, until it became a virtual chant, was where we find out what we've got, whether we've started right, whether it'll stand up.

This was to be actual war, all but the shooting. The problem was realistic and thoroughly understood. The defenders were to be given the shock of the German style of attack, and the most sensational feature was to be a smashing invasion of Tennessee by the panzers from Georgia, while the defending army was trying to halt the mythical invader pushing southward from the vicinity of Chicago down the valley of the mighty Mississippi.

One pictured those hard-hitting motorized columns climbing into the Cumberland country over secret routes to take that "defending army" by surprise, in the rear. One had read how they smashed into France, and rolled down into Greece chewing up the miles as if they were so much spaghetti. Well, here came the harder-hitting, better-armored, better-engined, American answer.

But how did they come?

Largely into the town of Shelbyville, Tenn., by train, like the Barnum & Bailey circus. The tanks were shipped from Fort Meade in Maryland and the Fort Benning bivouac as railway freight on flat cars, and the war had to stand by until they got them unloaded.

The combat performance was little more than a joke because the tanks couldn't invade any private property, which means they couldn't go cross-country, and that just happens to be most of the reason for tanks. Confined exclusively to public roads, most of them too narrow to turn around in, the tanks offered no tactical problem your 9-year-old kid couldn't solve.

All he'd need would be a road map from some Shelbyville filling station and a few friends on a few hilltops bright enough to wave even a primitive signal. If the tanks weren't on one road, they were bound to be on another. All he'd have to do to cancel 'em would be to move his theoretical artillery to some hummock that brought 'em in range.

There was one touching interlude when the Seventieth Tank Battalion from Fort Meade located a flock of infantry lying concealed in a field. Rushing headlong to accomplish its destruction, the battalion had to call "time out" about 200 yards from the "machine gun nests" while one of the members climbed out of his motorized blockhouse to open a farm gate so the column could come through.

What kind of a war are you simulating when everybody comes to parade rest while a guy gets out to open a gate?

They were contented, comfortable and didn't heed the rags on their feet. The scorching sidewalks were in another world

Woman, 32, Wed 2 Years and Expecting Second Child, Finds Herself Resenting Husband's Eagerness for Parenthood; He Had Talked of 'Spaced Babies'

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 32 years old and have been married a little over two years. I am very much in love with my husband and have every reason to believe he cares as much for me. We have a darling son, 6 months old, who means everything to my husband, as he was married before, for 19 years, and had no children. We had originally planned to have two children, spacing them a couple of years apart.

But immediately after our son was born, my husband started planning for the second child, who is now on the way, and expected in February. Since I had a rather difficult time with my firstborn, and was bedfast for two months afterward, this seems almost more than I can stand, at my age. Even my doctor said I should have at least a year in which to build myself up, after the first baby came. And since becoming a mother, I have been so tied down that I never see friends.

It appears that I am going to have an equally difficult time bearing the second child, added to which is the task of caring for my infant son. Of course, if I come through all right, it will be wonderful to have the two children—but it seems that my husband showed little regard for my health. And can an ailing mother produce a healthy baby? Sometimes I feel mentally "off;" and anything you can say to restore my perspective will be greatly appreciated. I hope this letter doesn't sound foolish, and that you can be of some help to me.

Obstetrician's Views Of Situation

DEAR S. P. A.: One cannot deny that your husband has been blindly and perhaps censurably inconsiderate, in precipitately indulging his overweening enthusiasm for parenthood at the expense of robbing you, temporarily, of a sense of well being. But you must not allow his incomprehension of the physical ordeal of motherhood to warp your perspective. Now that you are committed to the proposition of having a second child in two years, I may truthfully tell you, by way of reassurance, that a substantial percentage of babies born to rank-and-file families do follow as quickly (or more so) on each other's heels.

This information comes to me from one of Washington's most famous obstetricians—a man, incidentally, who, despite the fact that he (as he says) "makes a living bringing babies into the world," nevertheless is a tireless advocate of "birth control," which, in his terminology, means intelligently "spacing" the arrival of one's offspring. "From the ideal viewpoint," he said, "mothers should bear their children at least two years apart. Statistics indicate that this arrangement gives the child a better health endowment and thus offers greater guarantee of a normal life expectancy. At any rate, that is one way of construing the statistics we have—which show a higher death rate of infants in families where no consideration is given to 'ideal spacing.'

"However," he continued, "we must consider the likelihood that other factors enter into this unpleasant reckoning. For instance, it is usually the lower income groups who are most carelessly prolific—which means, in the main, parents of limited intelligence, little social competence and less practical economic foresight. And it may not be so much failure to 'space' their children, as it is (1) their inability to give them proper care, nutrition and healthful environment, and (2) their indifference to, or ignorance of, infants' hygienic needs, which runs up the death rate."

He mourned the fact that acceptable methods of family control are not known to, nor practiced by, the majority of families in those strata of society where the need is most indicated;—and then went on to say that, in your case, since you are obviously a woman of intelligence and foresight, neither you nor your children should suffer as a result of your two babies being born less than two years apart.

He considers that your greatest distress, just now, is in being "phychologically upset, with some reason." But he remarks that your psychological distress is as nothing, compared to that suffered by illegitimate mothers-to-be, during prenatal period; it is your invariably, their babies are splendid physical specimens," he said, "which suggests that psychological distress in the mother has no ill effects upon the infant before birth."

He furthermore said that the "difficult time" you had with your firstborn affords an excellent omen for your second experience; it being an aphorism in his profession that a tedious first delivery is nearly always compensated by a minimum of fuss with the following "blessed event." "In fact," laughed the doctor, "I used to tell my students to make their first 'baby case' one (if possible) where the mother had had a rough time before; because by the law of averages, things would go off smoothly, and the happy parents would give all the credit to the doctor when all he had done was let nature take its course!"

After citing an anonymous instance of "a fine little family," to which a first child was delivered last August, and where a second baby is expected this month ("—and everybody well and happy—"), the doctor advised you to forget the past, live in the present, and look happily to the future. The fact that you were bedfast for two months after your first baby came is now immaterial. But since nature will give first preference to your unborn child, if a choice must be made between sustaining your strength and nurturing his body, during the pre-natal period;—it is your inalienable responsibility to take care of yourself through these months: keeping to the right diet, exercise program, rest periods and healthy mental attitudes. And when you have "come through, all right"—as I am sure you will—be prepared to stand firmly on a "planned family" platform thereafter.

Finally, lest you be unhappily sharing the snobbish theory of many latterday burgeoisie that it isn't "good form," (because too characteristic of the so-called "lower classes") to have one's babies in quick succession, let me say that, amongst responsibly minded families in genuinely aristocratic circles, it is considered "best form" to accept the first couple of children as quickly as (shall we say?) God sends them; and after that to interpolate one's will and planning into the record. Also, I believe the point is made, in Theodore Van de Velde's "Ideal Marriage," (or, if not there, in a comparable work), that the loftiest expression of whole hearted, reciprocal married love is thus made manifest.

M. H.

For That Fourth of July Outing

Styled for flattery, the well-tailored casual frock (above) is a perfect picnic outfit. Made of launderable, lightweight acetate rayon and spun silk, it is sturdy enough to stand hard wear. The full skirt, gathered snugly into an inset waistband, permits freedom of movement when standing, sitting or jumping over logs and backyard fences. The comfortably full bodice has fine detailing. Mailbox pockets give below-the-shoulder emphasis. Also, note the smooth man-tailored shoulder, the deep-throated neckline and short cuffed sleeves.

If You Slump or Have Bumps Try Building Up Your Muscles

By Ida Jean Kain

THE SCALES and tape are not the only measures of your figure. Weight and proportions may check perfect and still you may have a debutante slouch, dowager's hump, and too prominent derriere.

All these unsightly defects can be charged to poor posture. But since the real fault lies with certain groups of weak or lazy muscles, the thing to do is to find out which ones. Like as not, a protruding tomach is caused by muscular weakness in the chest or shoulders or even at the small of the back.

A shelf-like derriere is often the complement to a pronounced curve at the lower spine, rather than the sign of excess hip inches. The trouble with sway back may be weakness of the abdominal girdle.

A Few Simple Tests

There are a few simple tests for determining which muscles are to blame for this lack of alignment. Here is a good one:

Lie flat on the floor on the back. Stretch the arms straight up on floor overhead with upper arms close against ears. Have the legs straight down. Try to lie so flat that the arms, entire back and legs are in contact with the floor. Now, ask someone to slip her hand underneath the small of the back. If this can be done, there's your trouble. If you cannot place your arms against the floor, the difficulty is with the chest and shoulders and there is tension in the area of the chest.

Notice how flat your stomach is when you are lying in that position? It should be. The weight of the chest, shoulders and arms has been removed from the abdominal muscles.

Now for the real test: See whether you cannot transfer this relaxed lying position to sitting, standing, working and playing. Your muscles should be strong enough to hold your body in line while you are performing everyday tasks.

Measuring a Slump

You can test the strength of your muscles by the following lying-standing test:

Lie flat on your back on the floor, feet upturned, and have someone measure your length. Then stand against a wall in your natural posture, with heels, body and head touching the wall, and measure your height. The difference in the two measurements is the amount you slump.

With strong, resilient muscles you won't have any slump or even the suggestion of an aging fat pad at the nape of your neck and there is nothing so slimming to the hipline as good muscular girdling.

DeGoofey Purge

NO MORE are free American citizens to be pushed around by snooty butlers, waiters, doorkeepers, ticket sellers, librarians, saleswomen, tea nourers, office boys, private secretaries, petty executives and other upstarts intent on parading their authority.

Mrs. DeGoofey

Mrs. Henrietta DeGoofey, president of the Do Something About It League, announced yesterday a campaign to "weed out the little Hitlers" in the United States.

"I am celebrating the Fourth of July," the famous crusader announced at her press conference, "by organizing a movement to do something about the self-appointed schoolmarms and school masters of the country who are destroying democracy. I for one am tired of being bossed around so much by peewee puppets."

The reformer spoke with such indignation that the eagle on her patriotic hat bobbed up and down.

Dowagers Spared To Amuse Public

"You would not do away with dowagers and great ladies, would you?" apprehensively inquired a society columnist.

"No, because I think the cause of humor in the United States should be served," was the reply. "Besides such people are really inconsequential. But in our daily lives all of us are constantly meeting and being annoyed by disagreeable petty bosses who are creating a caste system."

"In other words, the brass hats are not all in the Navy," suggested a crossword puzzle editor.

"No, indeed. Some of the worst of them are at doors and ticket windows. There is something about putting a man—or a woman to guard a door that brings out delusions of grandeur. Members of the public are immediately treated like children or half wits. And give at man, especially a small man, a badge of any kind and he at once fancies himself Napoleon. And as to ticket sellers or takers—well, I have yet to see one with a smile."

Mrs. DeGoofey said she would sponsor a movement to have all butlers put into mixmaster checkered and plaid suits so they would be "humanized." Waiters at mass dinners who bullied the guests and would not let them finish their courses, she declared should be dressed as little Lord Fauntleroys.

Grande Dame Clerks Put on List

"However, some of the worst offenders among the petty bosses are women," said Mrs. DeGoofey. "The average woman cannot stand authority or rank. Take the grande dames in the exclusive shoppeys and the haughty saleslades who preside over the "better" furs, dresses, jewelry, hats, etc., in department stores. They are enough to give ordinary shoppers inferiority complexes for life.

'Something also should be done about private secretaries who confuse their own standing with that of their bosses. Also women executives of the "movie" variety; librarians who talk to their patrons as though the latter were kindergarten pupils; condescending tea pourers at parties, and hostesses' assistants who herd guests from one room to another as if the event were a cattle roundup."

Also on her "list," Mrs. DeGoofey declared, were the "self-conscious professional women of all kinds, including newspaper women, whose "veneer of achievement makes them act as if they were members of a high school sorority."

The reformer said she was making an appeal to the public to send her other candidates for her list of offenders.

"What will you do with your list?" asked a pet editor?

"I shall set about organizing all these people into a bund and if possible ship them over to help Hitler in his Russian campaign," was the reply.

Society Ignores Tropic-Like Heat To Attend Two Afternoon Parties

Van Boetzelaers Entertain One Group At Cocktails; Miss Dorothy Lee Ward Is Hostess in Honor of Anjer Belmonte

By Hope Ridings Miller

Despite the mounting mercury and white-hot sun that turned the town into a tropical center earlier in the day, two 6-to-8 parties had a number of Washingtonians out and about late yesterday. The Minister-Counselor of the Netherlands Legation and Baroness van Boetzelaer entertained at cocktails at their home on Cathedral Avenue, and Miss Dorothy Lee Ward was hostess in honor of Anjer Belmonte, the noted barytone.

"Is this a Fourth of July party—ahead of time?" someone asked, eyeing the American flag that served as part of the background for one end of Mrs. Ward's garden. Scarlet gladioli, blue delphinium and white daisies forming a red, white and blue centerpiece for the buffet table in the garden also indicated that the affair might have a patriotic significance. And it did. It was in celebration of the fact that Mr. Belmonte became an American citizen a short time ago. Also in the company was attractive Mrs. Carl Brunner, who had taken her oath of allegiance to the Stars and Stripes only a few hours before. A native of Venezuela, she has spent much time in this country and is here now for indefinite stay. "Here—if you mean America; but not here—if you mean Washington," she said. "In other words, I can't stand this heat, so I'll be off soon for cool Cape Cod."

Handsome, suave and completely surrounded by an admiring throng during the entire party, Mr. Belmonte (yes, I must get back to him) said he had been in Washington only once before, on his way from South America to New York, some time ago. He promised to come back to Washington again—probably next winter; and there's a chance he may give a concert here. Incidentally, he has sung in a number of European capitals, and at Buckingham Palace, a number of times. He made his American debut at Town Hall in a concert last January.

T. V. Soongs and Dr. Sze Among Guests

Mrs. Ward, looking cool and lovely in a pale grey marquisette and lace frock, received informally, first in her second-floor drawing room, and then outside in the garden where most of the guests gathered—and stayed. Before going down, however, a number stopped in the upstairs cocktail room for a cup of champagne punch served by Miss Jane Davis and Miss Catherine Hambley. Other drinks, and a variety of dainties, including Virginia ham, smoked turkey and sandwiches, were dispensed in the garden.

Who was there? Well, let's see. An early arrival was Mrs. William E. Borah, and coming along about the same time were Dr. and Mme. T. V. Soong, who were accompanied by Dr. Alfred Sze, former Chinese Ambassador here, who renewed acquaintances on all sides. Mr. and Mrs. Julian Chetwynd of the British Embassy came early and stayed late. Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Ellis were there; also, Mr. and Mrs. William P. MacCracken, chatting with Senator Theodore F. Green, Mrs. McCeney Werlich and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke.

Maj. Gen. Allen W. Gullion, smoothly turned out in a white linen suit, was a popular center of attention. Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja were telling friends they had just moved to their new home at Fourty-fourth and Garfield Streets. Mrs. Paul Bartlett, who returned home from France a few months ago and purchased Mrs. Albert Simms' house in Georgetown, was among those present. Still others there included Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Albert Cox, Dr. and Mrs. William Jennings Price, Clarence Hewes, Baron Baeyens, the First Secretary of the Argentine Embassy and Senora de Pardo, Roy St. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Kurt Hetzel, Miss Margaret Delano Gage, and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth N. Watson, just back in town after visiting friends in New York, Philadelphia and Spring Lake, N. J.; Mrs. Mae Hamilton, whose snuff-brown frock with matching hat was one of the most attractive ensembles there; Miss Katherine Judge, and several others.

Meanwhile, the Van Boetzelaer party was also going merrily along. The hosts' home, away out on Cathedral Avenue, is the one they purchased last winter, but into which they moved only a month ago. So the fete was in the nature of a housewarming, though nobody dared mention the word "warming" on any account yesterday.

Diplomatic Corps Well Represented

Baroness van Boetzelaer wore a street-length print frock, featuring a muted pattern in pastel shades and a white ribbon around her curly brown hair. Tea-drinkers collected in the dining room, while those who preferred stronger concoctions gathered on the porch, where an improvised bar was a center of attention.

The Diplomatic Corps was well represented in the company. Countess van der Straten-Ponthoz chatted in French with Countess de Gramont. The Peruvian Ambassador, Don Manuel Freye y Santander, dropped in to bid goodby to some of his friends. He'll be off this weekend to Eagles Mere, Pa., to spend the remainder of the summer. Planning to be in Washington through most of the sultry season are the Swedish Minister and Mme. Bostrom, who were early arrivals at yesterday's party.

Miss Naomi Green Becomes Bride Of Lieut. Clagett

St. Matthew's Cathedral was the scene of the wedding yesterday afternoon at 4 of Miss Naomi Mae Green, daughter of the Rev. John H. Green, to Lieut. Francis Chester Clagett, U. S. M. C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Clagett, of Rockville, Md. The Rev. John J. Coady, of St. Anthony's Church, officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her cousin, Hoy J. Walls, of Chevy Chase, wore a gown of marquisette made with a tight-fitting lace bodice and bishop sleeves. Her fingertip veil fell from a tiara of lace and seed pearls and she carried an arm bouquet of white gladioli showered with bouvardia.

Miss Lucile Clagett, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. She was dressed in blue marquisette and lace with a small hat to match, and carried a spray of pink roses and blue delphinium. Lieut. Brooks Hatch, U. S. M. C., was best man. A reception followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walls.

The bride is a graduate of the Lucy Webb Hayes School for Nurses. Lieut. Clagett is an alumnus of Charlotte Hall Military Academy and the Bullis Naval Preparatory School.

Jane Blaffer To Be Married In Canada

Several from Washington are planning to journey to Canada for the wedding, July 12, of Miss Jane Blaffer to Kenneth Dale Owen. Nathan Bartlett will be an usher and Randall Reid-Adam, of the British Embassy, also hopes to attend.

Miss Blaffer, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Blaffer, of Houston, Tex., has frequently visited Washington. She spent last winter here, living at the Anchorage and attending classes at a Foreign Service School. Miss Blaffer is a close friend of Mrs. Benjamin Dillingham, the former Miss Frances Andrews, and was a bridesmaid at their wedding last May in New York. Miss Jane Watson, of New York, another of the bridesmaids, will also be in Miss Blaffer's wedding.

The ceremony will take place on the Blaffer estate, St. Anne's, in Grafton, Ontario. It will be an outdoor affair on the terrace overlooking beautiful Lake Ontario. The chateau is modeled on one which the Blaffers once owned in France. After a honeymoon, the young couple will make their home in Houston, where Mr. Owen is a geologist. Mr. Blaffer, father of the prospective bride, is chairman of the board of the Humble Oil Co.

Reba Doughton Honors Visitor From Nebraska

At a gayly informal luncheon yesterday Miss Reba Doughton, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Robert H. Doughton, gathered in a few friends in honor of Mrs. Ben Gund Koehler, of Geneva, Nebr. Mrs. Koehler is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. Finis J. Garrett, whom she is visiting here with her two daughters, Virginia and Suzanne.

A number of parties are being planned for the visitor and the one yesterday started the series. Most of the guests either knew Mrs. Koehler before her marriage or had met her during her summer sojourns in Washington.

The fete took place at the Doughton residence, 4700 Reservoir Road, and a delicious midsummer menu, planned and executed by Miss Doughton herself, was served buffet fashion. Among the guests, in addition to Mrs. Koehler, and Mrs. Garrett, were Mrs. Fred Vinson, Mrs. H. E. C. Byrant, Mrs. Burns Garrett, Mrs. John F. Moore, Mrs. Clarence Marshall and Mrs. Doughton.

Representative and Mrs. Doughton hope to leave tomorrow for their home in Laurel Springs, N. C., to spend the weekend. Miss Doughton, meanwhile, will visit Mr. and Mrs. Richard Reynolds at their home in Devotion, N. C. She expects to return to Washington within a week.

British Women's Jobs Topic of Dr. Hambrook

By Lucia Giddens

He saw a milliner boring guns . . . and he saw throngs of women "dilutees" in England.

Both sights foreshadowed trends which may come to the United States, Dr. Robert W. Hambrook, of the Office of Education, said yesterday at a press conference on his four months' observation trip to Britain.

Having seen multitudes of women at work in England's war factories, he returned to Washington with the conclusion that women here could fit into defense industries "far more than now."

A job which is broken down into several units is filled by "dilutees," so-called because they "thin the labor out," he explained. Many of these dilutees are women doing specialized parts of the task.

In the United States, it might be well to further such a training program, but of course "we would have to get the consent of labor," he added.

In England, the women understand that after the war the dilutees' jobs will be out, "and they hate to see the day come" when they must give up this work. In the meantime they are performing a large and vital part of the defense effort, he said.

'Greatest Surprise' Of His Trip

Dr. Hambrook, senior specialist in trade and industrial education, said that the war work of English women was "the greatest surprise" of his trip.

Women are toiling at heavy forgings for guns, working at lathes, running trains, acting as helpers to electricians and on the whole "fitting into the machine age as well as men," he declared.

On an official mission as representative of the Office of Education, Dr. Hambrook went to study Britain's educational conditions in wartime and its training of labor for defense industries, for the light that his observations may throw on America's defense problems.

The enthusiasm with which he hailed women's ability to carry on work in war industries indicated that his report may point to possibilities of expansion of such training for women in this country.

Dr. Hambrook said if someone should protest that women can't do certain jobs in industry, "I can say that I have seen them do it."

In one aircraft plant, he discovered that the majority of the workers were women and "they were turning out just as good aircraft as formerly turned out by men." Women were doing practically all of the welding, and some were doing a better job of it than the average man because of their more sensitive touch, Dr. Hambrook said.

They Hate to Go Back to Old Jobs

The milliner who was boring guns said she had "hated the thought" of giving up her own work to go into industry, but women were having to step into men's places to release them for military duty wherever possible. To her own surprise, she learned to like boring guns so much that "I'd hate to go back to my old job," she told Dr. Hambrook.

Where women do the same work as men without the necessity of additional supervision, they are paid the same wages. With extra supervision, a woman is paid less.

Many workers are now on a 60-hour week, he said. With longer hours, it was found that efficiency and morale decreased. In plants running day and night, there are two 12-hour shifts, with an hour for lunch and a half-hour for tea, each 12 hours.

American boys "need something" like England's air training corps, which has enrolled more than 100,000 boys, 14 to 16 years old, he said. During the preliminary preparation, boys with aptitudes for the service will be headed toward careers as pilots. It is voluntary training.

Dr. Hambrook went to England in February and returned two weeks ago.

A. W. V. S. 'Lunch Bar' Opens

Underwood

Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson was greeted by Mrs. Raymond Lee, president of the Washington unit of the American Women's Voluntary Services, yesterday at the opening of its "lunch bar" near the Army and Navy buildings on Constitution Avenue. Numerous other officials were guests for the opening day

Army, Navy Officials Attend A. W. V. S. 'Lunch Bar' Opening

Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson and Undersecretary of Navy James V. Forrestal yesterday munched sandwiches at an outdoor table with other Army and Navy officials and thus helped to celebrate the opening of the American Women's Voluntary Services "lunch bar."

Under the trees in the park near the corner of Nineteenth Street and Constitution Avenue, a bright, blue-and-white striped awning fluttered over the red oilcloth counters, where canteen workers of the A. W. V. S. served more than 500 persons on opening day.

Stenographers and other workers from the War and Navy buildings on Constitution Avenue picnicked on the grass during their lunch periods yesterday.

The lunch bar will be run by volunteer workers of the A. W. V. S. to provide a period of relaxation for defense workers in these buildings.

Mrs. Raymond Lee, head of the Washington unit of A. W. V. S., greeted the Army and Navy officials, who were special guests at the opening. Women of the canteen unit and girls who served as usherettes wore their uniforms of "airplane blue" twill with A. W. V. S. insignia on their sleeves.

Gen. Patrick Beaumont-Nesbitt, military attache at the British Embassy; Lieut. Gen. H. C. B. Wemyss, also of the Embassy, and Miss Craig McGeachy, press officer at the Embassy for the Ministry of Economic Warfare, were among the opening day visitors.

Officials who hobnobbed around the long tables included: Maj. Gen. William Bryden, Maj. Gen. Allen W. Gullion, Brig. Gen. Sherman Miles, Maj. Gen. William N. Porter, Maj. Gen. Robert M. Danford, Lieut. Col. Wade H. Haislip.

Members of the A. W. V. S. messenger service, who acted as usherettes, included Daisy Davidson, Marian, Caroline and Mary Rowcliff, Betty Stewart-Richardson, Patty Baker. They sold cigarettes, cleared tables and did other chores.

The lunch bar, in operation from 11 a. m. to 2 p. m. on every fair working day until October 1, is in charge of Mrs. William W. Jervey as director of canteen for the A. W. V. S.

D. of A. Members To Be Entertained

Mrs. Eunice Gettings, State deputy to Golden Rule Council, No. 10, Daughters of America, will entertain the members and officers of the unit at her home, 1624 Fort Davis Street outheast, at 8 p. m. Tuesday.

The new officers of the council will be installed at Northeast Masonic Temple, July 11, and on the 15th the benevolent committee will hold an evening of games at the home of its chairman, Mrs. Mary Risler, 44 S Street Northwest.

Peace Council No. 28, a new unit of Daughters of America, was formed this week with Golden Rule Council conducting the initiation at the Masonic Temple. Mrs. Mary Williams presided as councilor at the ceremonies for a class of charter applicants. There are more than 55 subscribers on the charter list.

Montana to Be Honored At All States Dance

The congressional delegation from Montana and the officers of the Montana State Society have been invited as guests of honor to a "Montana Night" Independence Eve dance tomorrow at 10 p. m. at the Hotel Washington.

The Washington All States Club is sponsoring the event as the first in a series of individual State dances.

B. P. W. Reveals Survey Findings

How members of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Washington prepare for a future of financial independence is revealed in the report of a project announced yesterday by the research committee, which is headed by Miss Ora Marshino.

Replies to the questionnaire sent out by the committee were received from 166 women—approximately half of the membership of the club. Of this number, 63 were employed by private business or engaged in a business or profession of their own, and 101 were employed by the Government.

More than one in three of the women reporting had incomes of $3,000 or over (including earnings and other sources of incomes.) Almost three-fourths of the entire number replying had incomes of $2,000 or over. The greater number of these had been working 20 years or more.

Of the 164 reporting, 15 said that they saved a part of their income every year. Of 11 who said no, family responsibilities, "new in business and not yet earning expenses," illness and education accounted for the inability to save. More than two-thirds had started saving during the first five year they were working, and the greater number had begun during the first or second years of their employment.

In reply to the question, "What will be your chief means of support when you retire?" 74 will be supported chiefly by their own savings and investments, 21 chiefly by a pension, and 45 by their own savings and a pension. Only two reported that their family or relatives would assist them.

The minimum standard of percentage of income to be saved, as indicated by the answers to that question, was from 10 to 25 per cent, although a few went even higher than the latter figure.

As to types of investments, 109 mentioned annuity insurance; 54, endowment insurance; 52, real estate; 14, bank savings; 12, Government bonds, 9, building and loan. A number of members indicated that investments should be varied.

Federation Legislative Group Will Meet Today

The department of legislation, District Federation of Women's Clubs, will meet for luncheon today at the home of Mrs. Mary Wright Johnson, chairman, to discuss plans for the coming year.

Mrs. C. H. J. Miller is chairman of the committee on civil service and Mrs. Helene M. McEvoy chairman of the committee on taxation, under a division of the department.

Voteless League Sets Production Rally July 17

The rally of the Voteless League of Women Voters in its "Win the Battle of Production" campaign will be held July 17 at Palisades Park, it was announced yesterday.

Mrs. Harold Stone has been appointed program chairman for the rally, to which members and friends will be invited to hear the organization's plans for encouraging citizens' morale in the defense program.

Other members of the program committee, announced yesterday, are Mrs. Max O. Lorenz, Mrs. Basil Manly, Mrs. B. M. McKelway, Mrs. Kenneth Morrow and Mrs. Donald Stone.

Mrs. Charles Dearing has been named chairman of the announcements committee for the rally, with Mrs. E. Isaacs and Mrs. Edward Harding serving with her.

Mrs. Eugene Duffeld is chairman of the rally, and Mrs. Gerald Reilly heads the entire committee for the campaign.

A series of radio programs, with outstanding speakers on defense and morale subjects, is being arranged for later this month.

The campaign here is a part of a plan of action adopted by the general council of the National League of Women Voters, which has called for widespread citizen support of the Nation's defense effort.

Zonta Club Will Hear Missionary to Egypt

*X WEDNESDAY, JULY 2, 1941 17

Rag Time in Georgia

West Point, Ga., July 1 (AP).—When President Roosevelt changed Thanksgiving Day, the populace here was divided. Then came the change from Central to Eastern Time in Georgia with the clocks here an hour behind. Then a manufacturing company, for the duration of the power shortage, announced that Monday would be Sunday. Now—Tomorrow is the Fourth of July.

Rockville Marriages Boom

So far as the issuance of marriage licenses by the clerk of the Circuit Court at Rockville is concerned, June continues the "month of brides."

During the month just closed, the office of the clerk issued 211 permits to wed. The total was 69 more than the average for the preceding five months of the current year.

The Federal Diary

President's liaison with the Agriculture Department.

This would seem to give the patronage rider White House indorsement. Casey, however, must have acted solely on his own initiative and apparently he hadn't discussed his plan with the President, who has demonstrated many times that he is solidly for the civil service system.

Chairman Ramspeck of the House Civil Service Committee battled the rider without success. He described the rider as "a piece of political jugglery" and said it violates the "legislative rights of the Congress and the civil service." The second deficiency bill didn't involve Farm Security one iota.

Representative Voorhis said the rider was "doing a very unjust thing to a group of earnest workers." Ramspeck said the "ludicrous part of it, if it were not so tragic, is that they sold this idea to some Senators by telling them that 35 per cent of these employes (in Farm Security) were Republicans."

An official who was supporting the rider said it was inspired because the Farm Security Administration isn't being administered in the "liberal philosophy of Franklin D. Roosevelt" in certain Middle West States. He also said that the vast majority of the employes administering the program in those States weren't in accord with the President's program.

Salary Rises Mentioned

Senator Russell told the Senate and Representative Taber told the House that extension of civil service to Farm Security employes would raise their salaries approximately $8,000,000 annually. The politically minded official argued that Congress wouldn't appropriate the additional sum and that it would become necessary to fire several thousand employes and that "friends of the Administration" undoubtedly would be those axed.

None of the arguments, however, can stand up against the facts. In the first place, if FSA isn't being administered along New Deal lines it's plainly up to the President to change officials who will give the employes different instructions. Extension of civil service to Farm Security costs not a single dime in larger salaries.

The Ramspeck Act gives the President authority to extend the Classification Act to the field and if this were done it would raise salaries. However, it will be months before the Classification Act is extended and Agriculture officials are certain the cost will be much lower than $8,000,000 as Farm Security has had to raise its employes' salaries to the level of other agencies to guard itself from personnel raids from defense agencies.

The timing of the patronage rider can't be overlooked. Congress approved it less than two hours before 14,000 of the Farm Security employes would have had their jobs covered under civil service. For the has been operating on emergency funds which automatically prevented its employes from being covered under civil service. For the 1942 fiscal year that started yesterday the agency was given funds by direct appropriation.

Affected 15,000 Employes

This meant that the 15,000 employes paid from the regular funds would be automatically brought under civil service on midnight of June 30. More than 3,000 additional employes were supposed to have been brought under civil service by the Ramspeck Act on January 1.

The Ramspeck Act became only partially effective yesterday. The jobs of something like 170,000 employes will have to be filled from civil service if they are vacated between now and January 1. On January 1 the jobs will be brought under the merit system; that is, if Congress forgets its politicking. First it put over a rider that has kept National Youth employes from being brought under the merit system and now it's Farm Security. With that start it's not at all improbable that the entire employe reform program will be wrecked before the date it becomes effective on the New Year.

The President has said repeatedly that he's for civil service and it looks as though he'll have to repeat his belief again to convince some of those closest to him. It's a strange spectacle when one of the President's secretaries, William H. McReynolds, pulls wires behind the scenes to protect civil service when another of his secretaries, Eugene Casey, works in the opposite direction.

Senate Civil Service Committee yesterday unanimously approved of the uniform promotion plan and reported it to the Senate. Only a single amendment was made in the plan that would give most Federal employes equal treatment on pay raises. That amendment exempted temporary employes of the Architect's Office in the Capitol. The plan, approved by the President, the Budget Bureau and the House, is expected to have easy sailing in the Senate. It would guarantee efficient employes making less than $3,500 a one-step administrative increase every 18 months and a one-step boost every 30 months for employes making more than $3,900.

Six Persons Hurt in D. C. Area Accidents

Six persons were injured, one critically, in accidents in the Washington area yesterday.

In a critical condition with concussion of the brain in Freedman's Hospital last night was Elsie Lewis, colored, 48, of 755 K Street Northwest. She was struck in the first block of Florida Avenue Northeast by an auto police said was operated by Jessie J. Witherspoon, colored, 24, of 1723 New Jersey Avenue Northwest.

Two 12-year-old boys who went for a ride in a coaster wagon in the alley at the rear of the 800 block of Somerset Street Northwest ended up with medical treatment for cuts and bruises. They were Warren Clemens, 6423 Ninth Street Northwest, and Richard Baker, 719 Tuckerman Street Northwest.

Warren was treated at Walter Reed Hospital and Richard by a private physician. Police said the auto striking them was operated by Nellie M. Ames, 27, of 812 Tuckerman Place Northwest.

Malcolm J. Saunders, 55, of 1121 E Street Northeast, and Lillian Hall, 44, 2001 Second Street Northeast, were treated at Providence Hospital for lacerations after the auto in which they were riding struck a telephone pole in Allentown, Md.

Katherine Ferry, 27, of 1627 Nineteenth Street Northwest, was in Emergency Hospital with contusions after she was hit by an auto as she stepped off a loading platform at Eleventh and F Streets Northwest. Driver of the auto striking her was Andrew C. Hall, 19, of 421½ Eleventh Street Southwest, police reported.

Lovette Club, Marian Chace Dancers Please Spectators

Community Center and Playgrounds Department and the Office of National Capital Parks present the Lovette Choral Club and the Marian Chace Dance Group on Tuesday night at the Sylvan Theater.

What breezy movement there was in last evening's sultry air brought some relief to the hundreds of Washingtonians who gathered on the grassy slope at the Sylvan Theater for the diversion afforded by the third summer festival program. The singers and dancers who provided the entertainment seemed immune to the humid depression of the atmosphere, so spirited was their demeanor, and they had their reward in the appreciative applause of the assemblage. Two popular and meritorious organizations, the Lovette Choral Club and the Marian Chace Dance group, alternated in the presentation of the program.

BROWN

Eva Whitford Lovette directed the club in the opening number, which was, appropriately enough, Samuel Richards Gaines "Salutation to Music," an official song of the National Federation of Music Clubs. This was followed by a spirited reading of Mozart's "Alleluia," an arrangement of Chaikovski's "Cherubim Song," and Louis Victor Saar's vocal transformation of several Chopin waltzes.

At its second appearance after the intermission, the ensemble was heard in Florence Golson's interesting cantata, "A Spring Symphony," and the French-Canadian folksong, "L'Alouette." Carolyn Schulte, soprano, sang with commendable floritura graces Bishop's "Lo, Here the Gentle Lark," for which the obbligato was supplied by the proficient young flautist, Alden H. Emery.

The best number, from the viewpoint of technical choreography, presented by the Marian Chace Dance Group was the visualization of Bach's "Little" Fugue in G minor. The stylized movement clearly depicted the weavings of the thematic subjects, and the fugal treatment was well worked out. The most ambitious numbers, not so successful in the translation of music into pictorial values, were three of the piano ballads of Brahms.

Group dances included a pavane, a gavotte, a scarf dance and the somber 'Wailing Wall." Jo Ann Leasure was the personification of joyousness in her solo dance to the music of the familiar Arenski waltz for two pianos. Miss Chace took honors in two solo numbers: the Dance of the SevenVeils from Richard Strauss' "Salome" and Alma Grayce Miller's imaginative 'Jeanne d'Arc." Comedy was provided in the group enactment of "The Fossils," from Saint-Saens' "The Carnival of Animals."

D. C. Heads Reject Huff, Rebuff Board

Commissioners 'Sit Tight' on Refusal To Appoint Him Welfare Director

The Commissioners today were apparently prepared to "sit tight" on the appointment of a new welfare director after firmly rebuffing the Board of Public Welfare for renominating Penal Superintendent Ray L. Huff over their earlier rejection of his name.

'We won't be stampeded," said Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen, indicating the city heads were in no hurry to fill the post.

In even stronger language, Commissioner John Russell Young declared:

"Apparently the Board of Public Welfare is more interested in its prerogatives than in the welfare of the District."

Curt Statement

After a lengthy secret session the day before, the Welfare Board yesterday resubmitted Huff's name together with a curtly worded statement from Chairman Frederick W. McReynolds.

McReynold said the board regretted the Commissioners had not permitted them a hearing before taking "such drastic action" in returning Huff's first nomination.

It was the intention of the law, McReynold's statement said, that the board select its own director and that he be appointed "unless there is some valid objection to the person chosen."

The welfare board has been without a full-time director since the resignation of Robert Bondy June 1. Conrad Van Hyning, assistant director, has been filling the job and the Commissioners have indicated they are well pleased with his work.

First Turned Down

Huff's name was turned down by the Commissioners last week because they felt he was "too valuable in his present position as general superintendent of District Penal Institutions.'

After the welfare board met in "star chamber" session Monday, members were sworn to secrecy by McReynolds as to whom they had nominated. The Commissioners were openly surprised when Huff's name again was placed before them.

"It looks,' said Hazen, "like we have reached an impasse. I dont know what the Commissioners will do, but there certainly is no hurry."

Hazen said Van Hyning would "carry on" as welfare director until some settlement in the controversy has been reached.

Ask New Nomination

In sending Huff's name back to the board after it first was submitted, the commissioners specifically requested that a new nomination be made.

It is known that the commissioners are unanimous in their choice of Paul Edwards, District WPA administrator, for the welfare post. However, they did not instruct the board to act favorably on his name, merely indicating that Huff was not the man they wanted because of his present position.

There were no further statements forthcoming from welfare board members last night.

Private at Meade To Take Bride At Fort Tonight

The brass hats gave permission, and the fellow soldiers of Private Albert M. Hand in Company F, 121st Engineers at Fort Meade, Md., took over with his marriage plans from there.

Hand, formerly an employe of the cabinet shop at the Senate Office Building, and Miss Mildred Hurley, of 800 E Street Northeast, set today as their wedding date last January. Hand was inducted into the Army, but it didn't stop his marriage.

At 8 p. m. today his marriage to Miss Hurley will take place in the rcereation hall at Fort Meade—the first in the fort's history. The regimental band will furnish the music and an Army chef will bake the cake.

The couple even will have a honeymoon. Hand won't have to report back for duty until Sunday evening.

Paderewski's Body To Lie at Embassy

New York, July 1 (AP).—The body of Ignace Jan Paderewski, noted pianist and first president of Poland, will lie in state Friday at the Polish Embassy in Washington, D. C.

The body will be placed among the graves of America's foremost heroes in Arlington, Va., National Cemetery, Saturday and removed to his native land when war is over.

The Most Rev. Francis J. Spellman, Archbishop of New York, will officiate at a pontifical mass Thursday morning in St. Patrick's Cathedral. The body will lie in state there from 2 p. m. (E. S. T.) tomorrow until the mass.

Paderewski died Sunday at 80 of pneumonia.

Wear What Is Becoming, Look Cool, Singing Star Advises

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor

Miss Lucy Monroe, radiant "Star-Spangled Soprano" of stage, concert and radio, is the perfect example of her own theory that if a woman looks cool and composed, it doesn't really matter what she wears. Attired in a gaily printed silk dress and large white off-the-face rough straw hat, Miss Monroe serenely discussed clothes in her hotel suite yesterday after making a hurried trip to Washington.

The soprano will make her first appearance with the National Symphony Orchestra, under the guest direction of Charles O'Connell, at the Watergate tonight. Selected by the Fashion Academy as the all-American best dressed woman for this year, she is well qualified to give advice on the type of outfit the woman on the platform—or anywhere else—should wear.

"For the woman in public life," said Miss Monroe, "the prime requisite of the costume should be simplicity. The fact that she is before the public will draw enough attention to her without her having to emphasize the clothes she is wearing."

While Miss Monroe dresses smartly and up-to-the-minute herself, she dresses to suit her own personality. Being a radiant person, she can afford to wear clothes with dash. She suggests that the well dressed woman is not necessarily the one who is a slave of fashion, but the woman who wears what is becoming to her.

One of Miss Monroe's secrets for looking cool is to place all her cosmetics, especially creams and liquids, in the refrigerator. The frigid air keeps them firm and when applied they give a frosted look. Summer cottons in white, pastels and especially greens, are the outfits Miss Monroe suggests for the woman in Washington. And she believes no woman can overdo the smartness of sheer black.

If a woman feels she must flaunt her patriotism in the public eye, it is best to be rather subtle about it, according to Miss Monroe. The inconspicuous combination of reds, whites and blues is not so bad when confined to accessories. But the singer believes a woman can do her sartorial bit for defense just as well by wearing a little ornamental flag.

LaGuardia Hails Order Barring Race Bias in Arms Plants

Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York last night hailed President Roosevelt's signing of an executive order giving equal opportunity for Negroes in defense work as "a move toward that great principal of equal opportunity."

He addressed nearly 1,000 persons at a rally sponsored by the Negro March on Washington Committee at the Watergate. The gathering was termed a "victory rally" in celebration of the President's order. A previously scheduled "march on Washington" was canceled as a result of the order.

"I do not consider this a victory celebration, but I do rejoice that wrong of long standing has been recognized," declared Mayor LaGuardia.

"I am too practical to feel that because of the issuance of this order there will be a great change overnight. But I am certain that the avenue has been opened, and that we have the vehicle with which to bring to the attention of the proper authorities any form of discrimination against any minority group within the defense industries.

Condemns Bias

"As I understand it, I do not believe that any group is entitled to any special privilege or consideration, and, likewise, none should be discriminated against. I have never appointed a Negro because he is a Negro, but I have never discriminated against a Negro if he is competent to fill the job."

Walter White, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said that the signing of the executive order "is not a complete victory." He said that "militant, sustained, organized public opinion" is necessary to carry out the order.

Randolph Cool

A. Phillip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, A. F. L., declared he did not regard the executive order as overcoming "discriminations in the Federal offices of the Government."

Other speakers included Jeanette Welch, of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority; J. Finley Wilson, grand exalted ruler of the Colored Elks of Washington, and Milton P. Webster, international vice president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters. The chairman was Thurman L. Dodson. The invocation was delivered by the Rev. R. W. Brooks, pastor of the Lincoln Congregational Temple Church.

Music was furnished by Miss Virginia Williams, Miss Ruth Logan and the Dixie Harmonies Quartet.

Mrs. Doyle Again Heads D. C. Board

Maurer Also Renamed As Vice President Of Education Body; Experiment Planned

Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle was reelected president of the District Board of Education and Robert A. Maurer was reelected its vice president at a meeting of the body held yesterday at the Franklin School.

By authorization of the board principals of junior high schools will be permitted to carry out an experiment in which all eighth grade pupils of the Deal, Hine, Francis and Shaw Junior High Schools will take one semester of the fundamentals of business and one semester of a foreign language or Latin.

A plan to establish classes for retarded children in the junior high schools also was approved.

The E. V. Brown School, which officials expect to abandon eventually, was combined with the Lafayette School. Discontinuance of the Henry-Polk School combination which eventually is to be replaced by a new school, was ordered.

The Commissioners will be notified that the Reservoir School no longer is needed by the board.

Mrs. Elizabeth Peoples, principal of the Brown School, will be transferred to principalship of the Janney School. Mrs. B. W. Cramer will be transferred from head of the Wheatley School to principal of the Wheatley School, whose principal, Miss F. C. Mortimer, is soon to retire.

Mrs. O. E. Reed, a teacher at the Stanton School, was promoted to its teaching principal.

School officials discussed the possibility of changing the uniforms worn by District high school cadets, substituting one that is nearly $10 cheaper. The present style uniforms, with a rise in the cost of cloth, will cost $22.69 next year.

The proposed new uniforms, which some members of the board objected to as lacking "snappiness" cost $12.75. Harold Keesling and John Sullivan, McKinley High School cadets, attended the meeting to demonstrate the old and the proposed new styles. No action was taken.

'Meet the People' Makes Two for the National

West Coast Musical Headed Toward Capital; Loew Houses to Pipe in President's Speech; Bits of This and That About Amusements

DISTURBING RUMORS floating about as to the future of the National Theater notwithstanding, Mr. Claude P. Greneker, the veteran and inveterate stentor of the Shuber interests, flings word on the desk that "Meet the People" is scheduled to play E Street in the autumn. With Maxwell Anderson's "Candle in the Wind," starring Helen Hayes, penciled in for October 6, that makes two for the new season, at least.

DEANNA DURBIN

"Meet the People" is that buoyant, gay and youthful musical revue that upset all theatrical tradition by beginning its career on the wrong side of the continent, working its way East by long-run stages and finally crashing Broadway as a full-fledged hit that ran something like half a year. It wore a chip on its shoulder from the outset, as a taunt at those whose business it is to discover talent and wrap it up in celluloid. The boys and girls who made up the cast, as it turned out, were long on talent and short only on recognition. In putting over their idea of showing themselves off at their best, it must be said that they were helped by some of the best minds on the West Coast.

How good those minds really were, we'll be finding out come fall—assuming, of course, the perpetuation of the status quo.

The demure and circumspect Mrs. Vaughn Paul—that would be Deanna Durbin—and her husband recently raised a fine crop of Hollywood eyebrows and then promptly smoothed them back in place again. The youthful Mr. and Mrs. Paul, it seems, are in the ecstasies, or throes, or whatever they are, of rearing a modest English cottage on the acre-and-an-eighth they have acquired in the gold coast Brentwood precincts of the film colony. The rearing, so far, has got only as far as the sinking of the excavation. What tickled the imaginations of the railbirds was that right there in the middle of the presumable basement was a Gibraltar of a room, 15x15, with heavy concrete walls and ceiling, which the architect said was the wine cellar. What goes on? What would Deanna and Vaughn be doing with a wine cellar? It began to look as if some hefty swigging was in prospect where it would be least expected.

"Oh, that," Miss Durbin explained to Hubbard Keavy, Hollywood sleuth-in-chief for the Associated Press. "That's a bomb-proof shelter, but I hope we never have to use it for anything worse than an earthquake. It would be safe during an earthquake wouldn't it?" So another legend remained intact and Mr. Keavy immediately filed his application to spend his next earthquake in Miss Durbin's shatter-proof room. Who wouldn't?

Your Face Is Your Fortune

Managers of the Sidney Lust theaters are literally up to their eyes in a competition for the best publicity campaign on Joan Crawford's "A Woman's Face" . . . Dave Ginsberg, of the Hyattsville Theater, is packing his lobby with photographs of Prince Georges County femmes, from 16 to 60, from which a board of judges will select the "most interesting woman's face" in the lot . . . This column, which knows nothing of "personality, charm, intelligence and loveliness" is invited to risk its neck on the board . . . Out at Mr. Lust's Bethesda Theater, beginning Sunday, the feature attraction will be "The Fugitive," costarring Ralph Richardson and Diana Wynyard . . . Based on F. L. Green's novel of "On the Night of the Fire" and described as a "hot number" . . . If you happen to have an authentic memento of Billy the Kid—one of his guns, an old saddle, maybe one of his horses, or any little thing like that, proper identification and proof will get you a guest ticket to see Robert Taylor in "Billy the Kid," opening tomorrow at Loew's Capitol . . . Thanks to Shirley Gaye, songstress with Dick Stabile's Orchestra, at the Earle, for the thoughtful postcard . . . Clark Gable and Rosalind Russell, "They Met in Bombay" on the screen in the Twentieth Century-Fox projection room yesterday and they say Mr. Gable turned on the heat . . . Today, also for the benefit of the guys and gals of the press, Mary Martin will "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" . . . But everybody knows about her heart . . . The President's July 4 unity speech will be loudspeakered at Loew's Capitol, Palace and Columbia theaters.

Not Much Heard of, But Still in the Running

"HERE COMES THE CAVALRY"

is the title of the added screen attraction to be presented, appropriately enough, at the Earle Theater for the first time on July 4, opening day of the new week's bill. It is a Warner Brothers short subject, executed in Technicolor and dedicated to a branch of the armed forces of the United States that has been strangely ignored of late

On the Gentle Art of Kissing

Hollywood, Cal., July 1.—Humphrey Bogart is on the side of the law in "Maltese Falcon," and he figures maybe it pays, 'cause he got his first screen kiss since he can remember when. Mary Astor was the kissee and it's the first time for her in a long while, too, unless you want to count those measly pecks in "The Great Lie."

MARY ASTOR

Bogey's technique was so rusty they had to make four takes, despite firelight, music and lights; but by the third, he'd shifted into high, and the fourth was such a dilly they're wondering what the Hays office will say.

Speaking of kisses, Wayne Morris kisses Alexis Smith 28 times in "The Smiling Ghost," but Brenda Marshall knocks him off with only seven. Must be quality, not quantity, that counts!

And when I stopped in on the "New Orleans Blues" set, Priscilla Lane and Richard Whorf were seated at a table in a kitchen full of dirty dishes and wilted vegetables. It's your guess what it's all about, 'cause I couldn't wait to see. Your guess, too, why they changed a swell title like "Hot Nocturne" to "New Orleans Blues"—which sounds like six other pictures, or something . . . Betty Field is a hot blues singer in this one, and does her own singing, too.

My private sneak previewer, Earl Wing, who sent in such a rave about "Skylark" last week, is right back at it this morning, praising "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" to the skies. Says Spencer Tracy and Ingrid Bergman give the picture something it's never had before, and that Tracy's performance was so terrific a woman sitting in the same row with him passed out cold and had to be carried outside . . . Follows it right up with more raves about "Sergeant York" which he declares perfect, from the wonderful musical score right on down the line.

When Paramount received a cup from the Havana (Cuba) Rotary Club for promoting Pan-American friendliness through the Bob Hope-Paulette Goddard film, "Ghost Breakers," Bob said: "After they see us again in 'Nothing But the Truth,' maybe they'll send us the saucer!"

Walter Pidgeon, as the minister in "How Green Was My Valley," nearly backed out of the collar when he encountered the word "Llansairwllgwyngogerygogoch" in his lines. Just a little Welsh village—seems you pronounce it to rhyme with "hash" . . . Cliff Nazarro is highly insulted because it's been circulated around town that he's the author of the "Hut-Sut Song." "Hutsut am lie!" he declares.

Eleanor Powell, her mother, and Merrill Pye are spending the week-end of the Fourth at the Santa Barbara Biltmore where Fred Cady, who trained so many Olympic stars, is giving Eleanor swimming lessons. He says she has a terrific talent for it.

Desi Arnaz and Lucille Ball are going in for poultry raising. As a starter, they've ordered a hundred white leghorn chicks from New York. Tsk, tsk—operating a peep show, eh?

Martha Scott is having the time of her life raising some baby goats. Says they're just like little fauns, and wants me to get some, too. But with two dogs and two canaries, I should be the goat just for the faun of it!

AherneMissesSouth Sea Vacation Trip

Just before Joan Fontaine left Hollywood for a South Seas cruise on the S. S. Mariposa a huge beribboned basket was delivered to her. On the sidelines husband Brian Aherne was an amused observer. Miss Fontaine discovered the basket was filled with assorted seasick remedies.

After devoting six months to promoting the trip, convincing his wife that sea travel was the ideal vacation, Aherne started his role in "Smilin' Through" with Jeanette MacDonald, so had to stay in Hollywood.

Concedes Defeat

Phil Terry, fighting clergyman of Harry Sherman's "The Parson of Panamint," which was adapted from Peter B. Kyne's famous American classic, this week conceded defeat by hiring a secretary to answer his fan mail. For two months the two-fisted actor has been attending to his letters personally. But today the fans average 100 letters weekly.

"CAUGHT IN THE DRAFT." Bobe Hope and Dorothy Lamour again are screen playmates in the topical comedy opening tomorrow morning at the Palace. Bob plays the film star who is drafted into the Army and easily manages to do most things wrong. Dotty is the colonel's daughter. Lynn Overman and Eddie Bracken head the supporting cast.

Earle

"KISS THE BOYS GOODBYE." Mary Martin, Don Ameche and "Rochester" have the leads in this picturization of the Clare Booth comedy having its world premiere at the Earle on Friday. Others involved in the Southern girl's attempts to crash the stage include Virginia Dale, Barbara Allen, Connie Boswell, Jerome Cowan and Elizabeth Patterson. Impressionist Sibyl Bowan, comic Gil Lamb, Nellie Arnaut and Brothers and Gloria Grant top the stage performers. Opens Friday morning.

Capitol

"BILLY THE KID." Robert Taylor plays the fabulous character of the Southwest who lived 21 years and killed 21 men. Filmed in Technicolor in Arizona's Monument Valley, the picture features Brian Donlevy, Mary Howard, Ian Hunter, Gene Lockhart and Lon Chaney, Jr. On the stage, "Three Cheers" is to be presented with the cooperation of the National Press Club. Johnny Burke and Joe Besser are the funsters. Bill Coyle will sing the score written by Howard Acton, Phelps Adams and Bob Davidson of the Club. Sylvia and Clemence, Frank Little, the Len Yost Octette, the Capitol Whirlwinds and the Rhythm Rockets complete the stage bill. Opens tomorrow morning.

Metropolitan

"UNDERGROUND." Depicting the group which broadcasts illegal comment on the Nazi government, this melodrama features Jeffrey Lynn, Philip Dorn, Mona Maris and Kaaren Verne. The new production is based on an actual incident related by the radio news commentator, Eric Severeid, who has returned to America after spending the early months of the war in Europe. Opens Friday morning.

RKO-Keith's

"IN THE NAVY." Abbott and Costello continue for a second week at RKO-Keith's in their companion comedy to "Buck Privates." Dick Powell and the Andrews Sisters are costarred in the timely farce. "China Fights Back," the latest "March of Time" release, also continues.

Columbia

"BLOOD AND SAND." The Technicolor adaptation of the Ibanez novel returns to F Street with Tyrone Power in the part created on the silent screen by Rudolph Valentino. Supporting the star are Rita Hayworth, Linda Darnell and Nazimova. Opens tomorrow morning.

Little

"CHARLIE CHAPLIN FESTIVAL." Six short comedies by the master comedian continue for a second week on the Little screen: "The Vagabond," "The Immigrant," "The Cure," "The Count," "Easy Street" and "The Adventurer." "Men and Ships," the Maritime Commission's documentary, is the supplementary feature.

Trans-Lux

"CRISIS IN THE ATLANTIC," the March of Time" release, and an "Information, Please" issue, with Wendell Willkie as guest expert, are the leading short subjects on the newsreel theater's incoming bill. "Tom Thumb's Brother" is the cartoon comedy. Opens Friday morning.

Glen Echo

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH is always a big day at the amusement park and this year's will be no exception. All of the attractions are now under full steam, with additional tables in the picnic groves to accommodate the picnickers. Paul Kain's orchestra, Adele Van singing the vocals, will add a program of patriotic music to their dance-tempo offerings.

Wilson Line

S. S. MOUNT VERNON makes nightly cruises down the Potomac from the Seventh Street wharves at 8:30, with McWilliams' orchestra aboard for dancing. There are also daylight cruises to Marshall Hall Park and Mount Vernon at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. Kiddies' days Mondays and Fridays.

Potomac Line

THE McFARLAND TWINS and their orchestra return to the S. S. Potomac on Friday for six nights of sweet and swing music. The cruises leave nightly at 8:45 from the docks of the Potomac River Line at Seventh and Water Streets Southwest. Jimmy Foster and the Norton Sisters are the soloists.

Open Air

"HOLLYWOOD CAVALCADE." Alice Faye stars in this filmusical opening a three-night run tomorrow night at the drive-in auto theater on the Richmond Highway. "Give Us Wings" is the accompanying feature film.

Roadside

"TOO MUCH JOHNSON," the William Gillette comedy of 1894, is the current revival at the old barn on the Rockville Pike. George Farrington, William Zuckert, Lois Alexander, Richard T. Walsh, Alice Gartrell and Maccubbin Waters have the leads. Continues through Saturday evening the 12th.

Making the Fur Fly

New York, July 1.

Shortly before the war began Honeychil' Wilder—who now is starred at The Hurricane—toured the European capitals. During those tours she often met one of America's best-known glamour girls. They met at the same parties, for both of them collected a trail of panting escorts . . . One evening the famous glamour girl went to a party wearing a sable jacket. Honeychil' declared that it was hers, and that her friend had merely borrowed it for the evening. The following day war was declared—and Miss Wilder rushed for the first boat home, while the other girl remained in Paris until a few months ago, when she returned to New York.

ANN SHERIDAN

Honeychil' immediately requested the return of that sable jacket, in vain. She repeated the request—and again it was ignored. Her friends suggested that she bring suit to recover it; others advised Miss Wilder to hire private detectives and trail the girl until—when she's discovered wearing that jacket—it could be attached by due legal process . . . But Honeychil' Wilder is a lady of more direct action. Yesterday, when she learned that her erstwhile companion was leaving town for a long trip, she rushed to that girl's elegant hotel suite and rang the doorbell. She pushed aside the protesting maid, as well as the glamour girl, walked to the closet, clutched that sable jacket and then departed with it in resolute, feminine triumph.

Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora, a keen analyst of political speeches, tells of the time he complimented the then candidate for President, Woodrow Wilson, upon the perfect prose he employed in his campaign speeches—the directness of phrase and the absence of any superfluous descriptives . . . Wilson was gracious in his acknowledgment and then revealed that his father had inculcated this quality of directness in the writings of all the Wilson boys . . . "From the time we first were old enough to write," Wilson explained, "my father insisted that whenever we wanted anything—except for the commonplace things—we all had to submit those requests to him, in writing."

Alfred Hitchcock, the movie director, has invented a unique word game, in which ordinary words are used and their true meaning arrived at by reading them quickly. For example: "Jaw Giraffe and Gnaw mash hearer"—for Georgie Raft and Norma Shearer" . . . Also, "Gnash on ale sick you're it tea ban cough loss an jellies"—for "National Security Bank of Los Angeles;" or "Ban cough a merry car" for "Bank of America."

Hitchcock thought of this game during a dinner party at the home of the late John Galsworthy—who had told the guests: "We now will discuss the sound of words in relation to their true meanings" . . . Galsworthy stated that the mere sound of the word "fragile" indicated something frail and delicate. His wife, however, insisted that the same word in French was a truer expressive, in sound . . . "The best example," Galsworthy insisted, "is the word 'strength.' That word sounds exactly like the idea which it is meant to convey. 'Strength'—a word full of power" . . . "Isn't the German word for that—'shtark'—. . . a better sounding one?" Hitchcock suggested . . . "No, 'strength' is better," said Galsworthy. "It's the 'th' on the end that does it."

Sam Goldwyn has been telephoning New York producers, asking them if, among the show girls in town, can be found another Ann Sheridan . . . John Delaney, the transit commissioner, told Mayor LaGuardia that he would resign unless the mayor took a firm stand in the TWU strike threats and agreed that any transit workers who strike will lose their jobs forever . . . Read William Shirer's "Berlin Diary" . . . Douglas Fairbanks, jr., returned from South America in time for the legal battle which will involve his father's estate . . . Jan Valtin, author of "Out of the Night," will be presented with official benediction for his permanent stay in America.

Last week an estranged couple, who had been separated from each other via the domestic courts, accidentally met on a subway station in Flatbush. During the long ride to Manhattan they discovered that they loved each other once more and decided to end their separation forthwith. The reunited couple became sentimental over the strange fate which had led them to this meeting place. They therefore employed Murray Korman, the Broadway photographer, to take a picture of the subway kiosk which had been their happy Samarra. Korman sent one of his new aides, a refugee photographer named Frederick Putzrath, to take the picture.

Putzrath went to Brooklyn and set up his equipment in front of that kiosk. A subway guard, intrigued by these instruments, asked him what he was doing . . . The cameraman stated that he was photographing the kiosk—an explanation delivered in German accents. The suspicious guard therefore took him to the nearest police station for a thorough questioning concerning any subversive motives . . . "Why were you taking these pictures?" he was asked—and he explained: "This man and his wife, separated, met here again. To commemorate this happy event, etc." . . . The police officials were loath to believe such a story—until Murray Korman attested to its truth and supplied the identifications . . . "Ah, the lovers met again," sighed the police official—and gave Putzrath a long legal document which permits him to take photographs wherever he desires, except within proscribed defense areas.

'Reserve Two for Murder' Sets Cross Roads Fans Guessing

By Richard L. Coe

It looked as though the Cross Roads visitors last night were in for a mean dose of juicy blank verse until, happily, someone murdered the playwright. Then it became evident that "Reserve Two for Murder," the week's play, was one of those unpredictable who-done-its in which apparently everyone but oneself is seriously involved. Well adapted to the informality of the summer theater, it's a mystery-comedy whose novelty, while not what it once was, is enough to cinch its appeal to the pleasure-bent.

What "Reserve Two for Murder" does demand, however, is better playing than the Cross Roaders were able to muster last night. Without a doubt they will be thoroughly in the groove after another run-through, but the conclusion is inescapable that last evening's shaky first performance was a result of insufficient rehearsing. With a new production each week throughout the summer, it would be a great pity for the able company to falter in any of its friendly rivalries.

The Virginia company slipped last night not only in its hitherto mechanical facility, but in its usually snappy pacing. In mystery-comedy, happy haunting ground of death, dead spots have no place. Once this menace is overcome, and there's every reason to expect it will be, Cross Roads audiences should have daft merriment untangling the maze.

William Draper in Lead

"The Spider" was the first play we ever saw to plop a murder into the laps of its paying customers, but there probably were many more long before that hit of the Panting Twenties. There is the performance interrupted by the violent death of a leading character. There are the innocent members of the audience who want no part of these vile doings, the not-quite-alive members of the police force, the townsfolk who become entangled in the mess gradually, the Confucius-quoting detective and so forth. Ah, do not sneer, you non-fiction folk! Of such quicksilver is made the recreation of great minds, as any thumb-nail sketch of the mighty will proudly proclaim!

Toughest load for the players to handle is William Draper's Chinese detective. He's all over the place with verbal circumlocutions and is employed to keep the play together as well as to solve the mystery. And last night the generally reliable Draper got befogged a trifle too often for comfort.

The other members of the cast, while more facile with their lines, were a bit shy at picking up their cues. Cleone Pollard and Evelyn Wynn Porter, as a harried mother and her agile daughter contributed much vitality to the playing, and both Ruth May and Edith Simonds were more than able as an usherette and a lady from California. James Gleason is the hard-pressed sergeant, Julian Hatcher his bombard-voiced assistant and Sidney Bassler one of the more convincing suspects. Francis X. Nolan, Suzanne Carrier, Gene Murphy, Marie August and Bob Lester complete the cast.

The play, authored by one John Randall and directed by Howard F. Wentworth, will continue at Bailey's Cross Roads through Sunday evening.

District Shifts Paydays in New 'Stagger' System

The new fiscal year which began yesterday brought an end to regular, bi-monthly salary payments to District employes. The Commissioners reminded workers that the "stagger" system is now in effect.

From now on, employes previously paid on the fifteenth and last days of the month will receive their checks on the second and seventeenth.

Workers who have been paid on the first and sixteenth days will get their money on the third and eighteenth.

Public school teachers will be paid in ten monthly payments on the second day—except during months in which full thirty-day services are not required.

The "stagger-pay" system was inaugurated to conform with similar action taken by the Federal Government.

D. C. Plasterers Still on Strike

Nearly 150 union plasters were still out on strike last night from a dozen projects in the District and the Federal city housing project in Alexandria, Va., with little hope of settlement in sight.

Spokesmen for some 60 contractors engaged in construction in this area said no dates for negotiations have been set.

Representatives of Local 841, A. F. of L., of the plasterers unions stated they are seeking establishment of a closed shop and an $11 daily wage.

3 Russian Propagandists Convicted Here

Three Soviet agents were convicted in the District Court last night of evading the laws requiring foreign propagandists to register with the State Department.

The three were depicted by the Government as cogs of a propaganda machine with its working parts in the United States and its controls in the Kremlin. For three weeks, Assistant Attorney General Benjamin Parker presented evidence which linked the three men and their company, Bookniga Corporation, with a flood of Communist propaganda poured into this country for more than a decade.

Justice Letts rejected pleas that the defendants go free on bond pending appeal, saying that the spirit of Supreme Court decisions required their commitment.

Face Heavy Fines

Convicted of criminal conspiracy and of evading the Registration Act was Raphael Rush, 40, Bookniga vice president. He faces a possible maximum of $11,000 fine and four years in prison. Convicted of evading registration was Norman Weinberg, 25, Bookniga secretary, who faces a maximum sentence of $1,000 fine and two years in prison. Facing a maximum of $10,000 fine and two years in prison for criminal conspiracy is Morris Liskin, 54, Bookniga president, who pleaded guilty to evading registration and was fined $500 and placed on probation for 18 months.

The propaganda activities blamed on the htree men were declared by Government witnesses to be inspired and directed by Mezhniga of Moscow, an official agency of the Russian government.

By incorporation certificates, financial statements and business papers, the prosecution traced the influence of Mezhniga through a series of American companies, starting with Amtorg, the official Soviet trading agency, and continuing through Amkniga, Bookniga Corporation, Brookniga, Inc., to Four Continent Book Co., which is still in business in New York.

These companies, the Government asserted, changed their names when their propaganda activities were suspected, but kept the same offices, employes and mission of "discrediting the American way of life in favor of communism."

Verdict in Two Hours

Liskin, a New Rochelle dress shop proprietor, and Weinberg, a nautical student, were depicted as having been brought into the enterprise by Rush, who worked closely with two top-flight Soviet propaganda engineers, Elias Doufmashkin and Timofey N. Kovonalov.

Defending Weinberg was former District Attorney Leo A. Rover; defending Liskin was former Assistant District Attorney David A. Hart. Rush's attorney was Isadore Englander, of New York. All the defendants contended that the Bookniga company was a legitimate commercial enterprise, engaged in importing books and pamphlets from Europe.

Although the evidence consumed more than three weeks, the jurors reached their verdict in less than two hours. The decision was announced by Mrs. Isbaelle Nichols, 2331 Cathedral Avenue Northwest, who was chosen foreman by her 11 men colleagues. Each juror repeated the complicated verdict on the three men, when defense counsel requested a poll.

The defendants are expected to move next week for a nw trial. Should the motion be overruled, they will then be called into court for sentence.

Pastor's Son Wins CRAF Commission

Sergeant Pilot John Magee, of 2118 Bancroft Place Northwest, yesterday received word that he is one of 15 men commissioned as pilot officer in the Canadian Royal Air Force. There were 56 applicants for the commissions.

The pilot, whose father is the Rev. John G. Magee, associate pastor of St. John's Church, Lafayette Square, was recently graduated from the Canadian Royal Air Force school.

He expects to soon leave for England by way of Boston and Ottawa. He is 19. He is looking forward to "a little action" and the prospect of flying a Spitfire, the ultimate dream of every British flier.

100 Become American Citizens; Six Women Are Repatriated

Judge Charles G. Briggle, visiting judge from Illinois, yesterday told 100 new American citizens in District Court that they should have "unbounded faith in their citizenship in the United States of America."

Mrs. Ethel M. Manacorda, 69, was one of six women who were repatriated in the ceremonies yesterday. She lost her American citizenship in 1914 when she married an Italian diplomat. She is a niece of a former United States Vice President. Visiting Judge Briggle renewed her United States citizenship after it was proven by her family record that she was born in New York 69 years ago.

The other women repatriated were Nora W. Katz, Teresa Di Battista, Elizabeth C. Brewer, Rose Welcker and Anna Kasten.

Virtually every European country was represented in the naturalization ceremony.

Those who became citizens were:

DiMag Ties Keeler's Mark as Yanks Win Twice

Italian Star Runs Streak To 44 Games

New York Defeats Bosox, 7-2 and 9-2; Nightcap Stopped After 5th by Rain

By Bob Considine.

New York, July 1.—Joe DiMaggio, son of an immigrant Italian fisherman, scaled a peak in the great American game of baseball here today when he lashed out two singles in the first game of a double-header against the Red Sox, and a single in the shortened second game of the twin bill to extend his consecutive game hitting streak to 44.

He thus added to the modern record of consecutive hitting which he set last Sunday, and which was held until then by George Sisler, and he drew abreast of an ancient and slightly questionable mark set in 1897 by Willie Keeler. Keeler, originator of the "hit 'em where they ain't" classic, hit safely in the first 44 games of the 1897 season while playing with Baltimore, but was aided by a rule which did not make a foul a strike.

A crowd of 52,832 suffered with DiMaggio through his first two times at bat in the first game of a double-header which the Yanks swept 7-2 and 9-2. The nightcap was called at the end of hte fifth inning because of rain and darkness.

Joe Pops Up

They saw him pop up dismally to Lou Finney, first baseman for the Sox, in the first inning of the opener. They saw him swing on a bad pitch by left-hander Mickey Harris, with a count of 3 and 2 on him, his second time at bat, and roll out to third base.

Then in the fifth inning of the struggle he came to bat and faced 36-year-old Mike Ryba, refugee from the St. Louis Cardinal concentration camp. Ryba threw him two fine screwballs—both srikes. Then Joe calmly watched three pitches either miss the corner of the plate, by millimeters or skim too low across the dish. Finally he swung, and topped the ball. It bounced crazily down the third-base line and Joe, trying to get a quick start, fell to his knees at the plate. He got up, and streaked for first base. Jim Tabor, Sox third baseman, rushed in, scooped up the ball and threw wildly to first base.

The official scorer, Daniel M. Daniel, ruled that it was a hit and when he held up the signal—an upright forefinger—a wild cheer went up among the fans near the press box. But the congregation at large didn't accept it as a hit, and they saved their cheers for the sixth inning when Joe walloped a savage single to left.

But even as Joe's streak reached 44 games, another streak, the Yankees' mark for hitting at least one home run per game, came quietly to an end. Boston pitchers Mickey Harris, Mike Ryba and Nelson Potter stopped at 25 games the Yankee home run splurge. During that siege-gun streak, the Yanks blasted 40 home runs. The mark long outdistances the old mark of 17 home run games set by the Tigers last September.

Joe took the tension off himself and the crowd in the very first inning of the second game. He hit the first ball served unto him by Jack Wilson for a blistering single to right, and the game had to be held up a full two or three minutes while the big, sweaty mob went wild. Fans hugged one another in gummy embraces, and some paraded through the aisles.

DiMag, grinning happily, rested on first base and tipped his cap an inch.

It was just as well he got his hit when he did. Because the rains came in the fifth inning of the game and it was called after the fifth, and it was a complete game.

Outfielder Ordered Back To Cleveland

Indefinite Ban Placed on Star As Sequel to Fine For Sunday's Job

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, July 1.—Manager Roger Peckinpaugh, of the Cleveland Indians, announced tonight Outfielder Roy Weatherly has been suspended indefinitely without pay "for not hustling as he should."

The suspension came as a sequel to a $25 fine handed Weatherly by Peckinpaugh, who accused the veteran outfielder of not hustling during the Indians' games with the Chicago White Sox last Sunday.

It was understood Weatherly was ordered back to Cleveland immediately.

The action followed a dressing room conference between Peckinpaugh and Weatherly before tonight's game with the Browns.

A Texan, Weatherly is 26 years old and has been playing professional baseball since 1934. Last year he hit .303. He was one of the Cleveland holdouts this spring and did not sign his contract until the training season was about half over.

The length of Weatherly's suspension, Pickingpaugh asserted, depends upon Weatherly himself.

"Any time he's ready to play ball for us," he said, "I'll be willing to reinstate him."

Weatherly has been in difficulties with the American League office on several occasions in the past for arguing with umpires. But once he received a $250 bonus from the Cleveland club for finishing out a season without being tossed out of a game.

C. C. Slapnicka, club president, said in Cleveland tonight that he "did not know the circumstances of the Weatherly case," but that "I do know I will back up 'Peck' on any decision he makes. We're going to crack down and crack down hard this year on any player who questions the manager's authority."

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Philadelphia, July 1.—Somehow, we fail to grasp the great Public Service that promoters are seeking to render when they say they will break what they call the Mike Jacobs monopoly of big-time boxing. It doesn't have the complete ring of altruism, and its public benefits are also somewhat vague.

POVICH

Chick Meehan and his Brooklyn Boxing Association is the latest to invade Jacobs' zone of operations. Meehan would have the folks believe, apparently, that he is the people's champion in the joust with the ogre Jacobs, who is simply a horrible example of boxing dictatorship. Of course, if it should befall the Meehan combine that they are able to pick up a few profits for themselves in connection with their public service such an item would not be exactly distasteful.

It could be, of course, that Meehan and his outfit are just a bit intrigued by the dough that has been rolling into Jacobs' coffers from his prize fight promotions. It's not a bad business, apparently. Uncle Mike picked himself up approximately a hundred grand on the recent Joe Louis-Billy Conn promotion and apparently that's when the Brooklyn outfit decided it would start rendering its public service by diverting that sort of dough from Jacobs, at least some of it.

Jacobs Ties Up Champs, So What?

Somehow, this department feels that the public doesn't give a hoot who promotes the big fights as long as they are promoted, and frequently enough. The only complaints against Jacobs thus far seem to have sprung from envious promoters who haven't been promoting big fights. As yet nobody has announced he is staying away from a fight because it happens to be a Jacobs promotion, and the fact is that a fight promoter, like a baseball umpire, never has been the gate attraction.

Just what sort of a drawback Jacobs has been to the prize fight is not exactly clear. He has tied up most of the champions with contracts to fight exclusively for him, so what? Under the Jacobs aegis the prize fight industry has been flourishing. It has been a refreshing contrast to the Tex Rickard era when Jack Dempsey defended his title only twice in seven years. Fight fans have seen Joe Louis put his title on the line 18 times since 1937. Jacobs doesn't permit his fighters to keep their crowns in storage.

Jacobs, since taking over from Rickard, has been giving fight managers a break. Time was when a man with a bood boy had to grease a dozen palms and pull all sorts of political strings to get into the Garden. The kick-back was the password, but Jacobs makes only one demand. The guy must be able to fight. A big-time shot awaits the fellow who can.

In his time, Jacobs has promoted some dillies, of course. Such as the Joe Louis-John Henry Louis and the Louis-Dorazio fights were stencheroos from the time of the matchmaking, but Uncle Mike didn't drive the patrons through the gate with a club. They were not compelled to go to his fights.

Gave Colored Boys Their Chance

Jacobs gambles along with his public. He advanced huge sums to Billy Conn on the supposition that some day the Pittsburgh light-heavyweight might grow into a challenger for Louis. Jacobs was sunk if Conn was knocked off meanwhile. Max Schmeling and the late Joe Jacobs were "in" Uncle Mike for a lot of dough in advances before fights. Mike took his chances with that pair and got back all his money and more.

Jacobs had more of one kind of courage than Tex Rickard. The late Tex positively refused to permit Dempsey to fight the colored man, Harry Wills, who chased Dempsey fruitlessly for a half dozen years. Dempsey was willing to fight Wills, but Rickard wouldn't go for mixed title bouts. Jacobs had no such compunctions, and was willing to brave any repercussions when he steered Joe Louis along the title road. He has made a million dollars off Louis' fights.

Fellows who can fight get their chance with Jacobs. Jim Braddock was reduced to a rank preliminary boy on title fight cards when Jacobs took over. Uncle Mike promoted him steadily, gave him his chance and saw Braddock win the title.

Just what Meehan and his backers hope to achieve aside from profits for themselves when they try to buck Jacobs is not quite clear, as we were saying. We haven't notice any crying demand for the busting of Jacobs' monopoly except from folks with mercenary motives. When they try to cloak these under the guise of public service, excuse me.

Stanford Aces Pace Western Amateur Golf

By the Associated Press

Colorado Springs, July 1.—Five Stanford University golfers, led by gangling Ray Brownell, banged into the top rank of scorers today in the first half of the 36-hole qualifying trials for the forty-second Western Amateur Golf Tournament.

However, par 70 for the Broadmoor course refused to crack before the field of 63, smallest since the war year of 1917.

Brownell, 6-foot 3-inch sophomore and runnerup for the National Intercollegiate championship at Columbus last week, set the pace with 37, 33—70.

Gordon Hough, Stanford senior, shot 35, 36 for a tie at 71 with Defending Champion Marvin (Bud) Ward, of Spokane; Harry Todd, of Dallas, 1939 Western winner, and John Stammer, Oklahoma champion.

The second 18-hole section in the battle for medal honors will be played tomorrow. Ward automatically qualifies for the 32-player bracket for match play but decided to shoot for the medal anyway.

Dee Replogle, another Stanford performer from Oklahoma City, bagged a 35—37—32, including an eagle three on the 589-yard seventeenth.

The two other Stanfords—Frank Tatum, of Los Angeles, and Warren Berl, of San Francisco—shot 75's to stay in the running.

Rain, Poor Gate Stop Zivic's Go With Davis

By the Associated Press

New York, July 1.—Old man weather gave Fritzie Zivic or Bummy Davis—or both—a 24-hour reprieve today. And, what with the tickets selling about as fast as hot toddies on this sweltering afternoon, Promoter Mike Jacobs didn't mind it either.

A late afternoon rain caused Jacobs to postpone until tomorrow night the 12-round non-title tussle at the Polo Grounds between the welterweight champion and the cheerful little character from Brooklyn.

By the shift, it became possible to get the preliminary bouts under way tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. (E.S.T.), instead of an hour later as would have been the case tonight. This scheduled late start was necessitated by the draft registration today.

Both fighters reported in Grade "A" condition at the weigh-in today. Davis, who scaled 150 only last Friday, was down to 148 for the official weigh-in, right close to the absolute minimum agreed on for the fight. Zivic had announced he would be between 149 and 150 and hit it right on the nose—149¼.

If it had any effect on either, the postponement probably could bother Bummy more, since he has a tendency to take on poundage easily and might be slowed up some against the Smoky City sharpshooter if he added a pound or two during the postponed day.

At best, the crowd tonight would have been 20,000 and the gate under $100,000. When the match was first made, all hands had expected to cut up a $200,000 jackpot.

Indians Check Browns' Spurt, Win, 10 to 6

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, July 1.—The Cleveland Indians took a big early lead over the Browns tonight and held it, although they were threatened late in the game, to win a 10-to-6 decision and cut a half game off the New York Yankee first-place lead.

Trailing by seven runs after two and one-half innings, the Brownies fought back gamely and made a battle of it. But the Indian's power was too much for them. Included in Cleveland's 14 hits were six doubles and two home runs.

Jug McSpaden Again Captures Mass. Title

By the Associated Press

Osterville, Mass., July 1.—After a terrific struggle over the last nine holes, Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Winchester, gained his fourth Massachusetts open golf title since 1936 today by posting a record-breaking 72-hole total of 280 at Oyster Harbors.

McSpaden topped Paul Runyan, former P. G. A. titlist from White Plains, N. Y., who led the pack until the sixty-third hole, by three strokes, thanks to the sparkling five under par 67 he put together while overcoming all of his difficulties.

By closing with a sub-par 71, Runyan managed to tie the tournament record of 283 set by Byron Nelson at Worcester two years ago. Horton Smith finished in third place with a total of 284, by turning in a fourth-round 69. Willie Turnesa, of Detroit, the honeymooning former national amateur titlist, tied for fourth honors with another brilliant amateur, Ted Bishop, the Massachusetts champion, with a 291 total.

Po' Lowly Nats: They're Due for The Jackpot Again

By a Staff Correspondent

Philadelphia, July 1.—The Nats are striking it rich. Last Sunday they cashed in on Joe DiMaggio's hitting streak when a crowd of 31,000 descended on Griffith Stadium, and this week the Washington club may be a party to the record crowd of baseball history.

On Friday the Nats move into Yankee Stadium for a Fourth of July doubleheader, and advance sales for that day indicate the crowd will equal and perhaps surpass the 81,000 who saw the Yanks and Red Sox play on Independence Day, 1939.

It is the luck of the Nats to reap the visitors' share of the gate receipts on the day that the Yankees have designated for the unveiling of the Lou Gehrig Memorial in center field. New York fans are also expected to flock to the stadium to see Joe DiMaggio for the first time since he shattered the record for hitting in consecutive games. If DiMaggio's streak is not broken at Boston tomorrow, Yankee officials confidently predict a sell-out for Friday's twin bill. The game scheduled between the Nats and Yankees for Thursday has been postponed to a later date.

Bangs 3-Run Homer, Double and Two Singles To Pace Victory Over Pirates as Dodgers Bow

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, July 1.—A pair of "Johns"—Johnny Mize and Johnny Hopp—gave the St. Louis Cardinals a hand today which won undisputed possession of first place in the National League stakes with an 11-to-7 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

While the big guns of the Cardinals were blazing in a 17-hit attack, the lowly Philadelphia Phillies knocked off the Brooklyn Dodgers who had shared the leadership with St. Louis.

Mize drove in five St. Louis runs on four hits, including a tremendous three-run homer, his fifth of the season, in the third inning which put St. Louis in front. He also had a double and two singles and missed a perfect day when outfielder Bob Elliott backed against the right field wall to take a hard smash.

Rip Sewell Is Victim

Hopp struck out yesterday as a pinch hitter with the winning run on base, but he boomed out four hits today and Frank (Creepy) Crespi smashed three hits in succession after missing the first time up.

Most of the carnage was committed against the Pirates' starting pitcher, Rip Sewell, who yielded eight runs in six innings, but the Cardinals cuffed Lefty Aldon Wilkie for three more in his three-inning workout.

The Pirates stepped off fast by clubbing Howard Krist from the mound with three runs in the first inning, but lanky Lonnie Warneke was almost untouchable in relief until he wilted in 90-degree heat and yielded three more runs in the ninth inning.

Marchildon From Penetanguishene Turns Back Nats, 10-1

Macks Win With Ease in Night Game

Canadian Gentleman Holds Washington To Four Hits as Sundra Is Blasted

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

Philadelphia, July 1. — Shibe Park's $120,000 illumination system shed some further light on the futility of the Nats this evening. Out of the night the Washington athletes extracted only one lonesome run and took a 10-1 beating from the A's.

They were held to four hits, moreover, by a young Ontario lad named Phil Marchildon from Penetanguishene (the last 'e' is silent). Not only were the Nats held to four hits, but for seven and one-third innings the Canadian right-hander was on the brink of a Philadelphia pitcher's first no-hit game since 1905.

The no-hit fame that eluded such of Connie Mack's pitching stars as Eddie Plank, Lefty Grove, Ed Rommel and George Earnshaw was beckoning Marchildon when, alas, Jimmy Bloodworth thrust his bat between the fellow and his no-hit dreams.

Ruins No-Hit Effort

Even as he had despoiled a no-hit bid by Dennis Galehouse of the Browns a month ago, Bloodworth rapped out Washington's first hit off Marchildon tonight. With one out in the seventh, he bashed a long double high against the right-field wall.

Against the fast-balling Marchildon who was also throwing a clever curve, the Nats put only one man on base in the first five innings—Roger Cramer who walked in the fourth. Marchildon was getting superb support from his infield which twice robbed Cecil Travis of hits in the early innings.

The Nats were out of the ball game almost before they were in it. Steve Sundra was entrusted with the starting job and made a mess of it right off the bat when he gave up two runs in the first inning, forcing one home with three consecutive walks.

By midway of the third, Sundra was out of there. The first man out in the inning was Sundra himself, in fact. Sam Chapman knocked him out of there with a three-run homer into the left field seats. Later in the game, Dick Siebert pumped one of Walter Masterson's pitches over the right field wall with a man on base. All told, the A's collected 13 hits off Sundra, Carrasquel and Masterson.

Still Pure in Philly

It was no staggering surprise that the Nats were licked. They haven't won a ball game here in five attempts this season and further research into the Washington-Philadelphia situation for 1941 reveals that the A's have won nine out of ten games with the Nats this year.

Shibe Park's 13,840 customers enjoyed the evening hugely from the outset. Brancato led off the game for the A's with a single to center and before the inning was over, Philadelphia was out in front, 2-0. Miles beat out a bunt to Archie, but was extinguished when he tried to take second on Archie's wild throw to first. McCoy drove the first run home with a single to center, and then Sundra lost control. He walked Johnson, Siebert and Chapman in a row to force over the second run, and he limited the damage to that number only because Bloodworth started a double play on Hayes' grounder.

Came the third and Chapman's seventh homer of the year. It was the third straight Philadelphia hit of the inning. Johnson singled, Siebert doubled and thus the proceedings worked their way up to Chapman's homer. That blow put the A's in front, 5-0.

Carrasquel took charge thereafter and gave up two runs during the five innings he pitched. Masterson made a mess of the A's last inning. After Johnson beat out a hit to Archie, Siebert banged his homer for two runs. Chapman, Suder and Brancato followed with hits that accounted for the third run of the inning.

Milkman Still Delivering at Rolling Plains

Mrs. Stewarts' Prize Stud Annually Sends Good Crop to Spa

(This is the twelfth in a series of articles by Miss Hagner concerning horse breeding farms in this area. The next, on Ernest L. Redmon's farm near Middleburg, Va., will appear tomorrow.)

By Anne Hagner

When race horses have such names as Pasteurized, Buttermilk, Early Delivery, and Early Morn, readers of form sheets have no trouble in figuring out the sire—Milkman, standing at Mrs. W. Plunkett Stewart's Rolling Plains, near The Plains, Va.

Pasteurized, who won the Belmont Stakes and a number of other important races, is the highest regarded of Mrs. Stewart's stallion's get, but he ranks second on the list of good horses foaled at Rolling Plains. Outranking him is Top Row, winner of the Santa Anita Handicap over Time Supply in 1936, whose dam, Too High, is still wandering about the fertile pastures of the home farm. She has no foal this year, but has been bred to Milkman.

Best of Rolling Plains' current crop of yearlings will go to the Saratoga sales next month in an effort to keep up the excellent record made by last year's colts. Top price then was $5,500, and the average for seven youngsters was over $3,000.

Albert Burrows, manager of Mrs. Stewart's horses for the past ten years, figures that the current season's list of four fillies and three

Tigers Whip Chisox, 5-1; Trout Victor

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 1.—Paul Trout pitched a brilliant three-hit game today to give the Detroit Tigers a 5-to-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox and even the series at one game each.

It was Trout's sixth triumph, just twice as many games as he won all last year.

The Tigers got 12 hits off Edgar Smith and won with a two-run fourth inning and a three-run ninth when the sox left-hander was replaced by Jack Hallett. Pinky Higgins led the Detroit attack with two singles and a double.

Chicago scored its only run in the first inning. Then Trout retired the next 18 batters before Solters got the third Sox hit in the seventh.

Abe Simon's Paws Too Big for Mitts, Fight Is Delayed

By the Associated Press

New York, July 1.—Boxing promoters have their troubles, too. Out at Dexter Park in Brooklyn, ample Abe Simon, the 265-pound New York heavyweight, and Joe O'Gatty, of Newark, N. J., were scheduled for a 10-round fight tonight. It had been postponed from Monday because of rain.

They were practically ready to start swinging and some 3,000 fans were in the stands when it was discovered that the makers of boxing gloves had misunderstood the order and hadn't delivered a pair big enough to fix Simon's huge hands. So there was nothing to do but postpone the fight.

Simon and O'Gatty now are scheduled to top the club's next regular card next Monday. And the promoters sadly announced that tonight's tickets will be honored then.

Pity Poor Buck—His Strut Is Gone

New York, July 1.—Newsom's gruesome 1941 pitching record—he had five wins and ten losses in two dozen games the last time we looked—makes us a little sad. Good old Bragging Buck is our man. He waited a baseball lifetime to be able to do some serious strutting, then just when he gets in clover, and ready for even a little sitting-down strutting, the snap goes out of his great rubber arm.

CONSIDINE

He couldn't strut his stuff the way he wanted to strut, during his great performance in the last World Series. His father died in the midst of Buck's glory and Buck had to be the penitent son, which kept him from taking long-coveted bows in public places. The great home-coming to Hartsville, S. C., Which Buck had dreamed of for years, while he was a day laborer for the Browns and Senators, was also clouded by the same unhappy pall.

It wasn't until this spring that Buck felt it was decent to let himself go. He was quite a man, Old Buck, was at spring training camp this year, and nothing under 30 wins in 1941 was going to please Buck.

Buck's one-man depression began on opening day when the Browns pounded him off the hill. In the interim, Buck has learned the sorrowing way back to the showers. He forgot that path during 1940, when he won 21 and lost only five, and pitched the Tigers into the pennant.

The shock has been so great to Buck that it has temporarily destroyed his superlative power to manufacture alibis. We say temporarily because it is a condition that can't conceivably last long in Buck.

The first time Buck pitched against Joe DiMaggio in the American League, we happened to see our favorite pitcher before the game. We said that DiMag—this was back in 1936—must be pretty hot. "Ho!" Buck railed, "I pitched against him a lot, out on the Coast. He never got a foul off'n me. I'll start him back to California today."

DiMaggio banged a long hit to left off Buck, the first time up. He banged sternly to center the second time up, and finally drove Buck out of the box with a late-inning double to right. We saw Buck after the game and asked him about this. But Buck had long since recovered from his defeat. "What can a pitcher do with a guy's got a horseshoe in every pocket?" Buck shrugged, philosophically.

In the midst of the uncouth discussion as to which made more money, Newsom or Feller, Buck confidentially told us that it wasn't even a contest. He whispered some fabulous stipend which if cut in two—which isn't always a dangerous thing to do with Buck's estimates—would have been more money than Buck ever dreamed of making, during the years when he was wasting his fragrance with caboose clubs. Buck also was secretly pleased, though he made a loud noise to the contrary, when a Detroit paper announced that he had been fined $5,000. The story would have died a natural death if Buck had simply denied it—along with the denials of the team officials. But Buck has hedged until no one knows really whether he was fined that much or fined at all. Buck's view on that is "why ruin a good story?" and he relishes the reputation of having been fined more than any other player in baseball history except Babe Ruth.

Braves Hit Early, Beat Giants, 6-4

Boston, July 1.—The Boston Braves strung together six hits for six runs in the third inning today, sending 11 batters to the plate in a big merry-go-round, and whipped the New York Giants 6 to 4.

Hal Schumacher, who hasn't won a game in a month, was charged with his sixth loss. Bob Bowman finished out the wild third and then gave way to Fiddler Bill McGee, who pitched two-hit shutout ball through the last five frames.

After being held to one run in the first five innings the Giants began to get rough with Frank Lamanna as Babe Young and Ken O'Dea hit homers in the sixth and seventh, the latter with one on, but Johnny Hutchings clamped down tight in a two-inning relief role and New York made only seven hits over the route.

A. L. Stresses Power In All-Star Lineup

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 1.—A team fashioned largely along power lines will represent the American League in the ninth annual All-Star major league baseball game against the National Leaguers next Tuesday at Brigg's Stadium, Detroit.

The 25 players selected to represent the junior circuit, announced today by President Will Harridge, include the two heaviest sluggers in all baseball, Ted Williams, of the Boston Red Sox, and Jeff Heath, of the Cleveland Indians. Williams currently is leading all major league batsmen with a .402 average, with Heath second at .375.

But they won't be the only power clouters on hand as the American Leaguers bid for a sixth victory in this classic.

Such batting stars as Joe DiMaggio, Bill Dickey and Charley, Keller, of New York; Joe Cronin, of Boston and Rudy York, of Detroit, also will back up the fine pitching staff headed by Cleveland's brilliant Bob Feller who has won 16 games against four defeats this year.

The American League squad:

Pitchers: Feller, Cleveland; Lee and Edgar Smith, Chicago; Ruffing and Russo, New York; Hudson, Washington, and Benton, Detroit.

Catchers: Dickey, New York; Hayes, Philadelphia; Tebbetis, Detroit.

Infielders: Gordon, New York; Foxx, Cronin and Doerr, Boston; Boudreau and Keltner, Cleveland; Appling, Chicago; Travis, Washington, and York, Detroit.

Outfielders: J. DiMaggio and Keller, New York; Dom DiMaggio and Williams, Boston; Cullenbine, St. Louis, and Heath, Cleveland.

The team will be managed by Del Baker, Detroit pilot, who will be assisted by Coaches Art Fletcher, New York, and Merv Shea, Detroit.

Cubs Sacrifice 2,000 Seats to End Their Plate Woes

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 1.—The Chicago Cubs are going to wager $1,000 at Wrigley Field Thursday afternoon—in a desperate gamble the club will start hitting again.

General Manager Jim Gallagher said 2,000 centerfield bleacher seats would be blocked off during the Cub-St. Louis Cardinals game so that Cub batsmen will be free of the "white shirt" background they insist is keeping them from seeing pitches with accuracy.

"I don't believe the white shirts have any effect on the batters," said Gallagher, "but the players believe it, and we'll make this test.

In sixth place, the Cubs have lost nine of their last 11 games and have made only nine earned runs in their last 87 innings.

Shailleen, a $9.60 Shot, Takes Romney at Charles Town

Flag Etta, The Favorite, Takes Place

Root Gives Victor Hard Ride, Scores A Double; Ida Time Grabs Show Spoils

By Walter Haight
A Star Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., July 1.—After seven attempts this year A. A. Gray's Shailleen visited the winner's circle in today's feature race, the Romney Purse, a battle of about six furlongs. The four-year-old daughter of Happy Argo, under a strong ride by Jockey Buddy Root, who won in approved going away fashion by a length and a half over J. Richardson's Flag Etta, the odds-on favorite in the field of a half dozen. Third money went to W. B. Castlear's Ida Time, which was three lengths benind the public choice. Shailleen had a scattered backing and paid $9.20. She turned in time of 1:17 1-5 considered fair, inasmuch as the racing surface was a shade from being fast.

Flag Etta, handled by Jockey Willie Kelly, took the lead at once with Marandan and Lena Girl following as the field went to the backstretch. Root saved ground with Shailleen during the early stages. Approaching the stretch, Flag Etta drew out and Root placed Shailleen to a drive. The filly skimmed the rail and then wore down Flag Etta and was opening daylight at the end.

Root was riding his second winner of the day in the feature race. In the fourth event, he had the mount on Fusionette, owned by Danny Galotta, of Washington, D. C., and booted the filly home in advance of Counterpart and Penny Arcade. Fusionette returned an $11.80 mutuel to her backers.

Although they lost money on Flag Etta, followers of Jockey Kelly, leading rider at the meteing, had a profitable day. He was in the saddle of W. R. Fairbanks' Time Scout in the fifth race and brought the $4 favorite to the wire ahead of Grand Waltz and Saranite. In the seventh race Kelly was aboard Mrs. C. Smith's Ole Grouch. This 4-year-old gelding had started only once before in his life. Kelly gave him a masterful ride and whipped him through the stretch to dispose of the pace-making Connamista. Wintona was third.

Ole Grouch, the longest shot in the race, paid $67.40.

Kelly gained one winner on Palumbo, who won the second race with Taut, a $5.80 favorite. Those who coupled Taut with Aster Lady collected $83.60 in the daily double.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SAINT FYREWICK, $30.40, $14.00, $8.80; GOLDEN KEY, $5.80, $3.40; BUDDY AL, $3.40.

SAINT FYREWICK rushed through on inside to take command over COLORED POST and drew out under strong handling to win under drive. GOLDEN KEY lost ground from start while racing on outside and closed with good energy. BUDDY AL was rushed to hold forward position early and bung in final test. COLORED POST was rushed to set early pace and stopped.

SECOND RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place same. Went to post at 3:04½. Off at 3:06. Winner, Prettymen and Penoe's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TAUT, $5.80, $4.20, $3.40; HIGH LANCE, $5.20, $4.20; LEAD PLEASE, $5.00.

TAUT saved ground at first turn to draw clear, was never threatened and won with speed in reserve; HIGH LANCE was slow to begin, moved up boldly on outside to improve position and hung in final drive. LEAD PLEASE was keen forward factor and tired. DARK SUN was messed about at first turn. FULTON B. and CRIDE collided at first turn.

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:36. Off at 3:37½. Winner, E. M. Johnson's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ASTER LADY, $14.60, $6.60, $4.80; FRANK BROOKE, $3.40, $2.80; BULLET B., $5.40.

ASTER LADY, off poorly, went through a wide gap at first turn to reach FRANK BROOKE, ran head and head with latter and responded right at close to take photo verdict. Jockey Hernandes' claim of foul against winner was not allowed. FRANK BROOKE took command going to turn, swung wide and was outside of ASTER LADY thereafter. BULLET B. improved position and then hung. CHAKRA was hard ridden.

Daily Double, TAUT and ASTER LADY, Paid $83.60

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:04½. Off at 4:05. Winner, D. Galotta's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SHAILLEEN, $9.20, $3.80, $3.20; FLAG ETTA, $2.80, $2.60; IDA TIME, $4.20.

SHAILLEEN saved ground in early stages, responded when shaken up, came through on inside and wore down FLAG ETTA in closing test. The latter took command at once, was rated while setting pace, but could not stay in final stages. IDA TIME closed a gap from slow beginning. LENA GIRL was well placed early and faltered.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:28. Off at 5:28½. Winner, Mrs. C. Smith's gr. g. ### At The Post

Selections at Charles Town
Dear Al,

Jockey Mike Sarne got in from Wheeling and plans to ride at Hagerstown. Jockey George Watson has hung up his tack temporarily and will get mounts for Joe O'Malley in the meanwhile. Col. Frank Carr was a visitor to obtain stock for the United States Army and purchased Some Good from Mrs. E. J. Chambers. The horse will be shipped to the Remount Station at Front Royal, Va. There is no truth in the rumor that when I go swimming in the Shenandoah River the natives move out of houses close to the banks. There's a fine bathing beach called Big Eddy and the nearby night club is presided over by one George Washington Rutherford. He rules with a smile and stands for such nicknames as "Low Tide on the Black Sea" and "A Half Yard of Black Ribbon." Today's feature race is the Leesburg Purse, a test of six and a half furlongs. The sprint bristles with speed and Racing Secretary Freddie Burton has assigned the weights in a manner that points to a real battle. Russell Oakes and Walter Haight will air the race over a six-station hookup including WINK. If the rain stays away, the track will be lightning fast. I hope Brother Bester saves me stalls for Hagerstown. Lest we forget, the column broke out both winners yesterday, including $63.60 daily double. Don't forget the auctions. C. M. Feltner will put some 20 horses on the block in the paddock this morning starting at 10:30 o'clock. On Friday, H. O. Wilt will sell Lead Please, Tavern, Mororoco D. and Trixie Lass at the same place, same time. Feltner will handle the bidding at both sales. Martin Bletzacker drew the top jockey check for last week's riding. One of the flamingoes was playing dead yesterday. Maybe the heat got him. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—WAY OUT breaks from the outside and has plenty of speed. I'm going to string along. GAY FRANK has been shopping around and this looks like the spot for a serious effort. BLUE PRELUDE belongs close.

Second race—CAIDON is far down the list but will be the winner if sent postward. WALE SIGNAL likes the route and gets in with steadying weight. Will be a keen factor. BOUNCALONG comes here with a fair record.

Third race—This is the toughest race of the meeting. Of the horses named all but one has been a winner at the session. At the weights I'll take WAR SCARE, FRANK H. and BALKANESE.

Fourth race—BALLYHAUNIS is on the reserve list but is the class of the field. REAL BOY likes this route and should be the winner if the top one fails to see action. DRAGON WATCH is a long-shot possibility.

Fifth race—LIGHT OF MORN is tossed in this with light weight and I'm going to string along. ROMAN BOY packs 124 pounds but has all his speed. DASHING DOE belongs in the thick of contention.

Sixth race—WELSH LAD seems to have found a field that he can whip in the day's feature race. Likes the route and is fit as hands make horses. RED IDOL has done about everything asked and is dangerous. Light weight makes the Faulconer entry of ZAC PAM and RIPPLING ON a factor.

Seventh race—CHANNING gets my call in this cheap field. Needs only the right ride to take it all. SEA FINN belongs with such as these. JEAN C. for the minor award.

Eighth race—CHALOTAUR deserves the nod in the day's finals. The route and the weights are right. OLIVILO will be aided by the inside post position. MOROCCO D. was a recent winner.

Sub race—If this event is used, I'll take SCHLEY BUCK, OSOFREE and WESTLY.

Champion Woodmont Golf Team Wins Again in Field Day

Ruth Simon Tops Field With Net 67

Two Indian Spring Women in First Five at Club Invitation Play

Woodmont Country Club's sparkling lady golf team, winner of second team honors in the recently concluded Women's District Golf Association matches, played host in a field day to the losers of other clubs yesterday, and proceeded to steal the glory again. Three of its stars finished in the first five during an 18-hole handicap tournament.

Top place went to Ruth Simon, whose 93 with a 17 handicap gave her low net of 76. One stroke back was her teammate, Mrs. T. D. Peyser, who registered low gross of the day, 90. Mrs. Henry Goodman, another Woodmont stroker, was fourth with 91—12—79.

In third and fifth spots, respectively, were Indian Spring's Mrs. W. F. Patterson, 106—28—78, and Kenwood's Mrs. J. W. Jago, 97—15—81.

Members of the winning club opened yesterday's program by presenting Pro Gene Larkin with a handsome gift in token of their appreciation for assistance during the season.

At Manor the W. D. G. A. third team victors also entertained at golf, but could take only two places in an impromptu tourney. Low net of the day went to Mrs. B. M. Giles, of Columbia, 92—17—75, and the best Manor scorer was Mrs. James Hill, jr., who managed for second with 96—19—77.

Other prize winners in order were Mrs. Robert Keebler, Kenwood, 97—20—77; Mrs. P. J. Winkler, Congressional, 97—18—79; and Madeline Bast, Manor, 105—25—80.

Indianapolis Speedway Head Says Race Is On

Indianapolis, July 1 (AP).—T. E. (Pop) Myers, general manager of the Indianapolis motor speedway, issued a statement tonight that rumors there might not be a 500-mile race next year "are absolutely without foundation."

"However," he said, "Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, president of the speedway, has asked me to announce that in view of defense activities and the difficulty in obtaining materials, machine work and parts, there will be no change in motor sizes and weight limits for 1942 and we shall run under the same rules which were placed in force under the international formula in 1938."

Blozis, Other Stars, Put Off Track Action

By the Associated Press

Passaic, N. Y., July 16.—A heavy late-afternoon shower forced a 24-hour postponement tonight of the Holy Trinity Holy Name A. C.'s first annual "twilight" invitation track meet.

Among the stars who agreed to stay over another day were Al Blozis, of Jersey City, N. Y., and Archie Harris, of Ocean City, N. J., who won the shot put and discus titles, respectively, in the National A. A. U. championships at Philadelphia last Sunday, and Half-milers John Borican and Lieut. John Woodruff.

Woodruff hopes to get another 24 hours' leave from the commanding officer at Fort Ontario, Oswego, N. Y., where he is stationed with the 369th Coast Artillery Antiaircraft Regiment.

Sid Hudson to Get 'Vacation' Before Call to All-Star Game

Harris Will Pitch Young Star Once Between Now and July 8; Travis Again Honored

Philadelphia, July 1.—Del Baker, boss of the Detroit Tigers and manager of the American League's All-Star team, will not be compelled to look further than Sid Hudson if he wants a well-rested pitcher to toss at the National League All-Stars next week.

Young Hudson, only two seasons removed from the Class D Florida State League, was selected by the eight American League managers as one of the All-Star team's pitchers. With Cecil Travis, he was one of the two Nats who was extended All-Star recognition.

Manager Bucky Harris today promised that Hudson would be available for All-Star duty, declaring: "My plan is to pitch Hudson on July 4 and thus he will have three full days of rest before Tuesday's All-Star game. I want to cooperate with Baker and I'm going to send him a well-rested pitcher."

Hard Luck Victim

Hudson, a 17-game winner last season when he was a sensation in his first year out of Class D ball, has won only five games against eight defeats this year, but the league managers generally are recognizing the fact that he has been the victim of hard-luck defeats this year.

There are indications that Manager Baker may call upon Hudson to be the American League's starting pitcher in the All-Star game. Last week he talked of that possibility with Manager Bucky Harris, saying "I wouldn't shy at giving the ball to young Hudson and telling him to go out there and start the game. I don't think I could go far wrong."

It is known that at least four of the league's managers had Hudson high on their list of six pitchers they submitted to league headquarters as their selections. Harris, of course, named Hudson, and the tall right-hander was also on the list of Manager Joe Cronin, of the Red Sox; Baker, of the Tigers, and Manager Jimmy Dykes, of the White Sox.

Travis, currently the third leading hitter in the league, is receiving All-Star honors for the third time in his career. He was on Manager Harris' list as a third baseman despite the fact he is now playing shortstop.

"I imagine," said Harris, "that Baker will play Travis at third base in some part of the All-Star game, probably relieving Ken Keltner against right-handed pitching."

Hudson, after pitching in New York on July 4, will not accompany the Nats to Boston. He will return to Washington and entrain for Detroit on Monday. Travis will leave for Detroit Sunday night from Boston.

Phillies Blast Dodgers From 1st Plaace, 6-4

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, July 1.—The last-place Phillies, who had lost ten straight games to the Dodgers this season and 18 of their last 21 against all foes, beat Brooklyn, 6 to 4, in a ten-inning struggle today and knocked the Dodgers out of a tie for the National League lead.

Stan Benjamin singled with the bases loaded in the tenth for the margin of victory.

Softball Title Hinges on Mound Duel Between Smith and Steffes

Stars of Kavakos, Fat Boy Tangle Tonight at Stadium

The first-half title in the Capital City Softball League will ride on the results of a pitching duel tonight between ace hurlers of the Kavakos Grill and Fat Boy teams.

The two teams will take the field at the Washington Softball Stadium, New York Avenue and Bladensburg Road, at 8 p. m., and the largest crowd of the season is expected to see the two leaders clash.

Manager Bill Kavakos is sending his star, "Cannonball Jack" Smith against Harold Steffes, of the Fat Boy Club, in what is shaping up as the best pitching battle of the season.

A victory for Kavakos will clinch the first-half championship. The Fat Boy team is seeking to throw the race into a tie by winning.

Smith, a recent addition to the Kavakos Club, will be meeting up with, in Steffes, a pitcher who has lost only one game this season and who has turned in two no-hit-no-run feats thus far, one a perfect performance.

The respective pitching abilities of Smith and Steffes has long been debated in softball circles. Both are strikeout artists, blessed with good control. Smith, however, is a dangerous batter on his own account.

Formerly a star with the International Business Machines team before being signed by Kavakos, and a star athlete at Roosevelt High, Smith emerged as one of the heroes of the National Softball Championship finals at Detroit last season. He was the loser to the championship Kodak team in a thrilling 1-0 game.

Dempsey-Willard Bout Referee Is Dead at 71

By the Associated Press

Toledo, Ohio, July 1.—Ollie Pecord, veteran sports official who refereed the Dempsey-Willard boxing match in 1919, died last night at 71. A professional baseball player a half century ago, Pecord retired from the Columbus club of the old Western League in 1892 to become a prize fighter.

Gramps Surprises Aqueduct Talent

Aqueduct, N. Y., July 1.—Jonn Hay Whitney's Gramps scored his initial triumph of the year in the featured Diablo (class "C") Handicap here today, Conn McCreary driving the $17 for $3 shot over the wire a length to the good. But the crowd got its real thrill out of the horse that finished second—a big strawberry roan 3-year-old named Peterhof, racing for the Canadian sportsman, K. R. Marshall.

Pair Takes 2 Matches In Doubles

Dawson-Hohenstein, Bennion-Underwood Bow to 'Iron Men' On Columbia Court

Don Leavens and Davey Johnsen, one of the favored duos in the Middle Atlantic Tennis doubles, put on an "iron man" stunt yesterday to be the first to gain the quarter-finals at Columbia Country Club.

Despite the equator-like heat, the youthful racqueters came successfully through two matches. In the first they tripped Dawson and Hohenstein by the one-sided score of 6—0, 6—1. After a brief rest they came back and hung a 6—2, 9—7, 6—1 beating on Bennion and Underwood.

Bill Bresse and partner Smith attempted the same performance but it was cut short by darkness. In their first outing the Breese-Smith team put on the pressure in their first and third sets with Cassini and Moorhead, but dropped the second. The final count was 6—1, 2—6, 6—2. Later Breese and Smith hooked up with top-seeded Barney Welsh and Hugh Lynch, but were unable to finish. Welsh and Lynch won the first set, 6—4, and the count when hostilities were called off was all even, 7—7.

In other matches, Eddie Miller and Buddy Adair turned back Bowles and Kilgus, 6—3, 9—7, 6—1; and Murphy and Channing defeated Ellis and Hold, 6—3, 6—0, 4—6, 6—2.

Today's schedule calls for a resumption of singles play, four interesting matches being carded. Probably the best will be the clash of the tournaments youngest entries, Johnson and Adair. Leavens and Breese also tangle, as do Welsh and Ellis, and Lynch and Canale. All matches will start at 5 p. m.

Motion Picture On Gehrig's Life Is Being Planned

By the Associated Press

Hollywood, July 1.—The life of the late Lou Gehrig may be made into a motion picture.

David O. Selznick, it was disclosed today, has been in contact with the widow of the former New York Yankee first baseman in connection with the proposed film.

The picture would tell the story of Gehrig's career not only as a player, but of his work on the New York Parole Commission after his baseball days were ended.

The Yankee star died recently of a rare ailment.

Fishing with JACK BELL

This 122-pound tuna was boated last weekend off Ocean City, Md., by Alexander T. Grider, of Westfield, N. J., while fishing with a party on Capt. Irv. Mumford's Hilda. Six smaller tuna were caught, along with a flock of bonito

Word has been received from Harrisburg, Pa., that Act No. 41, prohibiting the sale of striped bass or rockfish under 18 inches, has gotten the official o. k. by Gov. Arthur James, climaxing a tough battle through three sessions of the State's lawmakers. The bill was introduced by Representatives Cullen, of Philadelphia, County, and Breth, of Clearfield County. We hope other States bordering the Chesapeake and the Coast will follow suit.

Upton, Maine on Lake Umbagog, July 1 — Umbagog Lake is the most southerly of the Rangely chain of lakes, partly in the State of New Hampshire as well as in Maine. It is 1,249 feet above the level of the sea. The scenery is unsurpassed, large mountains arising from its shores and only a few cabin camps to be seen. It all looks very wild.

JACK BELL

Before, however, we can go stream fishing, I must make some reference to the lake. Personally, I would rather fish in a lake than not at all, but when streams are available, lakes have to take second choice. The lake affords excellent square-tail or brook trout, and land-lock salmon fishing, trout up to 5 pounds and land-lock salmon of 11 pounds are caught, the average being 1½ pound trout, and 3 pound salmon. The popular method of fishing is by trolling.

There are three very good streams which provide brook trout and salmon fishing, fly fishing only being allowed on the streams.

Cambridge is a slow moving, dead water stream, where fishing out of a canoe is practiced. This stream has been closed due to its low water level.

The better-known Magalloway River, about which many fish stories have been written, is a large stream averaging about 75 feet in width with many falls, rapids and large pools. Fishing on the rocks is the only possible way, and a fellow should exercise by walking up and down high steps for some time before trying it. I watched Harold Vermuele fishing this stream and he reminded me of a mountain goat bobbing up and down and around the big rocks.

This stream is an early season stream. We did not do so well. We caught only a small number of square tail trout; however, we did have the privilege to net a fine 29-inch salmon for a brother angler who fought him for 35 minutes. He caught him on a No. 14 light Cahill fished wet. The Magalloway can be reached by car at several points along its length and is a good stream during May.

Saturday morning we were up at 3 a. m. and got started at 4:30 to make a 12-mile boat trip up Lake Umbagog to Rapid River. It is a stream, the likes of which, we have never seen before. It is not accessible at all by auto, being located in very wild country, draining out of Lower Richardson Lake into Umbagog. A look at any good road map will convince you as to what the character of the country might be. This stream drops rapidly out of Lower Richardson, forming many white rapids and large pools. This steram has an average width of 100 feet. Its banks are strewn with boulders. Fishing from the rocks with some wading, if you can keep your feet on the bottom, is easy.

This stream, early in the season, affords about five days of the best salmon fishing in Maine. It is then that logs, cut way up in the Kennebago Lake region during the winter, are floated from there through Kennebago to Moosieuckmeguntic into Upper Richardson to Lower Richardson and then through Rapid River into Umbagog Lake and out into the Androscogin River to Berlin, N. H., a distance of several hundred miles of waterways, to be made into paper.

Little Tavern Stops Grillmen By 6-4 Score

The Little Tavern baseball team, which has checked in regular upsets in The Washington Post-Industrial League, got around to another one yesterday.

Meeting the perennially powerful O'Donnell's Grill nine, the Tavernmen eked out a 6-4 victory despite the fact they were outhit, 9-5. Jennings and Senge went the seven-inning route, Jennings allowing the losers only two bases on balls and fanning six.

Little Tavern started with a rush, chalking up what proved the winning runs in the opening inning. First Baseman Good tripled with Knocky Thomas on base, coming home a few minutes later on Mangiapane's clean single.

As the result of a cancelation of its games at Suffolk, Va., yesterday, the Tavern Club is seeking games for Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Barlund, Banned After Conn T.K.O., Restored to Grace

By the Associated Press

Chicago, July 1.—Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher quashed today the proceedings of the Illinois Athletic Commission which suspended Gunnar Barlund, Finnish heavyweight boxer, for one year following his technical knockout last April 4 by Billy Conn at the stadium.

The court's order, which found the commission failed to enter a finding on fact in their report of the hearing, also quashed proceedings against Barlund's manager, Paul Damski, and returned to Barlund the $3,600 purse which had been withheld.

At the commission's hearing it was charged Barlund "quit" after the seventh round of the scheduled 12-round match.

Mrs. Stewart Sends Fine Horses Up

colts may not do as well as in 1940, when all seven representatives were colts.

Nevertheless, there is one chestnut that should receive special attention, monetary and otherwise, from Saratoga's top-hatted buyers; he is a full brother to Pasteurized, and is the biggest yearling on the farm. In the next stall is another son of Milkman, out of Sea Cradle, that is smaller but eye-catching because of his white markings.

The third colt to go north is by Milkman out of Moving Picture, she by North Star II. Because mares of her parentage are growing scare and are considered excellent producers, she is one of the farm's pet matrons and her yearling, a brown, should bring a good price at auction. Moving Star's first colt was the kood racing son of Equipoise—Equistar.

In a big meadow adjoining the long driveway into the farm is Marsh Heiress, a daughter of the lone Kentucky Derby-winning filly, Regret, who produced no winners despite her own unusual racing record.

Lady Ray Starred

One of Rolling Plains' homebred mares, Lady Ray, raced under Mrs. Stewart's colors and took the Coaching Club Oaks at Belmont Park. It was her bay colt by Milkman that brought $5,500 at Saratoga last year. She is now in foal to Blue Larkspur.

As for Milkman himself, he is a beautifully built brown son of Cudgel-Milkmaid, who looks more like a youngster than a middle-aged gentleman of 14. His own racing record was excellent; he broke two track records at Saratoga and won nearly $100,000. His stud fee is now set at $650. Burrows' records show that 32 mares have been bred to him this year.

Current activitie at Rolling Plains are far different from those of 12 years ago, when Mrs. Stewart first bought the farm and commenced breeding horses on a small scale. Burrows, a native of England, has been associated with horses all his life, except for a brief sojourn with the Royal Air Force in Canada during the first World War.

Optimistic, Schram Takes Market Reins

By the Associated Press

New York, July 1.—Emil Schram today took over his new job as president of the New York Stock Exchange and in the course of informal induction ceremonies expressed the belief Wall Street had reason to look forward to better days.

Regarding Washington's attitude toward the financial center, the new president said:

"The tendency is toward cooperation and understanding between the Government and all branches of business. Both sides are working to establish better relations.

He expressed hope that he would be able to promote more cordial relations between the financial community and the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Mutual Problems

"The stock exchange has its problems, as has the Securities Commission," he said. "A mutual understanding of the problems would be helpful. The commission is not trying to destroy the financial markets."

Schram dispensed with fanfare in taking office. His quarters on the sixth floor of the stock exchange's office building at Broad and Wall Streets are the same as occupied by his predecessors.

Schram, tanned and husky of build, got a big cheer from the stock exchange brokers on his initial visit to the trading floor shortly after the opening of the market.

Psychologically, Schram's assumption of duties was expected to add impetus to the bloodless revolution of "the street." It came while the exchange leaders were discussing what they could do in the future rather than had done in the "good old days."

Low Turnover Cited

As one financial man pointed out, the turnover of the last six months was the lowest since 1915 "almost anything that happens should be an improvement."

Schram, former chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, follows the exchange's first paid president, William McChesney Martin, jr., in the $48,000-a-year post.

Financial circles expect him to consolidate the gains in public confidence credited to Martin's initiative and to come up with several new ideas of his own.

The new boss took over an organization sifted and winnowed by a long period of poor business that has eliminated some members and resulted in consolidation of others.

There were numerous disagreements over what Schram's toughest immediate problem would be. Increased business was generally called the first job, and the suggestions were legion.

Boost Commissions?

The question of increasing commissions to make up for the lack of business, or cutting them to boost the volume, has been before the exchange for some time. There was talk of a sliding scale, of "wholesale" prices to security dealers and of a horizontal rise.

A thrid in the list of major dilemmas was lowering costs of the actual operation of the exchange.

Indications were that Wall Streeters might hold back their troubles while the new boss got the reins firmly in hand and look to Schram for the initiative.

Besides ending the smallest six months in 27 years, and last month was the poorest since 1920 with a turnover yesterday of 271,650 shares.

Exchange Address? Schram Doesn't Know

New York, July 1 (AP).—Emil Schram, newly elected president of the New York Stock Exchange, left his hotel this morning to put in the first day on his new job. Stepping into a taxicab he told the driver to take him to the stock exchange.

"Where is it?" asked the driver.

"I don't know either," replied the former RFC chairman. "I have a job there but I don't know the exact location."

"Well," apologized the taxi man, "this is my first day driving a cab."

Broker's Registration Is Revoked by SEC

By the Associated Press

The Securities Commission reaffirmed yesterday an order revoking the broker-dealer registration of Walston & Co., San Francisco, but reduced from 6 months to 30 days the suspension of exchange memberships imposed on two partners, Vernon C. Walston and William Sherman Hoelscher.

The commission's action was based on charges that the partners had willfully concealed that Virgil Giannini, member of the West Coast banking family, had finance and controlled the broker-dealer business.

Utility's Preferred Stock Is Awarded

New York, July 1 (AP).—An issue of $12,000,000 in preferred stock of New York State Electric & Gas Corporation, has been awarded to the first Boston Corporation, Glore Forgan & Co., and associates subject to approval of the New York Public Service Commission and the Securities & Exchange Commission.

It was reported that the successful bidders offered 100.85 on a stock carrying a dividend of $.1 per cent and that interest cost basis of the bid was 5.057 per cent.

Schenley Distillers Buys Kentucky Firm

Louisville, Ky., July 1 (AP).—A. J. Harris, president of the John A. Wathen Distilling Corporation at Lebanon, announced the sale of the major assets of the corporation to the Schenley Distillers Corporation, Louisville, in a deal involving between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000.

The Schenley Corporation tomorrow will take possession of the Wathen distillery property, one-eighth of a mile west of Lebanon, 45,000 barrels of whisky, brands and labels.

Buick, Chevrolet to Produce 2,000 Plane Engines Monthly

Detroit, July 1.—Plans for the production of aviation engines at a rate never before attained were announced today by two major units of the automobile industry.

Buick and Chevrolet divisions of General Motors Corporation each disclosed plans to produce 1,000 Pratt & Whitney engines monthly, matching the known objectives of the Packard and Ford motor companies. Meanwhile General Motors also is pressing efforts to further step up its output of the Allison engine, of its own design, with 1,000 monthly also the immediate objective.

For Buick the projected output of 1,000 aviation engines monthly represents a doubling of the previously announced volume at plants in Flint, Mich., and the one under construction now at Melrose Park, near Chicago.

For Chevrolet the aircraft engine work is a new undertaking, supplementing a heavy schedule of truck, shell, axle, transmission case and other armament output.

Speaking for Chevrolet, M. E. Coyle, its president and general manager, said the company would convert two of its plants in Buffalo and Tonawanda, N. Y., to the manufacture of the Pratt & Whitney motors. The plants to be utilized at present are engaged in car output for normal civilian uses. They will complete that work late this month and their conversion to the new assignments will get under way immediately. Coyle said that in addition to the plants now available in the Buffalo area, a new unit to include a battery of testing cells for the aviation engine will be erected on company property at Tonawanda.

The work heretofore done at the Buffalo plants, he added, will be spread out among other Chevrolet factories throughout the country. He said, however, that the immediate objective was to get a "pilot line" under way.

Coyle did not say when actual production could be started; neither did he venture a guess as to when peak output could be attained. Sources close to the Chevrolet production division asserted, however, that output would be well under way months ahead of the normal contract requirements of 18 months from date of the contract allocation.

Coyle's outline of the huge aircraft motor production program came close upon announcement the Chevrolet had been allotted $9,075,000 for defense work. The Buick announcement, made by Harlow H. Curtice, company president, was preceded by an increase to $8,000,000 in the aircraft engine allocation to that company. The original commitment to Buick had been $36,497,520 for engines.

Gun Output to Be Speeded

Akron, Ohio, July 1 (AP).—Mass production today became the next goal of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. after it had turned over to the Army the first of two pilot models of a new antiaircraft cannon.

Officers of the company said a rate of five guns a day would be instituted in August, to be doubled in early fall.

The weapon is a 40 millimeter cannon which shoots an explosive shell at aircraft.

The Chrysler Corporation will manufacture the barrels and recoil mechanisms, with Firestone handling the mountings and the assembly in a new $1,500,000 plant being finished.

Tank Armor Output Rushed

Cleveland, July 1 (AP).—Republic Steel Corporation is producing enough light armor plate, fabricated for immediate assembly, to supply 200 tanks a month, it was declared today in a letter which accompanied dividend checks to stockholders.

The corporation also has a capacity for 700 tons of light armor plate monthly, which the tank producers must fabricate before using. The output in both categories is increasing.

Furniture Show Opens; Orders Exceed Output

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 1 (AP).—Registrations mounted today at the 128th semiannual Grand Rapids Furniture Exposition, and exhibitors said the problem of production was greater than the sales problem despite a 5 to 10 per cent increase in prices since January.

The market opened yesterday with more than 300 buyers registered, a slight increase over the first-day figures of last summer's market. It will continue through July 12.

A two-month backlog of unfilled orders posed a problem for manufacturers, and few could promise immediate delivery. Most of the factories already are on a capacity production basis.

Exhibitors are watching developments in Washington closely for clarification of price control efforts. Many said they anticipated the appointment of a price control administrator over the furniture industry in connection with the reorganization of the OPM on an industry basis.

Associated Gas Will Sell Unit

New York, July 1 (AP).—Associated Gas & Electric Corporation trustees announced today a plan to sell their controlling 155,747 shares of common stock in Northeastern Water & Electric Corporation to President John H. Ware, of Penn-Jersey Water Co. for $3,900,000.

The move, subject to court and Securities & Exchange Commission approval, would be in line with Federal integration requirements, the trustees said.

Northeastern is a holding company for 38 water companies, five electric companies and one combination firm rendering water service to 101 communities in Maine, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Hampshire, Kentucky, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Arkansas and Ohio. The program contemplates that Northeastern would dispose of its Ohio electric properties.

Erie R. R. Bondholders To Get $2,500,000

Cleveland, July 1 (AP).—Payment of approximately $2,500,000 interest to holders of various Erie Railroad bonds was authorized today by Judge Robert N. Wilkin.

Most of the authorized payments are those made at six-month intervals, but the $15 which goes to holders of each general lien bond and each general mortgage convertible bond represents 18 months' interest.

Tax Collections In Virginia Rise $60,563,393

Richmond, Va., July 1 (AP).—Internal Revenue collections in Virginia for the fiscal year ended yesterday totaled $288,066,460.02, a net gain of $60,563,393.55 compared with the previous year, Collector N. B. Early said today.

The June collections of $34,928,211.52 beat the same month a year ago by $10,064,878.86.

Beer tax collections for the past fiscal year increased nearly $900,000 over 1939-1940, the State tax department reported today.

A two-month backlog of unfilled orders posed a problem for manufacturers, and few could promise immediate delivery. Most of the factories already are on a capacity production basis.

The 1940-1941 collections totaled $2,532,922.00 compared with $1,682,945.12 for the previous year. Beer tax collections since the beginning of beer sales in October 1933 total $11,050,002.47.

June, 1941, with collections of $371,983.80, was the biggest month on record. May collections this year were $323,642.27 and June, 1940 $239,472.13.

Whiting to Head Consumers Power

New York, July 1 (AP).—Justin R. Whiting, president of Commonwealth & Southern Corporation has been elected president of the Consumers Power Co., main operating unit of the system.

The selection was in line with developments pertaining to the break-up of Commonwealth & Southern's Northern group of properties in compliance with the provisions of the Holding Company Act and was decided at a private board meeting of the corporation last week.

William H. Barthold, vice president of Commonwealth & Southern, was chosen president of the Central Illinois Light Co., another subsidiary.

2 of 3 Marines In Ohio Gun Fight Plead Guilty

Findlay, Ohio, July 1 (AP).—Two of a trio of 20-year-old Marines captured Sunday by State highway patrolmen near here after an 85-mile-an-hour gun fight, pleaded guilty today to charges of auto theft and shooting with intent to kill.

The two, Joseph Sacilotto, of Cleveland, and Joseph Campisi, of Brooklyn, N. Y., were bound over to the grand jury by Mayor C. H. Duttweiler under $12,500 bond each.

Mayor Duttweiler said Mario Liberatore, of Geneva, N. Y., would be arraigned on similar charges following his release from a hospital. Liberatore has a bullet wound in the arm.

Sergt. F. E. Bollis, of the highway patrol, said the three youths told him they were absent without leave from the Quantico (Va.) Marine Corps barracks, and that they admitted stealing automobiles at Washington, D. C., Pittsburgh, Hamilton, Ohio, and Michigan City, Ind., since leaving the Marine base June 19.

Clerk Mutters 'Goodby,' Kills Self in German Embassy Here

Muttering "goodby" to four fellow employes at the German Embassy yesterday, Heinz Kurt W. Nostitz, 41, a clerk, strolled to the corner of the room, drew an automatic pistol from his pocket and killed himself with a shot.

Embassy officials immediately notified the State Department that they were waiving diplomatic immunity to allow a full investigation of the case by the Metropolitan Police Department.

Nostitz had been suffering from ill health and had recently had all his teeth extracted, allowing him to work only a few hours a day, police learned. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide.

Four other clerks were working with Nostitz in a third floor rear room of the Embassy Chancellory, 1436 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest. They were Otto Lenz, Otto Rathje, Blackenhagen and Reinhold Keppler.

They told police he mumbled something as he rose slowly from his desk. The only word they caught was "goodby." Turning, he walked to a far corner of the room and drew the gun—a German make of 7.65 caliber, corresponding to an American 32—and fired one bullet below the right ear.

Nostitz was a native of Germany who had worked at the embassy here for several years. Previously he had served his government in Spain and South America.

His home in Washington was at 5024 Nebraska Avenue Northwest. His wife, Agnes, survives.

Embassy officials said last night that no plans have been made for funeral and burial services.

Coroner MacDonald said that Dr. Karl Rosenberg, first secretary of the Embassy "cooperated to the fullest extent, giving police and myself full access to records."

Plaques of special recognition were presented to the following for their work for the association: Raymond D. DuFour, Warren Stone, Paul Grove, James DeForce, Arthur Minor, Earl Hough and William B. Rumple.

John D. Marsh, retired president, was presented with a wrist watch of appreciation. During his administration the association's membership increased 15 per cent.

Advertising Leaps 9.4 Per Cent

Continuing the unbroken trend which has been in evidence for three months, volume of retail advertising placed in the newspapers of 33 major cities during the week ended June 21 was 9.4 per cent larger than during the corresponding week of last year, Advertising Age reported yesterday.

During that week 19,553,696 lines of retail display advertising were placed in the newspapers of the 33 reporting cities, compared with 17,874,178 lines during the corresponding week of 1940.

For the 25 weeks since the beginning of the year, retail lineage in the reporting cities totaled 506,162,434 lines, an increase of 4.4 per cent compared with the comparable 1940 total of 484,646,474 lines.

Oil Production Dips in Week

New York, July 1 (AP).—A drop of 13,400 barrels daily in California caused daily average crude oil production in the United States to decline to 3,847,250 barrels for the week ended June 28, from 3,887,000 a week ago.

Refining companies owning 86.2 per cent of the Nation's potential capacity operated at 91.8 per cent of their ability, indicating a run to stills of 3,930,000 barrels of crude daily. Last week the figure was 3,845,000 barrels and a year ago 3,608,000.

Finished and unfinished gasoline stocks at the end of the week totaled 91,461,000 barrels, continuing the seasonal decline, and compared with 91,916,000 barrels a week earlier. A year ago stocks were 94,296,000 barrels. Aviation gasoline stocks rose to 7,411,000 barrels from 7,243,000.

Keith-Albee-Orpheum Forms New Subsidiary

New York, July 1 (AP).—Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation announced today stockholders had approved reorganization plans and that a new subsidiary had sold $8,000,000 in securities to institutions.

Two subsidiaries, B. F. Keith Corporation and Greater New York Vaudeville Theaters Corporation, were merged into a new B. F. Keith Corporation.

The new corporation sold $6,000,000 of 4¼ per cent mortgage and collateral trust bonds due June 1, 1954, to the equitable Life Assurance Society, and $2,000,000 in 2½ per cent serial notes to a group of banks headed by the Bankers Trust Co.

Carnegie-Illinois Buys Two Plants

Canonsburg, Pa., July 1 (AP).—Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation today bought the tin plate manufacturing plant of the Standard Tinplate Co. here and the coal mining property of the Canonsburg Coal Co. The price was not divulged.

Both the Standard Tin Plate Co. and the Canonsburg Coal Co. are subsidiaries of Continental Can Co. About 2,000 employes were transferred to the Carnegie-Illinois pay rolls.

Week's Gold Imports Rise to $9,375,835

By the Associated Press

Gold imports rose to $9,375,835 in the week ended June 25. The Commerce Department, supplying this figure yesterday, said it was about $1,600,000 higher than the preceding week due to increased shipments from Australia.

Australia's $4,441,397 was the largest gold cargo of the week. Next was Canada's $3,219,600.

Stocks Drift Lower for Fourth Straight Day; N. J. Standard Oil Buoyant, Sets 1941 High

New York, July 1.—The stock market made it four straight sessions today in which the averages have been unable to finish with a net advance. Prices were mixed at the start and irregularly lower tendencies prevailed at the close. While there was a smattering of fairly strong spots in evidence, many leaders were behind fractions to a point or so.

The Associated Press composite of 60 stocks was off .1 of a point at 4.15, duplicating its setback of the previous session. Dealings picked up a bit over Monday's sluggish performance, transfers totalling 346,420 shares against 271,650 the day before.

While business prospects propped individual issues, brokers cited virtually the same handicaps which have persisted during the past week or so: lack of any really cheering news from the German-Russian conflict, the cloudy tax program and fears of widening governmental restraints on industry.

Bonds were as uneven as stocks, although Japanese dollar loans put on a show of strength mainly, banking quarters suggested, because of rumors the United States and Brittan had a chance to wean the Nipponese from the Axis ranks.

Among stocks in arrears were U. S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, Chrysuler, U. S. Rubber, American Telephone, Sant'a Fe, Dupont, American Smelting, Montgomery Ward, Boeing, American Airlines, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak and Consolidated Edison. Pepsi-Cola made its bow on the "Big Board" in the p'ace of Loft as the result of the recent merger and emerged with a decline of ⅝ at 23½.

Standard Oil (N. J.) registered another new 1941 high with a gain of ⅛ at 41⅝. Others ahead included Westinghouse, American Can, Union Carbide, Kennecott and Bethlehem Steel. J. I. Case was up 3¼ points on a small turnover.

Tilting upward in the Curb were American Gas, Gulf Oil, Cities Service and N. J. Zinc. On the offside were Aluminum of America, Glen Alden Coal, Bell Aircraft and Sherwin Williams. Volume here was around 88,000 shares versus 52,000 yesterday.

A small and selected group of domestic rails and foreign dollar obligations rose sharply in today's bond market in contrast with minor changes and a mixed trend for the main list.

Among the better performers were Brisbane 3s, up 6¼ points at 61¼; Tokyo City 5½s, up 3 at 50; Silesian-American Corp. 7s, up 6 at 84; Pittsburgh & West Va. 4½s, series "C," up 3¼ at 83¾; Argentine 4½s, up 1¼ at 84½, and Japan 6½s, up 1 at 73½.

Others ahead moderately included Boston & Maine 4s, Laclede Gas 6s, St. Louis-San Francisco 4½s, American & Foreign Power 5s and International Mercantile Marine 6s.

U. S. Governments were all but neglected on the Stock Exchange. Only $12,000, par value changed hands during the 2-hour session, most at slightly higher prices. Business was more active over the counter and the undertone remained steady despite small recessions compared with Monday's prices.

Transfers of $6,374,500, par value, compared with $5,000,750 the day before.

Cotton Textile Ceiling Held Confusing

By the Associated Press

New York, July 1.—W. Ray Bell, president of the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York, said today the Federal order setting price ceilings on some cotton goods was "confusing" and "is having a paralyzing effect upon the whole cotton trade."

He called the order inequitable in that it "makes no provision whatsoever for fluctuations in the two basic elements of cost—cotton and labor."

"Yet cotton has risen more than 40 per cent since March, and on June 30, the day after the OPACS schedule was published, a 15 per cent wage increase, announced early in the month, was put into effect by the wage and hour division of the Department of Labor," Bell said. "Who knows what cotton prices and wage rates will be four to six months from now, when goods sold as of today will actually come off the looms?"

The textile man suggested that "a flexible relationship between its (OPACS) maximum prices and the prices of cotton and labor should be made a basic part of its price schedule."

In Boston President Russell T. Fisher, of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers asked further consideration of the price order, saying it seemed "to put a premium on inferior goods to the detriment of quality. * * * under the present cloth price order, quality goods must be offered at the same price levels as inferior goods."

Md. Bank Directors Vote Liquidation

Delmar, Del., July 1 (AP).—Asserting continued operation of the institution no longer was essential to the community it serves, directors of the First National Bank of Delmar today undertook voluntary 100 per cent liquidation.

The bank was organized in 1904. Its total capitalization was $75,000 and the April statement showed assets of $456,856.49 and liabilities of $384,264.64. Never having experienced financial difficulties, the bank reopened on a 100 per cent basis after the 1933 bank holiday.

500 Box Cars Ordered By Seaboard Railway

Birmingham, Ala., July 1 (AP).—The Seaboard Railway today ordered 500 all-steel box cars from the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Co., plant at Bessmer, Ala.

Delivery is scheduled to begin in the first quarter of 1942. Approximately 10,000 tons of steel, mostly plates, will be required. The order involves approximately $1,500,000.

11,000 Added to Steel Pay Rolls in Month

New York, July 1 (AP).—The American Iron & Steel Institute reported today almost 11,000 new employes had been added to steel industry pay rolls in May, boosting employment to a new peak of 632,000, compared with 610,000 in May, 1940.

The institute said the May pay roll aggregated $115,387,000, compared with $108,557,000 in April and $78,184,000 in May, 1940.

The report estimated that wage-earning employes received 98.1 cents an hour in May and worked an average of 39.7 hours a week for an indicated weekly wage of nearly $39.

Price Fixing Fears Depress Commodities

By the Associated Press

Price fixing shadows continued to weigh oppressively on some commodity futures markets yesterday but a few others attracted buyers willing to bid moderately higher prices for staple contracts.

Cottonseed oil, under direct threats of early ceiling fixing, dropped another .75 to .96 of a cent a pound on a record trading volume. On Monday a rush of speculative selling at the opening caused the Produce Exchange management to fix a limit decline of 1 cent a pound on this product and most transactions were effected at this decline.

Cotton came back for final gains of 35 to 55 cents a bale after a wobbly performance. Santos coffee futures also swung ahead, final gains amounting to .13 to .16 of a cent a pound. Hides closed unchanged to .10 of a cent improved.

Most other New York speculative markets finished lower. Wool tops were down 1.2 to 2 cents a pound; cocoa, down .11 to .12 of a cent and silk down 1 to 2½ cents.

Culminating three successive declines the Associated Press weighted index of 35 wholesale spot commodities advanced to 88.64 per cent of the 1926 average from 88.50 per cent Monday.

Sharp Break in Soybeans

Chicago, July 1 (AP).—Soybeans broke sharply in late dealings today and carried wheat down as much as 1¼ below yesterday's closing levels.

Selling of wheat futures dropped prices from a peak of 1.037 for the July delivery to a low of 1.03⅛, but the market steadied slightly then and closed 1.03½, off ⅜ to 1 cent. September finished with net losses of ⅜ to 1 cent at 1.04⅛@1.05, and December at 1.06¼@1.06⅝, off 1 to 1¼ cents.

Corn closed ⅛ higher to ½-cent lower, July 73⅝@73¾, September 75½; soybeans were 3½ to 3¾ off, July 1.42½, October (new) 1.34⅝@1.34⅞; oats were ⅝ to 1⅜ down; rye ⅜ up ot ⅛ off, and lard unchanged to 5 cents higher per hundredweight.

The break in soybeans followed cottonseed oil, which dropped 100 points, the limit for a single day's trading session. Earlier, beans prices had advanced as much as 1⅛ cents. Lard also reacted from early gains of 40 cents at the extreme on buying credited to houses with Eastern connections.

The lower trend in wheat was influenced mainly by weakness in fats and oils, limited demand, heavy receipts and some hedging pressure.

Cottonseed Oil Weak

New York, July 1 (AP).—Cottonseed oil trading set an all-time record today with 800 contracts exchanged, closing from .75 to .96 of a cent a pound under yesterday's level after touching the full 1-cent decline permitted.

Uneasiness in other vegetable oil markets lent nervousness to cottonseed oil.

Futures closing prices: July *11.80, September 10.90, October 11.65, December 10.59, January 10.56.

Wholesalers' Sales Hop 32% in May

By the Associated Press

The Census Bureau estimates that May sales of wholesalers were 32 per cent higher than in the corresponding month last year. This was the largest year-to-year gain of such sales in any month since the type of figures was started five years ago.

Each of 35 lines of trade reported gains, the largest being metals, 101 per cent; coal, 80 per cent; industrial supplies, 72 per cent; machinery, equipment and supplies (excluding electrical), 69 per cent; shoes and other footwear, 61 per cent, and electrical goods, 59 per cent.

Vacuum Cleaner Sales Rise Sharply in May

Cleveland, July 1 (AP).—The Vacuum Cleaner Manufacturers Association reports May sales of cleaners totaled 199,210 units, against 174,151 units for May, 1940. The total for five months was 945,396 units as against 788,841 for the like period of 1940.

Farm Product Index Displays 23-Point Leap

By the Associated Press

Farm products prices advanced six points at local markets between mid-May and mid-June to reach 118 per cent of the general level for the 1909-14 base period, the Agriculture Department reported today.

The mid-June level was 23 points higher than a year ago. All groups of commodities except fruit were considerably higher than at this time last year. Meat animal prices were up 42 points; chicken and eggs, up 37; truck crops, up 24; cotton and cottonseed, up 26; dairy products, up 22, and grain prices, 13 points higher. Fruit prices were down 7 points from a year ago, reflecting relatively low citrus prices.

Continued increases in industrial activity during June and higher Government loan rates on major farm crops were said by the department to have been important local market price strengthening factors.

The department explained that while farm prices averaged considerably above those of the base period in terms of dollars, the income was not sufficient to give farmers full parity returns. Farm products, at the mid-June prices, would buy 91 per cent as much nonfarm goods and services as in the base years, the department said. This percentage was 86 a month ago and 74 in June last year.

WE THANK You!

1st FEDERAL of Washington, D.C.

THE First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Washington wishes to announce that the total Assets of the Association have now passed the TEN MILLION DOLLAR MARK. To be exact, on June 30th, 1941, Association Assets reached a total of $10,372,370.52, representing a net increase of $2,756,081.27 during the past year.

The satisfactory growth of our institution during recent years has been made possible by the splendid support and cooperation on the part of our thousands of friends and members for which we extend our sincerest appreciation.

All funds invested in the First Federal of Washington are loaned back into our community for the financing of home-ownership on an economical basis in our growing city and its immediate environs.

Any amount from $1.00 up to $10,000 opens an account.

All accounts are PERMANENTLY INSURED against loss (up to $5,000) for each investor by an Agency of the United States Government.

Write, phone or call for booklet, "Maximum Security."

'Bearded Man' Drawn in Joss Murder Trial

By the Associated Press

Bath, Me., July 1.—The picture of a mysterious "bearded stranger" was drawn again today by the defense in an attempt to link him with the "drug addict" Dr. Merrill H. Joss said demanded drugs at his home the night his wife was murdered.

Counsel for Joss, who is on trial for murder, introduced also medical testimony designed to support the doctor's treatment to his dying wife, one part of which—injection of morphine—was branded "improper" by a physician who testified for the prosecution.

Mrs. Elizabeth C. Mayo, who told yesterday of a "love note" romance with Joss, was back among the spectators today as the defense opened an attempt to clear the 34-year-old physician of the charge of beating to death his wife, Dr. Luverne Harris Joss, on March 27.

Mrs. Ann Deroche, of Richmond, Me., testified to seeing a "bearded stranger" near the Joss home about 6 p. m. on the night of the slaying which the State contends occurred about three to four hours later.

Three other witnesses said they saw a man of similar description at various times before and after the crime in communities near Richmond.

An alleged hesitancy on the part of Joss to allow an immediate blood transfusion for his dying wife, which was questioned by the prosecution, was put to Dr. Frank Bull, of Gardiner Hospital.

Dr. Bull testified that he would have insisted on a cross-matching of blood before the transfusion—the test the prosecution alleges Joss demanded.

Dr. Charles G. Farrell, another witness for Joss, was asked: "In your opinion could Mrs. Joss have lived if she had had a blood transfusion?"

"No, death was then imminent," Dr. Farrell answered.

Asked about the morphine injection, Dr. Bull testified, "it is considered good treatment of shock."

The physician testified also to seeing cap-like gauze bandaging on Mrs. Joss' head on arrival at the hospital. Both doctors testified to their disbelief that wounds in Mrs. Joss' skull could have been caused by the rock exhibited by the prosecution as the possible murder weapon.

Child Offers 'Loaded' Bank For Defense

Human interest stories abounded yesterday at the opening of Treasury House in the heart of Washington.

An elderly man walked up to the counter where pretty girls sell defense saving stamps and announced he was in the market for a defense bond. He was told that Treasury House, which is at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest, dispensed stamps only.

Whether it was from disappointment or the heat—more likely the latter—the man suddenly grew faint. He collapsed. An ambulance was summoned.

He was revived at the scene in time to buy a $37.50 stamp album, which is convertible into a bond. He was smiling, albeit wanly, as they lifted him into the ambulance for he had closed the deal he went there to make.

Child Brings "Loaded" Bank

A woman came up and said she wished to buy a $100 bond. Informed she could buy stamps at Treasury House, then turn in the album for a bond, she filled up a $75 booklet—for conversion into a bond which will be worth $100 ten years hence—and then spent her remaining $25 for stamps toward a second bond.

A youngster walked up and exhibited a toy savings bank.

"It's loaded," he said, "and it's going for defense stamps."

Whereupon the bank was smashed then and there and approximately $6 realized. The lad went away smiling.

Introduced by Daniel W. Bell, undersecretary of the Treasury, Vice President Henry A. Wallace gave the dedicatory speech as Treasury House was opened at noon.

"This little Treasury House is a symbol of the easiest plan for safe investment of small savings which has yet been discovered," Wallace said.

Purchase of the defense stamps and bonds is a sound, practical step to help prevent inflation, he declared.

Weapons on Display

"In these houses we shall make the words of the new Treasury Bond song come true—we shall buy so much freedom from the freedom man that the democracies of the world need have no fear as to the final outcome of the struggle which today so disturbs all right-thinking men," said the Vice President.

The dedication audience was disappointingly small, though the address was carried over a Nation-wide radio hookup. Army, Navy and Marine bandsmen comprised nearly half the crowd. There were 80 men in each of the service bands.

Throughout the day the military exhibits surrounding Treasury House in "Defense Square" attracted large numbers of curious. They inspected a 75 millimeter howitzer, tanks, an aircraft gun, Navy field pieces, Coast Guard rescue apparatus and other pieces.

Good Drivers' League Winners Get Prizes Here

Winners of the Ford Good Drivers' League of the District were announced last night at a banquet at the Mayflower Hotel. Gold watches were awarded to the winners William S. Wise, 4106 Forty-second Street Northwest, and Miss Marilyn H. Hass, 78 Buena Vista Terrace Southeast. Runners-up, Henry S. McDonald, 3d, 4400 Greenwich Parkway Northwest, and Miss Gloria Juliet Fagiolo, 1817 Ingleside Terrace Northwest, were given engraved certificates, and were named alternates for the national finals.

The national contest will be held in Dearborn, Mich., the week of August 21. University scholarships amounting to $25,000 will be awarded the winners. First prize, in both the boy and girl divisions, will be a $5,000 scholarship.

Nazi Refugee Gets Chance In U. S. Court

Dr. Herbert Weichmann, a legal scholar and once a judge of the German Republic who fled his country before a Nazi expulsion order eight years ago, had his day in an American court yesterday.

Dr. Weichmann was called as a Government witness against Dr. Frederich Ernst Auhagen, a man of the new Germany, who the Government contended is its propagandist and American agent as well.

Before Federal Judges Charles Briggle, Dr. Weichmann told a District Court jury of five women and seven men, what he has learned about the economics and judicature of the Hitler state.

Dr. Auhagen is accused of failure to register as a foreign propagandist with the State Department. Assistant Attorneys General George A. McNulty and Albert E. Arent hope to prove that Dr. Auhagen's lectures and writings in the United States had a motive.

For that purpose, they claim, he started the American Fellowship Forum and wrote magazine articles.

Defending Dr. Auhagen is Attorney S. Holmes, of New York, whose objection prevented Dr. Weichmann telling the jurors about his expulsion from Germany.

The trial is expected to last a week.

'Missy' Le Hand Ill in Hospital

Miss Marguerite Le Hand, personal secretary to President Roosevelt, was reported last night to have spent a "good day" in a hospital where she has received treatment for the last week.

She is suffering, it was reported, from a severe attack of neuritis.

ODD BODKINS — By FRED FOX and CHASE CRAIG

FINDING THE SWORD HAS GIVEN ODD A NEW MISSION IN LIFE SUCH AS—I GOT THE PARCHMENT OFF THIS LAMP SHADE!
YOU DIDN'T SIGN YOUR NAME, ODD!
I, ODD BODKINS, DO HEREBY VOW TO USE MY TREMENDOUS STRENGTH TO THE NOBLE PURPOSE OF: ①ENDING ALL WARS. ②MAKING PEOPLE LIKE EACH OTHER. ③BEING KIND TO ALL ANIMALS. ④SAVING MAIDENS IN DISTRESS AND STUFF LIKE THAT. SIGNED X
P.S. I'LL END ALL CRIME TOO!
I SIGNED IT WITH BLOOD—AND I COULDN'T BE EXTRAVAGANT!
IF YOU CARRY OUT THAT PROGRAM YOU'LL BE A GREAT MAN!
WELL— WHERE'LL I START FIRST?

JOE PALOOKA — WORRIED — BY HAM FISHER

I WOULDN'T WORRY MISS HOWE. HE KNOWS HOW TO TAKE CARE OF HIMSELF IF EVER ANYBODY DID.
BUT SERGEANT I CAN'T HELP WORRYING. HE'S BEEN GONE SO LONG.
7-2
NOW THAT'S ALL RIGHT— IF HE'S LATE FOR REVEILLE HE'S EXCUSED. WE UNDERSTAND.
OHH THAT ISN'T IT/THE ROBBER HAD A GUN— OH I HOPE JOE DIDN'T CATCH UP—I HOPE THE MAN GOT AWAY.
SERGEANT, YOU'D BETTER COME OUT TO THE GATE.
EXCUSE ME MA'M.
WELL I'LL BE—

SUPERMAN — A Friend in Need — BY JERRY SIEGEL AND JOE SHUSTER

AS THE GLENDON FLYER RAPIDLY NEARS THE SPOT WHERE THE EVIL SCIENTIST'S MEN ARE HIDDEN, BLOCK MAKES LAST MINUTE PREPARATIONS...
REMEMBER TO AIM HIGH ENOUGH TO STRIKE THE ENGINEER!
WE WON'T FAIL!
YOU KILLERS!
(—NO HOPE. I KNOW I PLEADED WITH SUPERMAN TO ABANDON ME, BUT I CAN'T HELP WISHING THAT HE HADN'T TAKEN ME UP!—).
BUT LOIS HAS UNDERESTIMATED THE MAN OF TOMORROW'S LOYALTY! A DISTANCE AWAY, HE DIVES AT THE GROUND, BURROWS AT TERRIFIC SPEED, AND VANISHES FROM VIEW BENEATH THE EARTH'S SURFACE...!
BE RIGHT WITH YOU, LOIS!

with Glynn

If anyone should ask what's in a name insofar as the new Treasury Department program over WJSV and the Columbia network at 8 tonight is concerned, the answer would be a lot of entertainment.

For any one of the names of the entertainers to appear rates top billing in any entertainment medium. The lineup includes Charles Laughton, Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Grace Moore, Fred Allen, Irving Berlin, Berry Wood, Clifton Fadiman, John Kieran, Franklin P. Adams, Oscar Levant, Al Goodman's Orchestra and Ray Block's 12-voice choir.

The new show, called "Millions for Defense," is being presented to explain the new Defense Bonds which the Treasury is selling, and Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau will appear on the program to tell all about them. He'll be introduced by Mayor R. E. Lambertson, of Philadelphia, who will strike something of an historical note by ringing the Liberty Bell.

Barry Wood is to sing Irving Berlin's new song, "Any Bonds Today," written specially for the Defense Bond drive, and Charles Laughton is to give his now famous rendition of "The Gettysburg Address"—oddly enough, it's the anniversary of the battle.

Proving the old adage that there as has, gets, the new broadcast is being contributed to the Treasury by the Texas Co.

Contract Bridge

How would you play the North cards of today's hand, taken from the recent World Bridge Olympic, so as to defeat East's four-spade contract one trick? South opens the heart king; study your cards and those of dummy, then check with the solution to see if you earn a "par."

Answer

You should overtake partner's king with the ace and immediately shift to a diamond. This is the only play that enables South to take a diamond trick. Declarer wins with a top honor and takes his ace, king of spades. He then switches to clubs, South winning the ace and returning a diamond honor. East wins and plays out dummy's clubs, attempting to throw off his diamond losers. You ruff the third club; and although East discards a diamond, another diamond lead from your hand gives partner a diamond trick which, with the spade ruff and the aces of hearts and clubs, sets the contract one trick.

If you let South's king of hearts hold the trick, he has to lead diamonds into declarer's tenace and cannot continue the suit when he gets in with the club ace.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Defense Bottleneck — BY MILTON CANIFF

THE INVADERS NEVER DISLODGED US BEFORE...BECAUSE WE GROW FOOD FOR THEIR ARMIES!
BUT NOW THE INVADER IS MIGHTY IN HIS WRATH... SINCE WE HAVE GIVEN SHELTER TO THE GUERILLAS!... REFUGEE WEST!
REFUGEE WEST! THE INVADER COMES WITH TORCH AND SWORD!
REFUGEE WEST!
WEST!
HOW DO WE PROSPER?
GREATLY, SIRE! OUR OBSERVER PLANE REPORTS PEOPLE AND VEHICLES CLOGGING THE WEST ROAD!
GOOD! WITH THE POPULACE GONE, THE GUERILLAS CANNOT POSE AS FARMERS! THEY MUST RETREAT ALONG THE WEST ROAD! ...ATTACK IN FORCE AS SOON AS IT IS LIGHT ENOUGH! WHEN THE DOGS FALL BACK THEY WILL BE BLOCKED BY REFUGEES!

Board Sought To Further Education

By the Associated Press

Boston, July 1.—The National Education Association heard a proposal today for establishment of a national commission of 60 educators whose duties would include exposing of any teacher "whose attitude is found to be inimical to the best interests" of the country.

Donald Du Shane, of Columbus, Ind., offered the proposal at the organization's seventy-ninth meeting, and asserted among its other purposes would be the maintenance of public support of schools despite defense spending.

Du Shane repeatedly has described as "unjust" attacks made on teachers and textbooks.

"Various organizations have become active in recent months attempting to create a distrust of the efficiency of the public schools and of the loyalty of the teaching profession," the N. E. A.'s executive committee asserted in a statement issued on the proposed commission.

"This must be met and the future welfare of our country must be protected against any misguided efforts to curtail the best possible preparation of our girls and boys for citizenship.

"Proper legislation must be secured to insure adequate educational opportunities for all the children of our country and reasonable safeguards for our teachers."

The proposal urged investigation of "criticisms and movements against education," school systems, teachers colleges, textbooks, teachers' organizations and members of the teaching profession," and the cataloguing of "the various groups opposing education."

Another major function of the commission, the statement said, would be to maintain "the long time vital function of education. . . even in times of unusual expenditures for military defense."

The full membership of the N. E. A. will vote tomorrow on the proposal for the commission, which would include an executive committee from the N. E. A. and one representative from each State teachers' organization.

Hoover's Speech Receives Praise In Finnish Press

Helsinki, Finland, July 1 (AP).—The Finnish press and public expressed approval today of a Sunday speech by former President Herbert Hoover in which he declared "the ideological war to bring freedoms to the world died spiritually when we made that promise" to aid Soviet Russia.

The Helsinki newspaper Sanomat summed up:

"It is sure that Hoover's voice is not alone in America and that it will find echoes around the civilized world."

Recalling American aid to Finland during the Soviet winter invasion of 1939-40, the paper added: "It seems an unnatural impossibility that civilized, liberty-loving America can support mankind's worst enemy, who has attacked us for the second time within two years."

Nazi Ace Beats Richtofen Record

New York, July 1 (AP).—Lieut. Col. Werner Moelders, Germany's ace of the current war, has surpassed Baron Manfred von Richtofen's World War record of 81 planes shot down, the German wireless announced today.

Moelders, who holds the coveted Oak Leaves award, has bagged 82 planes to become the most successful fighter pilot in German history. His squadron recently was credited with its 500th plane.

Woman Pilot Of Bomber Returns to N.Y.

By International News Service

New York, July 1.—Jacqueline Cochran, America's premier woman flier, came home today from her great adventure of flying an American-made bombing plane across the Atlantic to England, enthusiastic about the work of British women pilots in the war.

Only ten days ago Miss Cochran lifted a giant American bomber into the air over Canada and headed eastward as the first woman ocean ferry pilot. Today she came back to an eastern Canadian port in an "air bus" being used to bring the ferry pilots home quickly so they can get another bomber swiftly into war service. She flew down to New York in the afternoon bursting with news of her sister pilots abroad. She landed at LaGuardia Airport at 4:10 p. m. (E. D. T.).

Scarcely mentioning her own feat until she was prodded with questions, Miss Cochran gave high praise to the women of the A. T. A. who ferry planes around England to relieve men pilots for combat work and for the girls of the W. A. A. F. who act as mechanics, "grease monkeys" and all general ground work on war planes.

"They're all doing a simply marvelous job," Miss Cochran said. "Those A. T. A. girls are flying many different types of planes and some that are plenty hard to handle, all over the country. You should hear the enthusiasm of the men about those women fliers."

She had just as high praise for the women of the ground crews who do less spectacular but just as important work which relieves men for war.

"The girls in the women's auxiliary air force, or the WAAFS, as they call them, are doing all kinds of hard, tough work, and doing it wonderfully well," she said. "They run offices, they work on instruments, they fold parachutes, they clean sparkplugs, they swab down planes, they do almost anything men mechanics do.

"They get very little pay. One shilling six pence a day isn't much for a girl who could be getting a good deal more in a munitions factory. But they are amazingly cheerful. They have a wonderful spirit, and they seem to have a very good time working together for a common cause.

"Some people thought it would take two or even three girls to do the work of one man. But the girls work so well that each one can usually replace a man, and at some operations requiring dexterity with the hands, the women are actually better than men."

Senators Must Sign Antirevolt Oath to Get Pay

By the Associated Press

Hereafter, if United States Senators want to draw any pay, they will have to swear a solemn oath that they do not advocate overthrow of the Government by force and violence.

This comes about through a clause in the new Legislative Appropriation Act stipulating that none of the money in the bill shall go to pay the salary or wages of any person advocating toppling the Government.

The General Accounting Office ruled that Senators would have to sign individual affidavits, just like everyone else.
